In probe of state utility rates

PUCO meets with Senate panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Fresh from a bout with consumers, the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio meets today with a special legislative committee investigating the regulation of utility rates.

The PUCO commissioners held a give-and-take discussion Tuesday with a half dozen consumer representatives and received an endorsement for the use of utility companies' original costs as the basis for setting rates.

Rates are currently calculated through a complex Reproduction Cost New (RCN) formula, applying current market prices, less depreciation, to a company's initial investment in land, facilities and equipment.

The formula results in inflationary rate increases, consumer confusion and potential windfall profits for companies, according to commissioners David Sweet and Sally Bloomfield.

Consumer advocates agreed that the RCN formula should be eliminated, but at the same time made it clear they were dissatisfied with PUCO's performance in regulating major gas, electric and telephone companies.

"We don't feel the PUCO has done a good job of regulating the utilities," Patrick Nelson of the Energy Consumers League of Springfield said.

The commission is also faced with an internal division which surfaced once again at the meeting.

Chairman C. Luther Heckman, while not defending the RCN formula, has refrained from joining Sweet and Bloomfield in calling for its repeal.

Heckman said rates should be based on the current true value of utility property, but added: "I don't think any of the rate bases answer all of the problems."

Sweet contended use of original cost figures would save consumers a minimum of $152 million in yearly rate payments.

The Joint Select Committee on Energy is expected to discuss rate bases and the fuel adjustment clause with the PUCO commissioners at today's meeting.

PUCO officials believe they were treated with undue harshness by the House-Senate committee in an interim report last month. The report called for tighter controls over fuel adjustments by which utilities pass on increased costs to consumers.

Hoffa witnesses may not help

DETROIT (AP) — A federal prosecutor says several witnesses probably will take the Fifth Amendment when he opens a grand jury probe into the disappearance of ex-Teamsters union boss Jimmy Hoffa.

U.S. Atty. Ralph Guy said federal authorities are still exploring all possibilities — including intentional flight — in the disappearance of Hoffa two weeks ago.

"There is no angle we can rule out," he said.

Guy had said he hoped to issue subpoenas as early as today. But Tuesday he said it would take a couple of weeks for his staff to review the results of hundreds of FBI interviews.

Hoffa, 62, was last seen July 30 waiting outside a restaurant in suburban Bloomfield Township. The FBI says it has failed to find any trace of him and does not know if he was kidnaped or killed.

James P. Hoffa, Hoffa's son, repeated on Tuesday his belief that an unnamed man witnessed the abduction of his father — "I've talked to the eyewitness. I've seen him and I believe him."

The FBI says the man's story did not hold up under questioning.

Guy declined to say who would be called to testify before the grand jury. He said some witnesses could be expected to decline to testify on the grounds of self-incrimination.

"It wouldn't surprise me if several people take the Fifth Amendment since some of them have already said publicly that they would," he said.

Federal prosecutors could counter by granting witnesses immunity from prosecution, then forcing them to testify under threat of contempt sentences. But they may be reluctant to grant immunity to some of the reputed organized crime figures likely to be called.

Guy said the grand jury would be used as a tool to learn about Hoffa's fate from uncooperative witnesses, but also could lead to indictments if the case is solved.

Sources said reputed Detroit Mafia kingpin Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone would be among those subpoenaed.

Hoffa reportedly had an appointment with Giacalone, former Teamster vice president Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano of Union City, N.J., and reputed Detroit mob figure Leonard Schultz at the restaurant the day he vanished. All three denied such a meeting was planned.

Also expected to be called before the grand jury is Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien, Hoffa's former body guard and foster son, who has been identified by sources as a focal point in the investigation.

Coffee Break . .

LAW ENFORCEMENT officials are concerned with the failure by Ohio motorists to reach a complete stop prior to turning right on a traffic control signal during a red indication, according to Mrs. Fred Shoop, manager of the Fayette County Automobile Club. . .

"Too often drivers have a tendency to roll through the intersection without bringing their autos to a complete stop. This is an illegal act, making offenders subject to arrest," Mrs. Shoop said.

Generally, Ohioans have handled the new right turn on red law well, Mrs. Shoop believes. . . She said that there have been relatively few accidents across the state that can be directly attributed to driver irresponsibility concerning the new law. . .

As a word of caution, Mrs. Shoop listed four major conditions a motorist must observe after coming to a complete stop at an intersection. . . They are:

—First determine if turning on red is prohibited. . . Look for a sign bearing the words "No Turn on Red" near the traffic signal;

—If turning on red is permitted, look to the left to observe oncoming traffic. . . The oncoming traffic has the right of way;

—Look across the intersection and see if facing traffic may be subject to a left turn green arrow control. . . If so, it has the right of way and drivers must yield to it; and —Watch for pedestrians crossing the intersection in crosswalks. . .They, too, have the right of way. . .

Once these driver responsibilities are completed, it is safe for drivers to make a right turn on red, the AAA club manager said. . .

The AAA has prepared a brochure outlining various aspects of the new Ohio right turn on red law. . . If drivers have questions concerning Ohio's newest traffic law, they should stop in the AAA club office at 209 E. Market St. for a free copy. . .

THERE IS STILL time to reserve a time slot from 10 a.m. through 4 p.m. Thursday at Grace Methodist Church to give blood. . .

Betty Korn, Fayette County Red Cross executive secretary of the chapter, reports Fayette County during 1974 donated 863 pints of blood and used 911 pints. . .Outside of making up for the 48 pint deficit, the county must meet the 160-pint quota with each blood drive to ensure free blood for all Fayette Countians should they need it. . .According to Mrs. Korn's 1974 figures, we've been using it and can't expect other areas to continue pulling us through deficits. . .

Forty to 50 additional donors are needed Thursday to make the drive a success. . .Give 335-3101 a call and make your reservation now. . . Welcome Wagon will provide free babysitting and a free hot meal will be served after donating. . .It's easy, painless and most of all rewarding. . .Call now. . .

Judge bars man's protest of truck

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Steve Strickland is in a pickle because a judge won't allow his truck on any Nevada road until he removes lemons and signs painted on the vehicle to protest defects.

Strickland says he needs the truck in his carpentry work, but won't remove the painted lemons or stenciled list of 46 alleged flaws until he gets justice.

"As Americans we are so complacent that we trade off a bad vehicle and give up trying to get it fixed. That doesn't help anyone because the manufacturers just keep turning out piles of junk," Strickland said in an interview Tuesday.

Strickland wants his 1973 International truck — his only mode of transportation — replaced with another make of truck, and he wants to overturn the Carson District Court judge's order that bars him from operating the vehicle anywhere in the state.

Judge Frank Gregory ruled last November that Strickland's protest constituted "almost an attempt at extortion" because he vowed to continue his one-man campaign until he got his way, even though the auto dealer's business would be damaged.

"Any consumer should have the right to tell the public of problems with a product, and to let Gregory's order go unchallenged would be unjust," said Strickland, 37, of nearby South Lake Tahoe, Calif.

Strickland has parked his $4,500 truck in front of Al Gasper's auto lot here, displayed it at recreational vehicle shows and ran newspaper advertisements that read, "Before you buy a new truck or pickup, come and see my factory ordered headache."

Computer security provided in renovation

Remodeling project completed by police

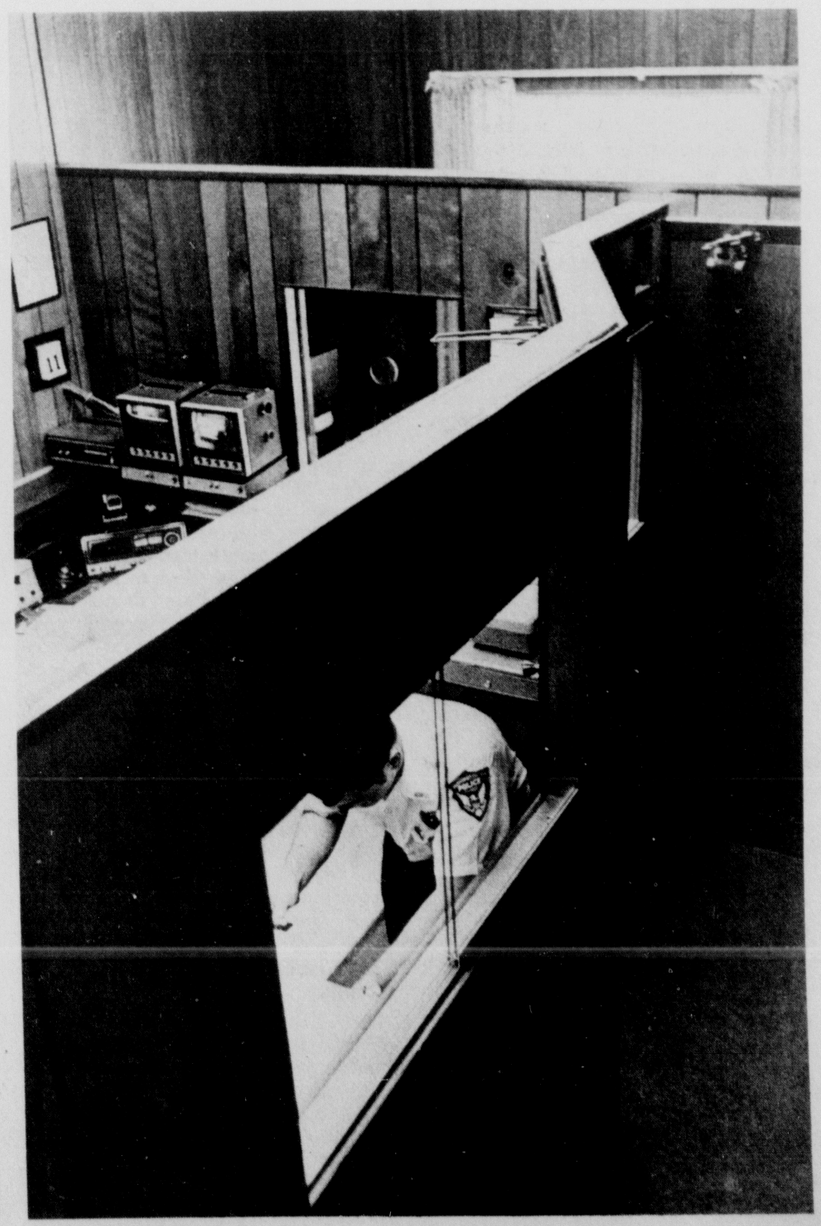

BY MARK THELLMANN

It hasn't been too long since the Washington C. H. Police Department was remodeled to accommodate its new, modern jail facilities and yet during the previous two weeks the front portion of police headquarters on N. Fayette Street went through still another renovation project.

Police Chief Rodman Scott explained the change in internal architecture was brought about for a variety of reasons but the most important one was because the Ohio Criminal Justice Information System (CJIS) has required all law enforcement departments to provide the necessary security for their computer information systems. The new construction has now sheltered the system, resembling an overgrown electric typewriter, in a room by itself. It can be seen through a glass window, but the public and other unauthorized persons are prohibited to be near it.

For those unfamiliar with this new satellite terminal called CJIS, it is necessary to go back to 1968 and trace the evolution of the law enforcement computer systems. This was the year the Ohio Highway Patrol implemented the Law Enforcement Automated Data System commonly known as LEADS. Then in 1972 the Ohio Attorney General's Bureau on Criminal Identification and Investigation (BCI) implemented the Automated Criminal Record System (ACRS). The original LEADS has been enhanced and upgraded to its current level of service, while ACRS has become the nucleus for the OBTS-CCH subsystem. The UCR and MASS subsystems are to be developed in late 1975. Back in 1967 the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) developed the National Crime Information Center (NCIC), which provides all 50 states with a computerized file of warrants and wanted persons, as well as stolen articles and property files. In 1971, Computerized Criminal History (CCH) was added to the NCIC capability.

Drugging of South Viets blasted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Air Force base commander in Thailand was relieved of his position after 13 protesting Vietnamese refugees were drugged and put aboard the last plane for Guam.

Officials said Col. Harrold R. Austin exceeded his authority. Austin was reassigned from command of the key Utapao base to 15th Air Force headquarters at March Air Force Base, Calif.

There was no immediate information on how long after the May 1 drugging incident Austin was removed from his Utapao command by Gen. Louis L. Wilson Jr., Air Force chief in the Pacific.

The Air Force confirmed the drugging episode Tuesday, hours after Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., chairman of the House immigration subcommittee, demanded an explanation of what he called "a horrible thing for our country."

But the Air Force denied Eilberg's allegation that the refugees, who wanted to return home, were beaten. "No physical force was used," it said.

The official Air Force explanation strongly suggested the decision to drug the 13 refugees with sodium pentathol, a sedative, and thorazine, a tranquilizer, was made because of pressure from Thai officials to remove South Vietnamese from their country quickly.

"The Thai officials were adamant that they leave Thailand immediately, the Air Force said.

About 3,000 South Vietnamese flew to Thailand on Vietnamese planes as their country was being overrun by Communist forces.

The Air Force recalled that the United States sent C141 transport planes to carry the Vietnamese refugees from Thailand after the Thais asserted that the Vietnamese could not remain.

"On May 1, when South Vietnam had fallen and the last C141 was leaving for Guam, a group of 13 Vietnamese refused to go," the Air Force statement said.

"They said that when they boarded the aircraft in Vietnam, their Vienamese flight crews had told them that their destination was the Delta region of Vietnam.

"Near hysteria, they demanded to be returned to Vietnam and threatened suicide if they were not returned immediately."

As the Air Force told the story, a decision by U.S. and Thai officials on the scene to sedate the Vietnamese and take them to Guam was made after hours of fruitless efforts to persuade the 13 "that there were no means to take them back."

It said the drugs were administered by U.S. medical personnel at Utapao and that an Air Force nurse was aboard the flight.

"No ill effects were noted," the Air Force said.

An Air Force spokesman said the 13 are still on Guam awaiting repatriation, but an aide to Eilberg said one is in the United States.

About 2,000 of the more than 130,000 South Vietnamese who left their country in the dying days of the war have asked to go back.

Kidnappers demand $4.5 million ransom

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (AP) — Kidnapers of whisky heir Samuel Bronfman 2nd reportedly are demanding a $4.5 million ransom and have warned his family that he is buried with a 10-day supply of air and water.

Spokesmen for the 21-year-old Bronfman's family have refused to discuss the amount of ransom demanded or other details of a letter received in the mail Monday. But they said Tuesday they had complied with its instruction.

Sources close to the investigation were quoted as saying the ransom figure was $4.5 million, believed to be the highest in U.S. history.

The New York Daily News quoted sources close to the case as reporting that the letter said young Bronfman, missing since Saturday, was buried somewhere in Westchester County. His parents live in Westchester County, 35 miles north of New York City.

In another bizarre kidnaping, Barbara Jane Mackle was buried alive for days in a wooden coffin in 1968 in Georgia. She was released unhurt.

The Bronfman family spokesman confirmed that a "substantial" sum of money had been collected and that the family was awaiting the next move by the kidnapers. He said the family was negotiating with the kidnapers independently of the FBI and local police.

Edgar M. Bronfman, 46, head of the billion-dollar Seagram Co. Ltd., of Montreal, flew by helicopter from his baronial estate in this Westchester County community Monday to New York City, apparently to fulfill some of the kidnapers' demands. He returned about 7 a.m. Tuesday. A family spokesman early today refused to say whether the senior Bronfman was home or what he was doing.

Samuel Bronfman, oldest of the whisky magnate's five children, had dined with his father Friday night in the huge Tudorstyle mansion. He left about 11:30 p.m., saying he was going to a party.

Several hours later, he telephoned his father to say he had been abducted by three men while driving to his mother's home in Purchase, N.Y., about 20 miles away.

Samuel's car, a green 1973 BMW sedan, was found parked in his mother's garage, the ignition key in the lock.

Family friends discount the possibility of a hoax, saying Samuel was a smart and likeable person who would not participate in a hoax.

Friends also say the family has held up well, trying to remain calm, and waiting.

Army admits causing man's death

NEW YORK (AP) — The daughter of an unwitting victim of the Army's experiments with hallucinogenic drugs says she had been told that he died of an LSD injection administered as medication.

But, she said, Tuesday's announcement of the reason for her father's death was a shock. In a press release, the Army attributed the death of tennis professional Harold Blauer in 1953 not to his treatment as a state mental hospital patient but to the Army's experiment.

"I'm collapsed through the whole experience," said the widowed daughter, Elizabeth Barrett, 35, of Manhattan, who added that three Army officers gave her the news in person.

Blauer is the first known fatality from extensive Armysponsored tests with mind-affecting drugs, although the suicide of Dr. Frank Olson after the Central Intelligence Agency experimented on him with LSD in 1953 had been disclosed previously.

Two years before his death at the age of 42 on Jan. 8, 1953, he and his wife decided upon a marital separation, Mrs. Barrett said. Her mother went to Mexico and lived there with the younger daughter, who now wishes to avoid publicity. The elder girl, then 13, elected to live with her father.

She said that because of the separation, Blauer became depressed and a friend got him to admit himself to a hospital for treatment. He ended up in the New York State Psychiatric Institute, and the girl went to live with her grandmother.

The Army said that the institute had a 1951 contract that stipulated "studies, experimental investigations and tests to determine the clinical effect of psychochemical agents on the psychiatric behavior of human subjects."

It said that Blauer had experienced either minor or no effects from four previous injections. The Army reported that the fifth injection was fatal.

"The patient died about 2½ hours after receiving an injection of a mescaline derivative," the Army said.

Mrs. Barrett disputes the Army's account, saying her mother had said that her father had been given LSD and that he had had two earlier bad experiences with the drug the doctors were "prescribing."

The daughter said the final injection was given on the day before his scheduled release.

She said her mother had lodged what she believes is a malpractice suit against the state and another suit against her father's life insurance company, to collect double indemnity for accidental death. She said there was a financial settlement, but she didn't know the amount.

Robert Spoor, spokesman for the New York State Mental Hygiene Department, said Blauer died of an allergic reaction, and the Pentagon said his file contained an unsigned memorandum that gave a cardiovascular collapse as the cause. No death certificate has been found, according to the Pentagon.

The Army said Blauer had taken part with an unspecified number of other patients in a series of five tests in a 29-day period involving various mescaline derivatives furnished by the Army.

After his death, the experiment was terminated, the Army said.

Senate intelligence committee demands documents on Chile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate intelligence committee, in its most serious breach with the Ford administration, is subpoenaing tapes and documents bearing on covert activities in Chile during the Nixon administration.

But panel members say they still hope to obtain the materials without a legal battle.

The vote to issue a subpoena was taken Tuesday after the White House rejected the committee's requests for the tapes and documents bearing on covert efforts during the Nixon administration to prevent the 1970 election of President Salvador Allende of Chile.

At the same time, committee Chairman Frank Church, DIdaho, reported the panel has given up for the moment its attempts to persuade former President Richard M. Nixon to testify on his administration's policy concerning assassination of foreign leaders and covert activities by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Church said Nixon's testimony is not essential to the assassination phase of the committee's investigation, but may be sought later when he can be interrogated in a single session about all aspects of the probe.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told the panel Tuesday that assassination plots were never part of Nixon administration policy or practice.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the documents requested are "in a position where they cannot be released because of an injunction by (U.S. District) Judge (William B.) Bryant at the request of the former president."

Church said the White House based its decision on an order sequestering the documents except for "on-going government business." He added: "We think this committee is engaged in legitimate government business."

Access to the papers was refused by White House Counsel Philip W. Buchen. He and Arthur Sampson, head of the General Services Administration, were served the subpoenas because they have physical custody of the Nixon papers.

The subpoena calls for delivery of the papers by Aug. 25. One section calls for the production of all proposals or reports for a military coup in Chile, the bribery of Chilean politicians and the transfer of machine guns, gas masks and gas canisters.

The subpoena also seeks documents concerning "the use of propaganda including media personnel on the payroll of the Central Intelligence Agency and the use of private business interests."

Local government pay scales noted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Local government employes working in noneducational areas averaged more earnings each week in 1974 than those who worked in educational sections, the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services says.

The noneducational workers received $177.31 weekly while those who worked in the educational field received about $162.67.

The averages were compiled by the bureau from reports filed by local government subdivisions covered under Ohio unemployment compensation law.

Elected officials and unclassified employes, other than unclassified employes of hospitals, were not covered by the noneducational local government classification.

The educational category was based upon reports filed by local government school districts, excluding substitute teachers.

Highest pay per week for the noneducational classification was in Lucas County where 5,-089 employes averaged $228.30. In Cuyahoga County, the average weekly earnings was $200.85 for 32,001 workers.

Average employment for each month in 1974 in the classification was 125,456 in the 88 counties. Average employment in the educational local government employes category was 213,386 for a month last year.

The highest pay went to the 19,683 employes in Hamilton County who received $197.18 for an average week; the lowest in Defiance County where 748 workers averaged $116.73 each week of 1974.

The bureau also broke down the $335.14 million total payroll for educational state government employes covered under the compensation law for 1974 into the 88 counties.

The average employment by the month was 30,166 with average earnings $213.65.

The figures in the category were based upon reports filed by state educational institutions, excluding student employes of state colleges and universities.

The 1,470 employes at state educational institutions in Cuyahoga County received the highest average weekly pay at $251.16. At the other end of the scale were 37 employes in Montgomery County averaging $109.89 and 11 workers in Miami County who received about $113.82 a week.

In Franklin County with the highest concentration of educational state government employes at 10,407, the average weekly earnings were $208.79.

KSU case juror ousted by judge

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A federal judge dismissed one of the jurors in the 1970 Kent State University shootings trial today for having discussed the case out of court.

U.S. District Court Judge Don Young told the remaining members of the panel that Douglas Watts of Mogadore had violated Young's instructions against forming or expressing opinions about the case.

Court sources said lawyers for the shooting victims complained that Watts characterized the plaintiffs as Commies. Sources said the attorneys learned of the matter through an anonymous telephone call.

Milk and cookie set given own set of high fashions

NEW YORK (AP) — Couture clothes are fast moving from martini sippers to milk and cookie crunchers. The wee folk now have their very own collection from Pierre Cardin.

Plump and bouncy tiny tots and not-so-plump older youngsters paraded around a bubbly pool in a fashionable East Side resturant Tuesday to show the French designer's first collection of children's wear.

The fashions remarkably did not end up in the water, despite a few slips of a few little toes.

Ranging from $8 for swimming suits to more than $70 for long party dresses, the collection combined Cardin's simple, clean lines with bursts of happy bright colors in knits, denims, suedes and easy-care fabrics.

"Fashion is for all ages," Cardin said. "More and more younger people, including children, understand and appreciate fashion as an expression of a way of life."

The boys and girls in Tuesday's show seemed to agree with the designer, as they flaunted a variety of sportswear, school wear, and party clothes in the most coquettish ways.

For toddlers, Cardin showed a one-piece white, red and blue knit jumpsuit with removable crotch for easy diaper change. A two-piece purple, green and blue knit ensemble was worn with bright purple and yellow booties, the Cardin signature logo appearing on the soles.

Toddlers' sizes range from 2T to 4T. Cardin's classic raincoat in the khaki color is for both sexes. So are many of his leisure suits, such as the white, raw muslin pants suit and the two-tone denim panel outfit. The leisure suits are priced from $28.

A French country schoolgirl dress and the classic navy blue pleated dress for girls highlighted the school wear. For boys, a cable coat sweater and the pocket treatment in a beige relax suit were shown.

Much imagination was used for the brightly colored "cutup" pants — panels of green, yellow, red and blue, cut on the diagonal at various parts of the leg. They were worn with T-shirts and polo shirts, which were priced from $10.

Long dresses in peachy pink and dusty green with silver undertones had lace at the hem and bodice and big streamers tied behind. The commentator said that they were the types of dresses "you can wear to mommy's wedding."

I would like to thank all my friends and neighbors who sent me cards and flowers while I was in the hospital and the nurses and nurse's aides on Central and the 300 wing. A very special thanks to Dr. Hung my doctor.

Stock prices turn weak

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned weak and sluggish today, unable to sustain Tuesday's uptrend.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 4.85 at 823.69, and losers opened up a 4-3 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

In the absence of any strong influences in the economic news, brokers said, it appeared the market was again dominated by concern over inflation and rising interest rates that has plagued it for the past month.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was unchanged at 86.49.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .33 to 46.15.

New lottery game eyed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A game to replace the Buckeye 300 with more prizes comes before the Ohio Lottery Commission when it meets Thursday with what's described as a full agenda.

A lottery spokesman said today the agenda wasn't complete and that details of the new game, the Buckeye 1,000, weren't set but that it was an answer to public demand for more chances to win in a widened prize range.

The Buckeye 300 offers a top prize of $300,000.

The commissioners were to meet their new executive director, Robert M. Chiaramonte, who was named to the post after Robert Malaga resigned following personnel disputes.

It was assumed those personnel matters also will come under discussion, including the week-long suspension of Publicity Director James Skelly that was to end Thursday.

Ohio faces winter crisis

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio energy chief Robert S. Ryan said Tuesday Ohio is faced with a potential employment crisis this winter due to severe curtailments of natural gas supplies.

Ryan, executive secretary of the Energy Emergency Commission, told a commission meeting that major gas utilities will put their 60 per curtailment plan into effect Nov. 1.

"Last winter, with relatively mild weather, Ohio lost 1.6 million man days," he said. "Current reports from the pipeline companies indicate that industrial curtailments this year will be nearly twice as severe as last winter."

A monitoring system has been set up, he said, to study Ohio gas consumption throughout the winter.

He said his office is working with the Federal Energy Administration to get additional oil supplies for Ohio. He said he hoped the efforts could avoid a critical unemployment situation.

Hearst figure being protected

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Walter J. Scott, a key figure in the Patricia Hearst investigation, is in protective custody because he fears for his life, the FBI confirmed today.

"I would think he would remain in custody until his appearance" before a federal grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa., said Will McDonald, press spokesman for the Philadelphia office of the FBI.

Scott will remain in protective custody on a short-term emergency basis as long as he feels his life is in danger, said McDonald. He declined to say where Scott is being housed, explaining "it's for obvious reasons."

Hoffa case

In Boston Tuesday, O'Brien said he has consulted with attorney F. Lee Bailey and is now willing to take a lie detector test about his actions on the day Hoffa disappeared. But he said he wouldn't take the test until after the grand jury probe is over.

O'Brien's Detroit attorney, James Burdick, said he would probably advise his client against taking a lie detector test.

Burdick again declined to divulge information from O'Brien's 3½-hour interview with the FBI last week but said he expected to be able to do so soon. He said O'Brien was staying mum to avoid interfering with the FBI probe.

It's hotter in Thermal

We offer this for whatever consolation there is in it: Wherever you are, these days when August is showing off what it can do in the way of summer heat, it's hotter in Thermal. Thermal, Calif., that is, a place 30 miles southeast of Palm Springs which sits 120 feet below sea level and calls itself the hottest town in the country.

With good reason. From June through September, the temperature goes past 100 every day. Of course there's some relief at night, when things cool down to 85 or so, but on the whole it's HOT!

Not surprisingly, this environment has produced a bit of philosophy that should serve well whenever it seems unduly warm. A reporter who recently did a piece about Thermal quoted one of its residents, Bill Arellano, to this effect: "Our weather has a healthy effect upon the body because it stimulates you to inactivity."

Think positive, then: if it seems uncomfortably warm some fine afternoon, reflect that the temperature is stimulating you (is that really the appropriate verb?) to healthful inactivity. Thank you, Bill Arellano of Thermal.

THESE DAYS . . . . By John Chamberlain

Ford should lend his printing press

Far be it from me to defend the way New York City has conducted its fiscal affairs. Anybody with half a brain could see the way things were bound to go when the handsome Mayor John Lindsay was bowing to the municipal unions in a vain endeavor to keep pace with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller as "labor's friend."

During all that time when the bridge tenders were chivvying Lindsay into submission by leaving the drawbridges open and the garbage collectors were holding the city for ransom by letting the refuse choke the sidewalks, the present mayor, Abe Beame, did nothing as comptroller to keep City Hall from borrowing on the future to write union contracts that were arithmetically doomed from the outset.

Having said the worst of the city's past conduct, however, I still think Mayor Beame is justified in his annoyance with President Ford for his crack, made in Belgrade, that New York politicos "don't know how to handle money; all they know how to do is spend it."

The fact is that, when it comes to financial profligacy, Washington has so far out-performed New York City that comparisons are ridiculous.

President Ford Would be in much greater peril than Mayor Beame if, with a $60 to $90 billion yearly deficit hanging over his head and a $475 billion Federal debt necessitating the sterile outlay of some $30 billion in interest, he could not fall back on the government printing presses to supply him with operating funds. Moreover, to supplement the money derived from its own engines of inflation, all quite legal, Washington can tax the devil not only out of city dwellers but of all those supposedly rich suburbanites who have the questionable advantage of living in what Professor Kenneth Galbraith likes to call "fiscal funkholes." (Query: Has Professor Galbraith looked at property taxes lately?)

Mayor Beame, faced with realities, is trying manfully to fit his city's outgo into the frame provided by the available income. He no longer has any options. But Jerry Ford and the U.S. Congress can go on debauching the dollar, if not forever, at least to points that have been tested in countries like Britain and Brazil without a total collapse of the social fabric. No wonder the New York City Hall's response to the Ford denigration was to say that people who live in White Houses shouldn't throw stones.

As a matter of fact, the Federal government is the "first cause" of the plight of most of our big cities. It is the relentless pursuit of inflation ever since the 1930s that has wrecked the dollar that Mayor Beame is forced to use. The New York City subway fare has gone from the nickel of Mayor Hylan's time to the current 35 cents (50 cents come September) because of Washington Keynesianism. The municipal unions have struck, illegally, for more and more in wages because Washington has inflated the cost of living without regard for the consequences.

Mayor Beame might point out to Jerry Ford that New York City sends more in taxes to Albany than it gets back, while Albany, in turn, sends Washington more than is returned. This does not excuse loose fiscal arrangements either in New York City or in Albany. But it does put things in proper perspective when it comes to the right to throw stones.

New York City has been accused of paying out too much in welfare. But who saddled the Harlem and Bedford-Stuyvesant slums with thousands who must depend on welfare payments to keep body and soul together? The northward migrations of poor blacks date back to the time when Henry Wallace, Franklin Roosevelt's Secretary of Agriculture, was presiding over all those payments that went to big farmers to take acres out of production. The big farmers took their government support money and put it into potent fertilizers, high-yield seeds, and the latest labor-saving farm machinery. It wasn't long before they were raising more on fewer acres without any help from their old field hands. The displaced laborers and tenants had to go somewhere, so they piled up in Harlem and Bedford-Stuyvesant.

Since the law says that residence requirements for relief are "discriminatory," New York City has to shell out for welfare on demand.

Mayor Beame is entirely justified in feeling miffed at Jerry Ford's disparaging remarks about New York City made in the capital of a Communist country. At the very least Jerry Ford should be commiserating with Beame, who, unlike Washington, would be counterfeiting if he were to use a money printing press to bail himself out of his troubles.

Ohio Perspective

No surprises found in labor research

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The largest research project ever funded by the U.S. Department of Labor — costing over $13 million so far — is proving things many people already assumed to be true.

The study verifies that young black women suffer more in the labor market from being female than from being black. High-ranking black women have said this in the past.

The project also indicates black teenage girls have higher unemployment rates than any other group in the work force.

And, it strengthens feminists' stand on discrimination. It substantiates arguments that the majority of women with the same experience as men still earn less doing the same job.

The four-pronged study, started in 1966 and expected to run into the 1980s, is being run from Ohio State University's Center for Human Resources.

Data is being gathered on work prospects and realizations of young women who were 14 to 24 when the project began, young men in the same age group, women who were 30 to 44, and men 45 to 59.

Dr. Andrew Kohen, the project director, said, "Once we fully understand how and why people do what they do, we can make recommendations to federal and local governments which set policies."

Inadequate information leads to mistakes, he said, pointing to a comprehensive child care bill passed in 1971 by Congress and vetoed by President Nixon.

"Proponents stressed the strong need, but no one had the hard facts that they were right," Kohen said. "Our data shows the need is not as great as was earlier thought, but a need does exist for low income families.

"It also shows, however, that national policies, aid to dependent children, etc., have contributed tremendously already to alleviate the problem."

In all, 20,000 people in the four groups are being surveyed annually all over the country.

Some findings:

—When a young black girl and a young white, both training through high school commercial courses, compete for the same clerical job, the white is more apt to get it.

'Lab' errand irks squeamish neighbor

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who I like, but his wife can be very obnoxious.

This wife asked me to take a urine sample to the hospital lab for her in the morning because she and her husband leave for work earlier than the lab opens up and I go right by the hospital on my way to work later.

I said no flat out.

The next morning, this woman's mother was there to pick up the little jar to deliver it to the hospital, which is only six blocks away.

IT'S URINE, NOT MINE

DEAR IT'S: I think you were being unduly squeamish. You probably would have taken a blood sample and would not have been shocked by the request-unless, of course, you don't like any part of your neighbor's wife.

DEAR ABBY: Joe, a guy I bowl with, told me that he just came back from Las Vegas where he had been the best man at three weddings. (I'll call the bridegroom "Paul.")

Joe said that Paul first married a girl who was visibly pregnant just to give her baby a name. Immediately after they were married, Paul divorced her.

Then Paul went back to the chapel and married Girl No. 2 for the same reason. As soon as they were married, Paul divorced her, too.

Paul said the divorces had been set up in advance.

Then they went back to the chapel and Paul married the girl he was really in love with. (Joe said the third one didn't look pregnant.)

How about blood tests and waiting periods? Personally, I think this so-called "BEST MAN" IS FULL OF BALONEY, BUT HE SWEARS THIS ACTUALLY HAPPENED.

Is this possible?

DOUBTING THOMAS

DEAR TOM: It's possible. Blood tests and waiting periods are not required in Nevada. I am informed that divorces are final when granted and the parties are free to marry immediately.

DEAR ABBY: The nursing problems of 1880 caught my eye because I was a graduate nurse in 1908.

In training we received $8 per month for four years. We worked 10 hours daily, six days a week, and did all the cleaning. Three months every year we worked in the TB ward.

Later, on private cases, we were allowed to charge only $25 a week. On contagious cases, we cooked all the patient's meals in the family kitchen, but many times, all I got to eat was one bowl of milk and bread.

On private cases we worked 20 hours a day and usually left the case after three weeks feeling exhausted and very hungry.

Today, nursing is a ball.

NORA J.

DEAR NORA: The low pay, long hours and drudgery of nursing in the early 1900s may make today's nursing look easy. But the academic and professional requirements for an R.N. these days are no "ball." And the competition, tensions and living costs that face the modern nurse don't make her work or her life a "ball" either.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box 69700, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Man loves Corvairs; has 20

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)— There is a self-made traffic jam around the gas station owned by Fred Fahrenholz. Like a automotive pied piper, he has 14 Corvairs constantly parked outside his station—and he owns them all.

That's not all. He's got six more of the compact cars outside of his home, but his wife Ellen now says that's enough for now.

"She says this is like an elephants' graveyard—only the Corvairs come here to die," laughed Fahrenholz.

Fahrenholz recalls his love affair began two years ago with the car which has not been in production since 1969.

"I didn't think too much of it until I needed a service car," he said. "I put the word out, and goodnight, this little lady from Farmsville answers it and I bought her Corvair.

"She said she just couldn't keep it running and sure enough every time we took it out, we'd have to tow the thing back in, but I remember the things that would go wrong and how we fixed them.

"And if you attend to those little things, you keep the car running ."

With his wife having declared a moratorium on any more Corvairs, Fahrenholz admits he's going to have to content himself with the cars he's got for awhile.

"It's a good, sturdy little car, dependable and easy to work on," he concluded.

WCH youth attending national JA meeting

Bryan Buck, 621 E. Temple St., will be competing this week for the top national purchasing manager award at the national Junior Achievement conference being held at Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.

Buck, who will be a junior at Washington Senior High School this fall, was a member of Majac II in the Washington C. H. Junior Achievement program last school year. The Majac II firm was counselled by Mac Tools, Inc., U.S. 35-S.

Junior Achievement is an international non-profit organization dedicated to the economic education of youth. Last year over 1,500 teenagers from high schools located throughout central Ohio participated in the Junior Achievement program.

The national Junior Achievement conference is the world's largest teenage business convention. This year's conference will be the largest ever held. Over 2,200 teenage executives will gather from 300 communities nationwide to discuss the trials, heartbreaks and triumphs they experienced while operating their own miniature companies in the Junior Achievement program.

Delegates to the conference are representatives of more than 170,000 teenagers who operated 7,000 Junior Achievement companies throughout the nation during the past year.

State jobs rise denied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson's charge that Republicans added employes to the state payroll since taking office in January was challenged Tuesday by Philip S. Hamilton, deputy administrative services director.

"The auditor apparently can't add," said Hamilton. He claimed the number of state employes declined from 56,781 to 55,686, a decrease of 1,095, since Gov. James A. Rhodes took office.

Ferguson said Monday that Republicans had hired 7,159 while laying off, or planning to lay off, 3,000. He asked the State Personnel Board of Review to take a look into the layoff procedures, saying it was being handled in a way to replace Democrats with Republicans.

"I commend the state auditor for his interest in state employment levels," Hamilton said.

Operation here not affected

Pension plan strike closes Mead plants

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Nearly 2,000 workers were on strike Tuesday at two Mead Corp. plants here, objecting to possible cuts in their pensions.

Plant Manager Booker Bunch said workers left their jobs at midnight Monday. The company plans to revise the pension plan because of its cost, he said.

Other Mead operations, including the container plant in Washington C. H. have not been affected by the striking local.

Plant manager Don Jones said the Washington C. H. plant negotiates a separate contract with its employes and he has not heard of any potential at the facility.

"We have called back nearly all of the employes layed off earlier and are working two full shifts daily," Jones said.

Locals 988 and 731 of the United Paperworkers International Union had voted for the strike prior to the expiration of their old contract Aug. 1 but delayed it because of a 10-day notification clause in the old contract.

Joseph Tonelli, the union president, said the proposed change in the pension plan would cost a retired worker with 35 years service $200 a month. The plan is also the cause of a strike by Mead workers in Escanaba, Mich.

Mead said increased wages and operating costs have driven the cost of pensions upward in the last few years to the point a retired worker with social security and a working spouse would be making more off the job than on.

Corn on the cob this winter — Capturing that corn-on-the-cob goodness of sweet corn is a challenge to anyone who freezes corn for use later. The secret is processing and freezing immediately (within a couple of hours) after picking.

Select only young, tender, freshly-picked corn of uniform maturity. The kernels should be full, rounded and milky. Immature or too-mature corn is not suitable for freezing. Test the maturity of the corn by puncturing the kernels with a thumbnail. If the milk is water, the corn is immature and will lack flavor; if it is thick like heavy cream, the ears are too mature or starchy.

Prepare for freezing by removing husk and silk from corn. Remove husk by cutting off the butt end of the cob, then peeling off the husk. The silk can be removed with a brush. Trim off any injured or defective areas. Wash and sort according to size. Scald and cool the ears.

Using boiling water, scald as follows: corn on the cob — six minutes for small ears; eight minutes for medium ears; 10 minutes for large ears. For cut corn — three minutes for small ears; five minutes for medium ears; seven minutes for large ears. (Count time immediately after putting corn in water).

Cool immediately in ice water or cold running water as long as it was scalded.

Stand an ear upright on a firm foundation and cut downward close to the cob (but not too close). Wash the cut corn to remove chaff, then drain. For creamed corn, slice off top half of grains and scrape milk from remainder of grain.

Package cut corn in moisture-vapor proof packages and seal. For corn-on-the-cob, package three to four ears per container; or better still, wrap each ear individually in aluminum foil and twist the ends tightly. The ears should be frozen separately when wrapped in foil, then packed together in a large container for ease of handling in storage. Label packages and freeze immediately.

A dozen ears of corn will make two to four 12-ounce packages, depending on the size of the ear and kernels.

Fresh-pack or quick-process pickles such as crosscut cucumber slices or strips and whole cucumber dills or sweet gherkins are brined for several hours or overnight. Then they are drained and combined with boiling hot vinegar, spices and other seasonings.

To insure acceptable quality and safety of the finished product, however, you must follow recommended procedures, says Miss Evelyn Gray, extension nutritionist at Ohio State University.

First, decide if you want crosscut sliced or whole pickles. Then select cucumbers accordingly. Wash cucumbers thoroughly with a brush, using several changes of cold water. Be sure to remove any traces of the blossom, as it may cause softening. Drain and place in brine solution overnight. Wash again (with several changes of cold water).

Use an up-to-date recipe to prepare your vinegar and spice solution. Vinegar used to be sold at seven per cent (70 grain), stronger than today's vinegars. Recipes planned for stronger vinegar would be too weak to be safe today, Miss Gray said.

Heat processing is recommended for all pickle products, she added. Pack pickles according to your recipe directions. Fill jars firmly and uniformly but avoid packing so tightly that the brine or syrup is prevented from filling around and over the product.

Be sure to leave head space at the top of the jar as specified by the recipe. Wipe the rim and threads of jar with a clean, hot cloth to remove particles of food, seed or spices. Even a small particle can prevent an airtight seal.

The two-piece metal cap (flat metal lid and metal screw band) is the most commonly used closure. Be sure the flat lid is placed on the jar with the sealing compound next to the glass. Screw the metal band down tight by hand to hold the sealing compound against the glass. This type lid still has enough "give" to let air escape during the processing. Do not tighten screw band further after processing.

Pickle products require heat treatment to destroy organisms that cause spoilage. Adequate heating is achieved by processing filled and capped jars in a boiling water bath. Immerse jars into actively boiling water in canner or deep kettle. Be sure water comes an inch or two above the jar tops. Add boiling water, if necessary, but do not pour it directly on the jars. Close container with close-fitting lid and bring water back to a boil as quickly as possible. Start to count processing time recommended for the type pickles you are processing: Bread and butter pickles, quarts — ten minutes, pints — five minutes; sweet gherkins, pints — five minutes; fresh packed dills (unfermented, whole), quarts — 20 minutes.

If liquid has boiled out of a jar during processing, do not open it to add more liquid, because spoilage organisms may enter. Leave jar sealed just as it is.

Cool jars, top up, on a wire rack. Place jars far enough apart to allow free circulation of air. Do not cover. Keep jars out of a draft until cool. After cooling for 12 to 24 hours, remove metal screw bands carefully and check jars for airtight seal.

The center of the lid on two-piece metal caps will have a slight dip, or will stay down when pressed, if jar is sealed. Also, you can try the spoon test. Tap a spoon on the lid. A clear ringing sound means a good seal. A dull note, however, does not always mean a poor seal. Check by turning jar partly over. If there is no leakage, jar may be stored.

For more information on making pickles, call our county extension office at 335-1150.

Grace Church chapel setting for wedding

The Grace United Methodist Church chapel was the setting for the Aug. 2 wedding of Miss Cindy Cottrill to Brooks E. McCoy. The Rev. T. Mark Dove performed the 2:30 p.m. double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cottrill of Route 1, New Holland, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McCoy of Route 1, Williamsport.

Two seven-branched candelabras entwined with greenery and pink, melon, mint green and yellow ribbons enhanced the church altar. Altar vases were filled with multi-colored mums, gladiolus, daisies, baby's breath and greenery. Family pews were also highlighted by pink, melon, mint green and yellow ribbons and greenery.

Mrs. Gene Hughes played the organ prelude while vocalists Misses Lynnette and Jeannette Anderson sang, "We've Only Just Begun," "Cherish," and "I Won't Last a Day Without You."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a formal-length gown of white organza detailed with French imported chantilly lace. The empire bodice featured a bib of lace, crystals and seed pearls encircled with crystal pleating. The bottom of the full sheer sleeves matched the bodice with ruffled cuffs and a high ruffled neckline encircled with pearls.

The A-lined skirt fell into a chapel-length train trimmed with a row of crystal pleating around the bottom and forming a second row of crystal pleating up the back of the train. Her elbow-length veil, bordered with matching lace, was held in place by an embroidered lace headpiece with seed pearls.

Miss Cottrill carried a cascade arrangement of white miniature carnations, white fugi mums, stephanotis and yellow sweetheart roses accented with baby's breath and ivy with white picot bridal ribbon.

Miss Cottrill selected Mrs. JoAnn Reisinger to serve as her matron of honor. Mrs. Reisinger was attired in a formal-length gown of yellow organza with a bodice featuring a deep V-yoke outlined with a wide band of sheer lace and ruffle of organza. Her full skirt was finished with the same lace and sheer ruffle with a high wedding ring collar and cuffs on the full sheer sleeves of the same delicate lace. She wore a yellow ribbon with yellow and green daisies in her hair.

Miss Brenda Southward and Patty Wilson were the bridesmaids and were dressed in gowns styled identically to the honor attendant's in mint and apricot. Each attendant carried a colorful collage of yellow, pink, green and melon flowers, laced in baby's breath with mixed colored streamers.

Serving as flower girl was three-year-old Beth Ann McCoy, who was dressed in a pale pink gown styled identically to the other attendants. She carried a basket of mixed flowers with streamers.

Richard Reisinger served as best man while Rick Cottrill and Denis Swartz seated the guests. Acting as ring bearer was Rex Reisinger.

The bride's mother chose to wear a sleeveless, floor-length gown of melon, ivory and aqua knit with accessories to match for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was composed of white sweetheart roses and miniature aqua carnations.

The bridegroom's mother was dressed in a floor-length gown of pink polyester trimmed in white with matching accessories. Her corsage featured bridal pink roses.

A reception for the new Mr. and Mrs. McCoy was held at the Lafayette Inn following the ceremony. The wedding table was centered with a colorful arrangement of mixed flowers with candles at each end. The three-tiered wedding cake was encircled with pink, green, yellow and melon flowers and greenery topped by a bouquet of live, colorful mixed flowers. Serving as hostesses were Mrs. Audrey Huston, aunt of the bride, and Kay Schaeffer, cousin of the bride.

For traveling, the bride chose to wear a short-sleeved knit dress with melon bodice and floral skirt and sleeves with matching accessories.

The new Mrs. McCoy is a graduate of Miami Trace High School and Ohio University and is now employed as an elementary teacher in the Westfall School District. Her husband, a graduate of Williamsport High School, is engaged in farming.

The couple are residing on Route 1, Williamsport.

Crusaders class informed of Liberty Bell history

The Christian Crusaders Class of the South Side Church of Christ held their annual picnic recently at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Whiteside.

Various business projects were discussed but tabled for a later meeting. However, members did decide to send letters to the three major broadcasting companies to protest the loose talk and drinking being shown on television, which they felt were unsuitable for viewing by children.

Dr. John G. Jordan gave the invocation while Howard Brooks brought the devotions on the topic of "Work and Leisure." He used the scripture "Remember the Sabbath to Keep it Holy" for his talk and closed with prayer.

Mrs. Jordan provided the entertainment on the bicentennial subject of "Bells." She retold the history of the Liberty Bell and explained that it was originally cast in England in 1752 for the Pennsylvania State House.

In transport the bell was damaged and its tone was ruined. The bell was then recast in Philadelphia in 1753 with the inscription, "Proclaim Liberty throughout the Land unto All the Inhabitants There of," she stated.

On July 8, 1776, the bell was run to summon the people of Philadelphia to the first public reading of the Declaration of Independence.

During the British occupation the bell was hidden beneath the floor of Zion Reform Church in Allentown, Pa., she added. It was broken while being tolled for the death of U.S. Chief Justice Marshall July 8, 1835.

Since 1854, it has rested in the old Pennsylvannia state house on a 13-sided pedestal representing the 13 original colonies, she concluded.

A contest devised to make the most words out of bicentennial was held and Mrs. John Sparks and Dr. Jordan tied with 38 words each.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 6 in the church fellowship hall with Mrs. Guy Patton and Mrs. Laura Huff as co-hostesses. Miss Michele Davis will bring devotions and Mrs. Sparks will provide entertainment.

Reunion held recently

Over 75 family members attended the annual Tway-Whiteside reunion held Sunday in the Bloomingburg Town Hall, Bloomingburg.

Scharlotte Sexour gave the invocation prior to the dinner and a short business meeting was conducted by president, Cleo Whiteside, following the meal.

Scriptures were read by Donald Barnhart, vice president, and the minutes of last reunion were read by secretary, Wendell Whiteside.

Entertainment was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Whiteside with a vocal presentation of spiritual numbers and accompaniment by Mr. Whiteside on the guitar.

A period of silence was observed in memory of those deceased since the last reunion, Glenn W. Whiteside and Effie Whiteside.

After no new nominations were suggested, the president stated the same officers would remain for the next year.

Due to the death of Glenn Whiteside, the president requested Bill Graham to serve as arrangements chairman and be assisted by Cleo Whiteside and Roy Sexour.

Roscoe Whiteside reported for the cemetery committee. Nathaniel Tway and Rufus Hutson also served on that committee.

The president also appointed Reva Whiteside as chairman of collections for the next reunion.

Best loser named

Mrs. Dean Hawk was named the best loser of TOPS No. OH669 at the recent meeting of the club to take off pounds sensibly. KOPS star was Mrs. Emmett Campbell, and officer of the week was Mrs. Leo Merritt.

Dates chosen for the skating parties were Oct. 21, Nov. 18 and March 16 depending on availability.

All members were reminded there would be no meeting or weigh-in on Labor Day. An interesting discussion followed the reading of articles.

Research center toured by county officials

ELECTRON MICROSCOPE — An invaluable tool to plant pathologists is this electron microscope, one of two at the plant pathology facility. The high resolution instrument is capable of approaching a resolution of 1-254,000,000 of an inch and is vital in research of plant diseases.

CONTROLLED ENVIRONMENT CHAMBER — Fayette County 4-H Extension Agent Jack Sommers looks at one of the controlled environment studies of corn root rot presently underway at OARDC. Scientist are able to control the exact amount of light, water and heat the plants in each chamber receive and can then determine what conditions are most likely to increase the amount of root rot.

DISEASE RESEARCH — Dr. Y.N. Saif of the OARDC staff is monitoring the effects of relative humidity on the growth of a respiratory infection common in turkeys. This is one of many ongoing animal health projects which will eventually benefit Ohio farmers.

By ED SUMMERS

Members of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners and county engineer Charles P. Wagner were among several hundred state and county officials present Tuesday at Public Officials Day at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, near Wooster.

The day was part of OARDC's "Research Showcase—Open House '75" in observance of the 100th anniversary of the establishment of the first state agricultural experiment station in the nation near Storrs, Conn.

Following a steak dinner, Dr. Roy M. Kottman, director of OARDC, welcomed the visitors and commented on the purpose of the 300 experimental projects currently ongoing at the center. He pointed out that many of the recent advances in agricultural had come about research done at state experimental stations. "IF we can raise the average yield of soybeans in Ohio by five bushel per acre it means an additional $100 million income for Ohio farmers, Dr. Kottman said.

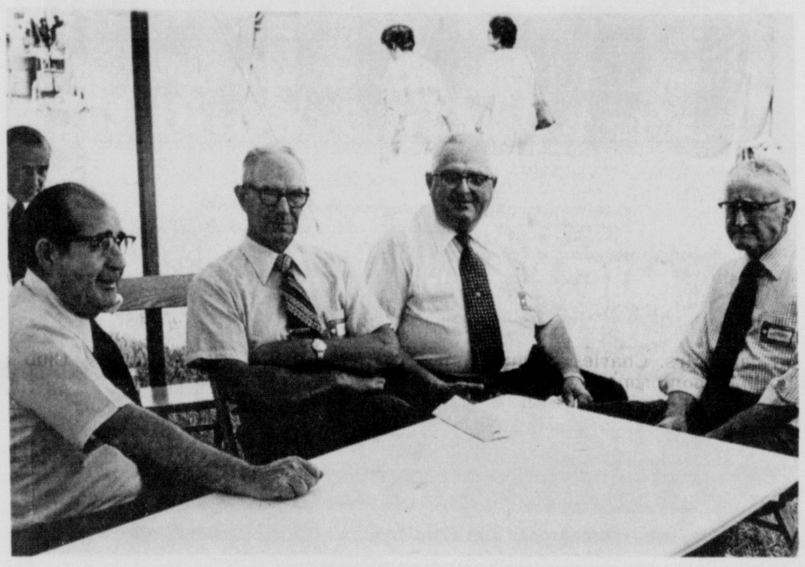

Guest speaker for the event was Dr. John A. Hannah, former president of Michigan State University' former head of the U.S. Agency for International Development and currently director of the United Nations World Food Council. Dr. Hannah outlined the present food situation in the world and gave the audience an insight into many of the programs now being formulated on an international level which will hopefully be able to combat the hunger problem in the developing nations. "Unless the nations of the world take drastic steps the food situation will get worse," he commented, "It is time we get on with the vital job of feeding the world's hungry people."

He also pointed out that 70 per cent of the world's cereal grains and oil seeds are produced in the U.S. and Canada; much of the production due largely to advances made over the years by research at agrticultural experiment stations.

All state county officials present were then presented with centenial medallions to commemoriate the anniversary.

OARDC was established in 1882 and moved to its present location in 1892. Originally the center covered 470 acres but has grown over the years to encompass approximately 2,000 acres in the Wooster area. OARDC is responsible for conducting basic and applied research in agriculture and home economics and related fields. The professions staff includes over 265 scientists and 160 technicians and research assistants.

Projects currently underway at the center range from food technology to solar energy.

Xenia paper returns to afternoons

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — The Daily Gazette will return to afternoon publication Aug. 18. The newspaper was forced to publish morning editions after a tornado devastated the town in April 1974 and school age newspaper carriers were unavailable in the afternoon.

The newspaper will make the change one week shy of a year of morning editions.

The newspaper reversed its publication schedule when its delivery carriers became unavailable. The carriers were primarily junior high school students who, as a result of the destruction of schools, were now in class between noon and 6 p.m.

The new carriers will be elementary and high school age. "This aspect has been most difficult because we had to replace many junior high young people who had been so loyal to us in the emergency and we will keep close tabs on them for the future as they pass into high school schedules and become available to us again," said Jack Jordan, editor and general manager.

"Literally thousands of people have been most patient with us in the last year.

"The communities outside the Xenia school district which are part of our readership accepted the publication time change with general graciousness. And the majority of readers was touched at one time or another by our trials created by the wholesale loss of carriers and erratic delivery times," Jordan said.

The newspaper will publish Monday through Saturday with a 2 p.m. press run.

The school said the continuation of accreditation assures the future of doctoral programs in biology, engineering and law. The next evaluation of the program will come in three years.

In drug sale trial

Jurors return guilty verdict

Verdicts of guilty on three drug counts and not guilty on one other count were returned Tuesday afternoon by a Fayette County Common Pleas jury.

After more than two and one-half hours of deliberation, the panel of six men and six women found Robert T. Lutz, 19, of 523 E. Temple St., guilty of possession of marijuana, possession for sale, and sale of the drug. A verdict of not guilty was returned on a second count of sale.

Judge Evelyn W. Coffman requested a pre-sentence investigaiton because Lutz has no prior criminal record. Sentencing is expected to take place next week, and the defendant faces a prison term of 20 to 40 years on the sale of marijuana charge.

Thomas Vollberg, a narcotics agent from the Ohio attorney general's office in Columbus, testified that he had purchased marijuana in Lutz's presence on two separate occasions.

He said he visited the residence of Joe Seymour, 427 Peddicord Ave., on June 2, and purchased a bag of marijuana for $6. Although he and Seymour had arrived at an $8 figure, Vollberg said he later noted how small a quantity was in the bag and asked to make the purchase for $6.

He stated that Seymour sought Lutz's approval of the new price. Vollberg said that after the $6 figure had been approved, he gave the money to Lutz.

The jury found Lutz guilty of sale of marijuana in connection with this incident.

The agent also testified that he bought a $20 ounce of marijuana at the same residence on June 17. On this occasion, he said, discussions of the purchase were conducted with Seymour, who then asked Lutz to get the marijuana from another room.

He said Lutz returned with a white bag containing three plastic bags of marijuana, and he was told to take his pick. On this occasion, Vollberg said, he paid the $20 to Seymour. He added that following the purchase, someone rolled a "cigarette" from one of the two remaining bags and Lutz shared in smoking it.

The jurors felt that Lutz's involvement in this incident did not constitute sale of the drug. However, they did conclude that he possessed marijuana for use and for sale. Guilty verdicts were returned on these charges only.

Prior to their closing arguments, both assistant Fayette County prosecuting attorney John H. Roszmann, who presented the state's case, and defense counselor Andrew Dennison of Cincinnati, thanked the jurors for their attentiveness throughout the two-day trial. Judge Coffman did the same as she excused the jury shortly after 5 p.m.

Seated on the jury were George Owen, foreman, C. F. Gillenwater, Vivian Stevens, Eugene Gad, Louise Pope, John Ferguson, Mary Hollis, Larry Carmen, Joe Hidy, Catherine Miller, Eleanor Dowler and Florence Fichthorne. Alternate juror James Anderson was not called upon to participate in the deliberations.

Claim civilian fired first at KSU

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A civilian pulled a pistol from under his sport coat and fired into the air at Kent State University about three seconds before Ohio National Guardsmen shot 13 students there five years ago, a former student testified Tuesday.

Joy Bishop of Canton said the man, wearing a yellow or gold jacket and carrying a briefcase, walked to the corner of the dormitory from whose roof she was watching.

"He stood there briefly, pulled a gun and fired one shot into the air," she told the jury.

The guardsmen wheeled at the top of a campus slope and, two to five seconds after the pistol shot, opened fire, she said.

The shooting May 4, 1970 left four students dead, and the survivors and their families are suing 32 present or former guardsmen and state officials for $46 million in damages.

Lawyers for the victims promised to call Mrs. Bishop's roommate and one of her friends, both of whom shared her rooftop vantage point. The attorneys claimed neither saw what Mrs. Bishop described.

The witness told the panel of seven men and five women deciding the claims that she felt pressured the night before when she received a telephone call from plaintiffs' attorney David Engdahl. The lawyer told her he had found inconsistencies in her statements and that unless she cleared them up over the phone she would be embarrassed in court, she said.

Engdahl later denied any impropriety in the call and dismissed her story as irrelevant, stopping short of claiming she lied.

Mrs. Bishop, now a teacher of retarded children, said it was the first time she had told of the gunman in public. She said she gave her account to lawyers for eight former guardsmen indicted last year in the shootings and to Justice Department attorneys who obtained the indictments. The criminal charges were dismissed when a federal judge ruled the government had failed to prove its case.

Mrs. Bishop said the gunman was chased down the hill away from the side on which guardsmen were firing. The jury has seen a television news film of a man identified as Terrence B. Norman being chased down the hill to lines from which the guardsmen set out to disperse an antiwar rally.

A campus policeman took a .38-cal. pistol from Norman and witnesses have testified he announced it had not been fired. In a written statement, Norman also said he had not fired the weapon and pulled it on the hill only after students attacked him as he took their pictures.

Hoosier lawyer blasts utility

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A hotel representative charged Tuesday that Indiana's fuel adjustment clause is loosely drafted and encourages some utilities to use high-cost fuel to raise consumer rates.

Bob Thompson testified at a Public Service Commission hearing on a motion by the state public counselor to set aside all fuel adjustments.

Thompson is an attorney representing Fort Wayne's Sheraton Hotel. He claimed Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. sells a 50-50 mix of purchased and generated power but applies a fuel adjustment reflecting increased cost of generating its own power to both types of power.

Letters from readers of The Record-Herald

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

On August 9, 1975 Honorable Stanley J. Aronoff, State Senator from the eighth district, wrote a letter to the general public in which he attempted to defend the action of our state legislature regarding the passage of the Malpractice bill. Following is a letter I wrote Senator Aronoff in reply which might be of interest to our citizens:

Sir: As a sequel to the opening paragraph of your letter dated August 9, 1975, permit me to make some observations.

A great many people in Fayette County do not appreciate the "help" state legislature gave us this last session.

There are several provisions of several bills to which we have serious objections. It makes little difference to us if the lawyer's contingency fee is limited to 33 1-3 per cent (as you made it) or 25 per cent. It simply means that he only hast to sue (under this system they have no difficulty finding a client) for $750,000 in order to realize a $250,000 fee, whereas, at 25 per cent he would have to sue for a cool million to make the same fee. Maybe we should consider ourselves lucky at that.

This, of course, gives the insurance companies a golden opportunity to also rip off the public. In fact they didn't even wait for the new legislation to pass. As of August 1, 1975, the liability insurance for our hospital increased from $2,300 to $46,000 per year for the identical same coverage.

You were quite consitutionally minded when you directed the Supreme Court (of Ohio) to set a contingency fee schedule. This is equivalent to sending the fox to guard the chicken coop. They're all lawyers too. By the time legislature and the supreme court both finished "helping" local government will be lucky to escape with our shorts let alone our shirts.

Also, slyly tucked away and not mentioned by you was the provision stating that the state waived the doctrine of soverign immunity. From where I stand, it seems this legislature was determined (and succeeded) to expose all public officials to ruinous lawsuits - even if you win. How do you expect to induce good people of substance to continue in public service under these conditions?

We have witnessed our country plunging headlong into socialized medicine. It now looks as if the insatiable lust for money on the part of a few could send the legal profession down the same path with other segments to follow.

I do hope, Senator, I am mistaken in my reasoning. I would rejoice for the least bit of evidence which would so indicate and would jump at the chance to change my thinking. End of letter.

Now, my friends, we must be very careful not to indict an entire profession or group on the basis of the conduct of a few. This applies to public officials, doctors, teachers, ministers or lawyers.

I will say, however, that is no mystery to me why only about one person in every four has any confidence in our legislative bodies.

J. Herbert Perrill
County Commissioner

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

I'm writing this letter in reference to an article printed in the Record-Herald titled "Barnes fight against vo-ed continues" on Aug. 4.

Vocational education should be supported rather than attacked. Realtor Dennis Barnes' two-year legal fight against vo-ed filed in Wyandot County seems to be an illogical approach.

He contends common schools provide learning for the mind while vo-ed schools teach a trade. Now chew that around and try to make some sense out of it. If that doesn't boggle your mind, read what . Webster says about "vocation" and "trade."

The first 14 years of school is generally spent learning what has already happened and to read and write. After that you zero in on a chosen field. The vo-ed concept permits zeroing in to start in 10 years rather than 15. What's wrong with that?

We can't all sit around on a flat rock in white sheets and sandals spewing forth philosophy. Somebody has to work. Why should we say a doctor, etc., doesn't work and that a person with a shovel or a wrench does? Malarkey. They're all working.

We should realize the importance of all endeavors and stop unfair and destructive distinction based on what we do for a living. The stigma started several centuries ago. It is time we matured and stopped the class distinction based on the color of shirt.

What is your real complaint, Mr. Barnes? Your stated reason doesn't hold water. Would it have something to do with federal funding of city versus county schools? Do you really believe that training of the mind doesn't take place in the learning process for a plumber or electrician?

Barnes claims that vo-ed schools violate the state constitution. A state statute provides for vocational schools. Law books define common schools, an obsolete term, as open to the public, as opposed to private schools. It is not unconstitutional to fund public schools with public funds.

Barnes will probably not win his court fight, but he can contribute further destructive criticism that impedes progress of an excellent educational program. We should upgrade the image of vo-ed, not knock it down.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

I would first like to make something clear. This letter is not for personal gain or self publicity, but rather for all the girls and women in Fayette County who have or will participate in sports.

In our rapidly changing society, the role of the female has been broadened widely, one example being sports. Society is beginning to realize that women need to be physically as well as mentally fit. I commend the Community Education program in the progress it has made in providing sports for women; but, as the Equal Rights Amendment states, men and women, by law, are to be equal in all aspects, including media coverage of athletic events. For the past five years I have sat back quietly, watching the women occasionally making the sports page — and then only a paragraph or two at the most. Granted, men are physically stronger than women, but mentally we are equal, thus making our participation in sports equally exciting.

Rarely, if ever, do I read on the sports page how women in this community have succeeded in college sports. It's always the male. Reporting on the high school level is at the very minimum also.

Very seldom does a tournament occur in this city in which anyone may participate. Therefore, coverage should be maximum, with equal reporting on all events. The reporter should cater to the public, not just a few interested people.

Since the Record Herald is the only daily newspaper in this community, it is the responsibility of this local informer to cover fully and equally, all events, especially local, whether pertaining to women, men, and-or both.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Due to numerous inquiries, Ohio Water Service Co. has set guide lines relative to the painting of fire hydants for our nation's bicentennial.

First of all, it must be emphasized that fire hydrants are installed for fire protection. Each water purveyor adopts a color code which fire and water department personnel can easily identify. In addition, these color codes are often used to identify specific characteristics of each hydrant.

Due to the importance of fire protection, I'm certain area residents can understand the dangers involved if all of our hydrants were painted in random colors.

We must, therefore, remind the general public that unauthorized painting of a fire hydrant is illegal and anyone who is apprehended for tampering with a hydrant will be prosecuted.

We will approve painting of designated hydrants by civic organizations for our bicentennial. However, we must have a written request for specific hydrants before granting written permission. In this manner, the fire department and Ohio Water Service personnel can be advised of locations. No approval to paint isolated hydrants will be granted because of the confusion and danger involved if all of our 354 hydrants were painted in a variety of colors.

We ask the cooperation of all area citizens so that life and property not be jeopardized.

We spend around $2,000 per year on our hydrant painting and maintenance program, so you can imagine the cost of getting back to the standard colors following the bicentennial.

Merrill G. Sloan, Vice Pres.
Ohio Water Service Co.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Had it not been for the letters of criticism on the musical "Godspell" I would not have written. However, I feel compelled as did Peter and John in days gone by to say that I cannot help but speak of what I have seen and heard.

First of all I would like to say the evening watching Godspell was a time of enriching my faith as a Christian. The Kent Acting and Touring Co. did a tremendous performance.

Next, to disagree with the criticism of the performance as being "unorthodox" is failing to remember that Christ our Lord and teacher was crucified for being unorthodox in the manner in which He lived and taught.

In summary I want to say that the life and teachings of Jesus are presented in Godspell only made my Bible reading more enjoyable and my relationship to Christ more vivid. Even the clowns showed a dignified humility when this One who was so like them but yet was so unlike them. Just as it was evident in their lives, the applied teachings of Christ can still elevate humanity to plain of living in truth, love and honesty in this life and if we believe what He said in the life to come.

I have no title or degree to back up my words — only the reality of the living Christ in my heart.

Mrs. Rosanne Anderson
Rt. 1, Mount Sterling

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

I enjoy reading letters to the editor because they give different viewpoints. I have never taken the time to write one; however, I now feel I have to give my own viewpoint on a subject concerning our city.

I will have to say I feel the Ohio Water Service Co. was wrong in repainting Tricia's work of art on "Amos" the fire hydrant. Tricia painted this hydrant with a patriotic flair, which is important in this bicentennial year regardless of what you might think. Really, what makes the difference whether this hydrant is on Warren Avenue or in the downtown area?

If the Ohio Water Service Co. is worried about how the hydrants are going to look, why couldn't it be operated as Columbus does theirs. One applies to the city (in this case it could be the water company) to paint a hydrant and you are told which hydrant to paint and given a kit, which is a certain Revolutionary War hero.

Certainly it is far better for our youth to spend their time and energy in this fashion than to spend it tearing down cemetery markers and tombstones. If you will remember — the night Amos was repainted and the story was printed in the paper was also the night this same paper printed the story about the vandalism in Washington Cemetery. Maybe these same persons would have felt more satisfaction with a personal touch giving vent to their feelings in a little different fashion.

Why is it so wrong to try this? Columbus does it, Troy does it and quite a lot of major cities in the southern section of our country paint their hydrant in a patriotic theme and certainly this does help the appearance of these cities.

Neighborhood police action working out

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — Fortified neighborhood police protection is the method two northwest Ohio communities have used to combat increased crime and vandalism.

The president of the Findlay police auxiliary, Don Monday, says public response to foot patrols in residential neighborhoods has been gratifying since the program was implemented in late July.

Meanwhile, in the Wood County village of Haskins, residents have instituted their own neighborhood watches because of increased vandalism in the rural community north of Bowling Green.

The 33-man Findlay police auxiliary has been assisting local police with crowd control at sports events for several years, but the neighborhood patrols didn't have widespread backing until a recent series of fires and vandalism hit the city.

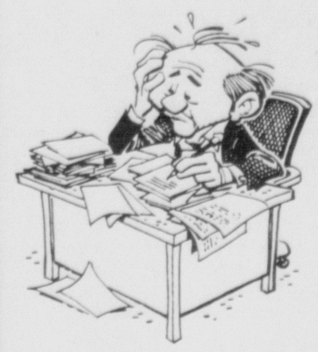

The patrols are done on a rotation basis, with each neighborhood receiving additional support one night a week. The location and patrol-hours are not revealed in advance.

The men wear uniforms, walk in pairs and are armed. They also have arrest powers, Monday explained.

The reaction has been generally positive, Monday said. Some residents have even come down from their front porches to thank the patrols, he added.

When Owens Lake bed, located near Death Valley National Monument, was full, the water contained so much borax and soda that neither fish nor mammal could live there.

BEGINNING STAGES OF REMODELING — This is what the Washington C. H. Police Department looked like last week when the latest remodeling job was getting underway. The remodeling, now completed, was necessary to provide security for the new computer information system known as CJIS. The computer in which the CJIS info line will be connected is pictured at the lower righthand corner of the photo. Waiting for the construction to be completed are Sgt. Charles Long (left), Ptl. Larry Mongold (middle) and Capt. Charles Foster (right).

What you actually have are different terminals leading in and out of the computer system, linked up to different areas and offering different forms of crime information. The Ohio CJIS will be centered around a large computerized state information system serving all criminal justice agencies and with LEADS serving as the message switcher, CJIS links all Ohio criminal justice agencies both to each other and to NCIC. In addition, this same computerized system links Ohio CJIS to other state criminal justice information systems.

Because the CJIS date will deal with such information about offenders as previous apprehensions, rehabilitation, social history, intelligence and other investigative date, only certified operators will be allowed to use the system to protect the individual's right of privacy as defined under thelaw. Only law enforcement agencies will use the system and only those persons within the agencies who meet the certain qualifications will operate it. Chief Scott stated a 40-hour training course for all operators will be necessary for the proper know-how and necessary certification.

CJIS also requires its terminal be placed in a secure location within the authorized agency and this was the reason behind the remodeling. Chief Scott said the majority of the construction was handled by Washington C. H. Police Specialist William Robinson, with jailer-dispatcher Benny Bayes and other officers assisting. Chief Scott also announced the $300 remodeling job won't cost taxpayers a cent since the police department footed the bill and Robinson and Bayes donated their time.

Other officers in the department confessed the remodeling was long overdue just to keep background noise away from the communications center. Air traffic is much clearer now.

When questioned why another new crime information terminal such as CJIS was established in the first place, Chief Scott replied, "The new Ohio Revised Code is based on the offenders previous record and whether or not he has been involved with the same offense before. Before CJIS, there was no way of knowing even if some people had a record because the information took so long in getting filed in the master system. Under CJIS, an operator will daily teletype dispositions of arrested persons into the master information bank."

Chief Scott concluded by saying, "CJIS should be all ready to go before the year ends and we've needed something like this for a long time."

According to monthly activity report

Police probe 934 July incidents

Of the 934 incidents, the most common were suspicious persons and cars, 72; larcenies, 69; open doors and windows and alarms sounding, 60; aided persons, 58; property destruction, 51; domestic disturbances, 48; and disturbances involving juveniles, 56.

During the month the department arrested nine persons for assault, six persons on bench warrants, six persons for disorderly conduct, three for bad checks, three for intoxication and two for trespassing.

The 40 criminal arrests for July is an increase over the 36 arrests for the same period in 1974.

Reckless operation topped the list of traffic offenses during the month with 12 arrested offenders. Unsafe bumper height resulted in 11 arrests; driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs of abuse, eight; failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead, six; and four persons were arrested during the month in the categories of driving while under license suspension, failure to yield right of way, leaving the scene of an acciddnt and failure to obey traffic devices.

The 73 arrests for traffic violations during July brings the total for 1975 to 443, Scott said. In 1974, 79 motorists were arrested during the month and the total stood at 540.

Property damage resulting from auto mishaps during the month was estimated by Chief Scott at $14,375, bringing the total so far in the year to $143,974. Damage for July, 1974 was $13,995.

Value of property reported stolen during the month totaled $5,446.77. Value of property recovered was $1,100.

Vandalism was responsible for a report $1,070 damage figure in July.

Akron native named DESC head

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Army Brig. Gen. Richard W. Swenson, a native of Akron, Ohio, presently serving in Europe, has been named commander of the Defense Electronics Supply Center.

The center buys, manages and supplies electronic parts for the armed forces and federal civil agencies. It is staffed with Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine officers.

Swenson will succeed retiring Brig. Gen. Max Etkin as commander.

Swenson, 52, was called to active duty in 1942 as a 19-year-old infantry second lieutenant while a student at Cornell University. He finished college after World War II and rejoined the Army.

Cheerleading tourney slated

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The eighth annual cheerleading tournament conducted by the University of Toledo's varsity cheerleaders will be held in two sessions Aug. 16 and 17 and Aug. 19 and 20.

It is expected to attract 600 high school and junior varsity cheerleading squads from Ohio and southeastern Michigan.

To conserve natural gas

DP&L urges homeowners to install insulation

The Dayton Power and Light Co. is urging homeowners throughout its service area to install insulation to save natural gas.

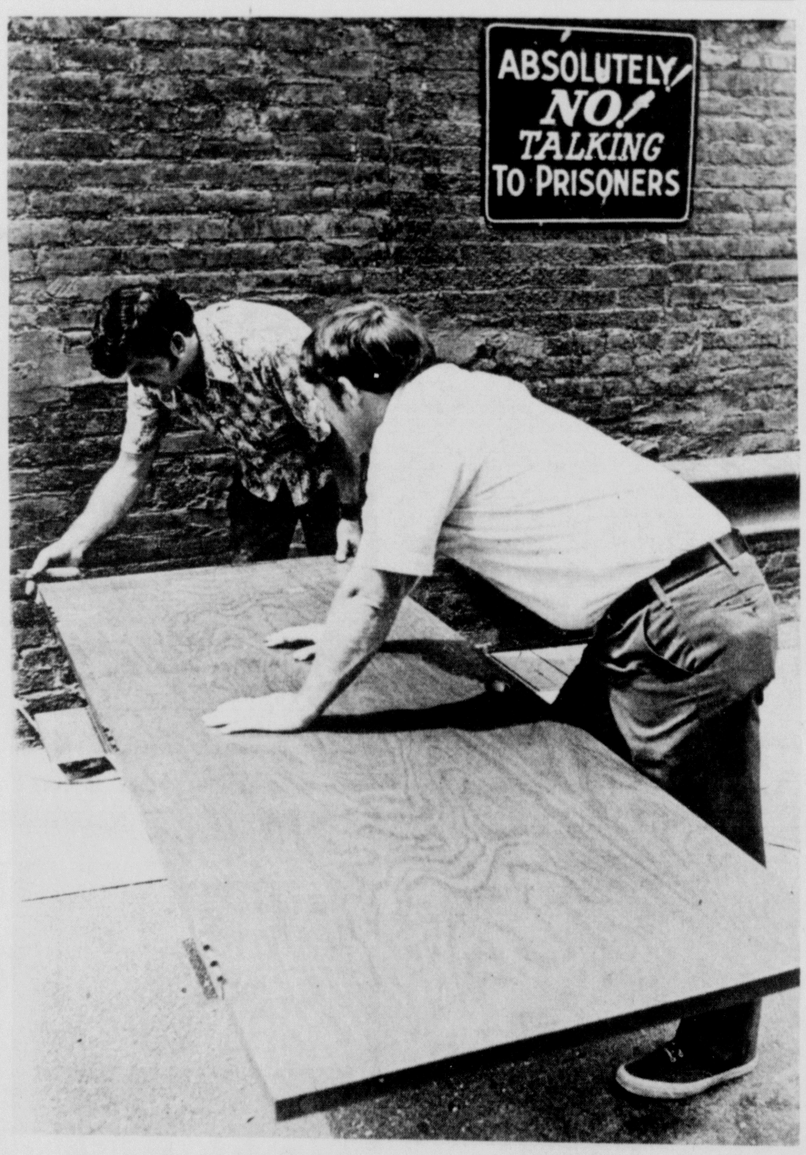

A fully-insulated home will use only half as much natural gas for heating as a non-insulated home. The gas that is saved by residential customers can then be used by industry.

Because of cutbacks in natural gas supplies to DP&L, the company anticipates a winter curtailment of 35 per cent beginning after the October meter reading for 16,000 commercial, industrial, and governmental customers during the 1975-76 heating season. Residential customers who install insulation and conserve natural gas can help relieve this curtailment. Further curtailments could mean the loss of jobs in industries using natural gas for processing and manufacturing.

Insulation can also help hold down heating bills. Installed over ceilings and in walls, insulation keeps heat in during the winter and keeps it out in the summer. The cost of installing insulation is usually recovered through lower heating bills in one to three years. Even greater savings are experienced in homes with air conditioning.

DP&L customers desiring information on insulation are being asked to get in touch with the company's consumer services department. A company representative will then offer information on levels of installation, contractors, available financing, and approximately savings.

Police Specialist William Robinson (background) and jailer-dispatcher Benny Bayes didn't have time to talk back to you even if you did pause to talk to them while they were working in the alley next to the police station doing such things as trimming this door to size. New regulations creating hard times for businesses

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — These are difficult times in which to be doing business. The guidelines seem to have become fuzzed. Some of the old institutions seem unable to adapt to the new requirements.

New regulations are proposed or imposed almost daily, it seems, and while that means jobs for the lawyers it means uncertainty for those who run businesses. And uncertainty stops planning dead in its tracks.

Pension fund administrators are wary of making investments because of the personal legal liabilities written into the Employment Retirement Income Act of 1974. Wariness results in hesitancy rather than aggressiveness.

Nobody seems to have suggested it so far, but there is some chance that disgruntled stockholders in some of the big New York City banks might demand to know why money was lent to the city at less than prime rate.

Isn't the prime supposed to go only to the most credit-worthy customers? Why, therefore, they might ask, was subprime offered to a municipality whose credit standing is suspect?

A related observation is made by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the government watchdog over investment vehicles. It is considering action, never attempted before, against offending municipalities.

A.A. Sommer Jr., an SEC commissioner, told a meeting of the American Bar Association in Montreal last weekend that his group might act against cities that sell securities without disclosing their full financial condition.

Sommer's reference was made in regard to New York City having sold bonds while failing to disclose that it had huge "hidden" deficits, but his remarks clearly were intended to apply to other municipalities too.

The plight of the cities put the big institutions in a dilemma. They have a vested interest in keeping the cities from collapsing, but they have a responsibility to their investors too. And there are no guidelines to help.

In the board room of corporations there are insecurities too. Once these directors' meetings were almost social affairs, but now the individual directors must beware of suits should they not protect the stockholder's interests.

Down on Wall Street there are problems too, one of them being the cosmic transition to a great central marketplace, a change that has been evolving slowly and with considerable resistance.

Identities are being lost there. The government wants more cooperation among the various exchanges, which heretofore have traded their own private lists of stocks. Wouldn't it be better if there were national markets instead?

That's what they're supposed to be moving toward, but there are some problems along the way. The government also wants to break monopolistic pricing and pit brokers against each other in order to lower commissions.

This has resulted in the demise of some firms which simply could not compete.

Crosby fills vacancy

First National Bank selects new director

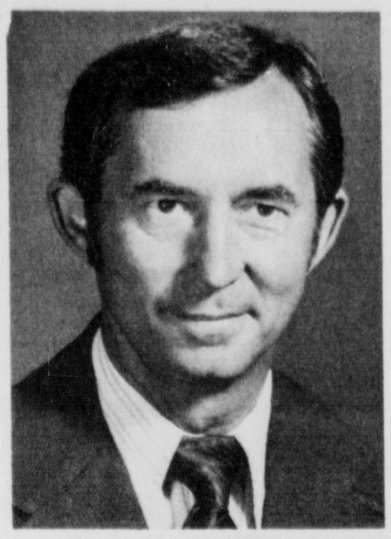

Paul Crosby, 8 Hali Drive, a Washington C.H. businessman and civic leader, has been appointed to the board of directors of the First National Bank of Washington C.H.

Announcement of Crosby's appointment was made today by Glenn R. Hemsworth, president of the First National Bank, following the regular monthly board of directors meeting.

The board action was taken to fill the vacancy created by the recent death of Lowell M. (Pete) Hayes, who had served as a director of the First National Bank for 28 years.

Crosby is a native of Paulding County, where he graduated from Payne High School. After serving two years with the U.S. Navy, he furthered his education at Ohio Northern University, Ada, where he received a bachelor of science degree in education. He spent five years in the teaching profession before becoming affiliated with the Downtown Drug Co. He presently served as treasurer of the company.

Crosby is active in community affairs and is a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Washington C.H., where he has held a number of leadership duties. He is a past president of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, past president of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club and past president of the Washington C.H. Board of Education.

PAUL CROSBY

He is married to the former Sue Hayes, daughter of Mrs. Edith (Billie) Hayes and the late L.M. Hayes. The Crosbys have two children, Brad and Beth, both of whom are students at Ashland College.

Urge orientation for kindergarten

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Parents should start familiarizing their preschool children with what awaits them in September in order to avoid a tearful scene in front of the kindergarten door.

That's the recommendation of local teachers and educators who believe that a little preparation can alleviate a lot of problems and even give a child a healthy outlook toward education in later life.

Before school begins, parents should take their child to the school building to ease his sense of isolation caused by the size and unfamiliar surroundings of a building, according to Betsy Hall, an elementary school teacher.

"It also helps to point out some landmarks between home and school," Mrs. Hall said. "That gives a child a sense of where he is in relation to home.

Parents should also include in their comments some reference to the time period that the child will be spending in school.

"The time element bothers some children," Mrs. Hall continued. "They don't know how long they will be in school. So parents can say something like: 'This time next week, you'll be in kindergarten and when you get home, we'll eat lunch.'"

Michael Landwehr, coordinator of psychological services for the Cincinnati school system, said a parent can ease the transition by forecasting what is likely to happen at school.

"A kid may be uptight about his shoe coming untied. All a parent needs to do is explain that 'I'm certain that the teacher will tie it if you ask her.'"

A child who had his mother's attention any time he sought it often is unable to understand why a teacher does not give him the same response, according to Virginia Wiebe, also an elementary school teacher.

"Parents should talk with their child about such things as taking turns with other children," Mrs. Wiebe said. "They should explain that a teacher has a lot of other boys and girls in a classroom and can't always listen to what the child has to say."

Landwehr also suggested that parents ask their child about his worries as the first day of school approaches.

"They should talk with him about what he can handle," he said. "Does he want someone to wait in a car until he gets into the building? Or does he want someone to take him to the school door or even to the classroom."

Japanese face tax on uranium

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — Ten electric utilities in Japan, where the atomic bomb was first used, have been assessed taxes on nuclear fuel they have stored here, where the bomb was developed.

The 10 utilities have been assessed $9.2 million in personal property taxes on $320 million in nuclear power plant fuel. One of the utilities is in Horoshima, where the first atomic bomb was dropped in 1945 in World War II.

The 10 utilities are contesting the assessment, claiming that uranium—the basic raw material of nuclear energy—is not taxable.

'Service Above Self' motto exemplified

R-H reporter Rotary Club speaker

"Service Above Self" is not just an idle Rotary Club motto, it's a goal every Rotarian strives to achieve.

Members of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club learned of a classic example of "Service Above Self" during their regular weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Country Club.

Mark Thellmann, a reporter-photographer for the Record-Herald, related a recent experience with Rotarians in which he unselfishly lended a helping hand to a family of seven persons stranded in Washington C. H.

The 25-year-old Thellmann, a Record-Herald staffer for the past two years, housed and fed the family for two days and provided them with the necessary faith to continue on their way.

The family, en route to Maryland, were stranded in Washington C.H. without money, friends, food or transportation.

Before reaching Washington C.H., the family's car and all their possessions were stolen in Colorado and they decided to travel to Maryland to settle with relatives.

While housing the seven for a two-day period in his second-story apartment on S. Fayette Street, Thellmann published an article in the Coffee Break column of the newspaper asking for some assistance.

Thellmann said response he received from various members of the community was overwhelming.

Clean clothes, luggage and approximately $50 in cash were donated to the needy family. One Washington C.H. couple also agreed to provide the family with more comfortable sleeping accomodations on their rural farm.

Thellmann said the experience brought back many memories of the nine months he spent roaming around the country in his van following graduation in 1972 from the Ohio University schoool of journalism.

"The good you do always comes back to you," he said.

During the meeting, conducted by club president William E. Williams, three new members were accepted into the club.

The new members were Willis Geyer, sponsored by Fred Domenico, and Don Conley and Gale Helms, both sponsored by Howard Miller.

Williams announced that Rotary's district governor will make his official visit to the Washington C.H. club on Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Visiting Rotarians were Jerry Ardrey of London and Art Dick and Robert Montenaro, both of Mount Sterling. Guests were Dale Willis with David Ogan, Glenn Jedson with Jack Brennan and John Jenkins with Richard Whiteside.

4 receive vote cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The list of recipients of illegal campaign contributions from Ashland Oil, Inc., includes four Ohio politicians.

Documents filed by the company with the Securities and Exchange Commission showed the late U.S. Rep. Michael J. Kirwin of Youngstown received contributions totaling $60,000 in 1967, 1968 and 1969.

Kirwin died in 1970 at the age of 83.

The corporation listed a $3,000 contribution in 1967 to Gov. James A. Rhodes as a U.S. Senate candidate, although at that time he was just beginning his second four-year term as governor.

Contributions of $5,000 each were given to the two major 1970 gubernatorial candidates, Republican Roger Cloud and Democrat John J. Gilligan.

READY AND WAITING — Employes of the Sears Roebuck and Co. store in Washington C. H. are waiting for 6:30 p.m. to roll around. At that time, the new Sears facility will open to the public and host a grand opening celebration. Manager Ms. Shirley Fenter said the new store at the corner of Court and Hinde streets will be open until 9 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday this week only.

In location next to former site

Sears store opens tonight

Free prizes will highlight the grand opening of the new Sears Roebuck and Co. store at the corner of Court and Hinde streets Wednesday evening.

The new store is adjacent to Sears former location at 216 W. Court Street.

Ms. Shirley Fenter, store manager, said the retail outlet and catalog store will carry essentially the same items stocked in the past.

To celebrate the opening of the new facility, Sears will give away 10 table-top appliances Wednesday as door prizes. The drawing will take place at 8 p.m.

A grand prize drawing will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday. Those who register at the store before that time will be eligible to win a Sears Kenmore microwave oven. No purchse is necessary to be included in the drawings.

The regular store hours will be from 9:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. daily and until 8 p.m. on Friday. This week, however, the store will be open until 9 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Retail items stocked at the store include appliances, televisions, sewing machines, auto batteries and water heaters. A vast array of goods are available from the Sears catalog, and copies will be given away during the grand opening.

BOYLAN AND Cannon Electronics, Inc. purchsed an entire quarter block at the intersection of Court and Hinde streets, including the former Sears building. The property had been owned by the Washington Downtown Business Association whose lease with Sears expired May 31.

The electronics firm recently expanded its operations by opening an outlet in Columbus and had decided to relocate in the Sears building. Sears had sought another site in Washington C.H. and after lengthy negotiations agreed to lease the building to be built by Boylan and Cannon on the adjacent lot. Future plans call for an office building to be constructed on the former Carey Phillips residence which the electronics firm also purchased.

The parking area next to the new store can accommodate 24 automobiles. It will serve both Sears and the Boylan and Connon stores.

Remodeling of the former Sears store is expected to begin shortly, and should be completed in early October.

More blacks said needed as doctors

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The number of black doctors in the United States has not increased in five years, partly because young blacks are being driven away from medicine by economic pressures and prejudices, the National Medical Association says.

"It seems as though there are more dying than graduating medical school," said Dr. Edwin Shirley, a member of the Public Health Trust Board at Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Jasper Williams, president-elect of the NMA, a black doctors' organization, said the United States needs at least three times the 6,000 black practitioners it has now.

Dr. Alfred Fisher, executive director of the NMA, said the current black doctor-patient ratio in the United States is 1 to 5,000. The current white doctor-patient ratio is 1 to 750, Fisher said.

"I take a look around the hotel," said Williams, referring to the site of the NMA's 80th annual convention here. "Most of the doctors are old — they've been around a long time."

Even if a black has the ability to become a doctor, the average cost of $7,500 for medical school often is prohibitive, Williams said.

"It takes more time to pay back educational debts if you're poor to begin with," Williams said.

Indiana State Fair to open Thursday

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 1975 Indiana State Fair opens Thurday with a balloon race among the first day's highlights.

Sixteen balloons are entered, and pilots include world record holder Bob Sparks and Canadian national champion Larry Horack.

In Ohio's lottery

Over $10 million paid to winners

COLUMBUS — State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson's office has paid, to date, $10,455,700 to 3,860 major Ohio lottery prize winners and the state has appropriated another $21,375,000 for 138 winners of $30,000 or more, who receive their winnings in annual installments of $15,000.

Ferguson added that as of July 3, about 38,400 lottery prizes, including nine $15,000 prizes, valued at some $970,000 have gone unclaimed.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Okay, it's back to square one for British TV personality David Frost on which U.S. broadcasters will buy the film interviews he'll be doing with former president Nixon.

There was a published report this week that ABC News, which rejected a proposal to buy TV rights to Nixon's memoirs and interview him, now was believed negotiating with Frost for U.S. rights to his project.

Balderdash, said ABC News chief Bill Sheehan late Monday night. "We're not making a deal with Frost and we're not trying to," he said, adding he'd told Frost of ABC's policy of "not paying for news."

But for a while it looked like something was cooking when an ABC corporate spokesman, noting that Sheehan was on vacation and momentarily out of contact, said ABC couldn't confirm or deny the report.

He said Sheehan — who was taking an all-day examination for an instrument flying rating — was the only one in the entire American Broadcasting Company who could comment on the published report.

It seems a strange way to run a network, but Sheehan eventually was contacted, denied the report, and that was that.

So where does this leave Frost in American broadcasting?

Well, two TV outlets — public TV's National Public Affairs Center for Television and Television News, Inc., a commercial TV news service — say they may negotiate for Frost's interviews of Nixon.

CBS, stung by "checkbook journalism" charges after paying ex-Nixon aide H.R. Haldeman for interviews, rejected an offer made before the Frost deal to buy TV rights to Nixon's memoirs and interview him.

It cited a policy against buying "hard news" exclusives. But it might deal with Frost if, among other things, the hard news softens.

It works this way: Frost's interviews won't be released until after the November elections in 1976. But CBS could deal for the films if Nixon opens himself to thorough questioning by newsmen before the films air.

Under those conditions, CBS News chief Richard S. Salant says he might negotiate if Nixon earlier has "said practically everything he has to say on Watergate under questioning — which he's never done, not ever before a congressional committee.

"But if by the time of broadcast that's behind him and he's done it (talked with newsmen), then I suppose there's been a sufficient lapse of time and disclosure of facts to include it as legitimate among memoirs."

By that he meant he could negotiate for the films as presidential memoirs. But he says it also "depends on what they're talking about. And I want to know who's doing it and under what ground rules."

Before the Frost deal, NBC News was negotiating with Nixon's literary agent. It said it wasn't trying to buy a "hard news" exclusive — which its policies bar — but rather to get Nixon to elaborate on the memoirs he now is writing.

The talks ended when the agent invited others to negotiate.

Regarding any potential deal now with Frost, an NBC spokesman this week said. "We have had no direct conversations with him and none are planned."

The Declaration of Independence was signed by 56 persons.

Construction boom sparked by iron ore demand

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Increased demand for iron ore has spurred a construction boom in the Great Lakes shipping fleet and has enhanced Cleveland's role as an iron ore capital.

Shipping experts say that in the next seven years, more than one-half million tons of capacity will be added to the U.S. lake fleet with construction of eleven 1,000-foot ships that can unload themselves.

This tonnage on order may be only the tip of the iceberg.

The American Iron and Steel Institute forecasts that shipments of taconite (iron ore pellets), from the Lake Superior Mesabi and Marquette ranges will increase by 31 million tons a year by 1980.

Most of the ship construction is being done by Bay Shipbuilding Corp. of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and American Ship Building Co. of Lorain, a Cleveland suburb.

U.S. companies now have two 1,000-foot lake vessels in use, the largest that can pass through the 1,200-foot Poe lock at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. They are engaged mainly in upper lakes iron ore trade.

Bay Shipbuilding has orders for 1,000-footers to be handed over to Bethlehem Steel Corp. (March 1978 and February 1980), U. S. Steel Corp. (October 1978) and American Steamship Co. (May 1979).

American Ship is working on two 1,000-footers for Pickands Mather and Co. of Cleveland for 1977 and another for Hanna Mining Co. for 1978.

The larger ships are being built because use of small, straight-bulk ships no longer is economical because of operating costs that come with the increase in trade, shipping officials say.

Cleveland stands as the pulse center to the veins of iron that lead to the mouth of the Cuyahoga River.

The lakefront city is the headquarters for four major mining companies: Hanna, Pickands, Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. and Oglebay Norton Co.

Hanna is the fifth largest iron ore firm in the world in terms of shipments. The company has operations in the United States, Canada and Brazil. The company was founded in 1885 by Marcus A. Hanna, later a U.S. senator and president-maker. Last year the firm shipped 30.6 million gross tons of iron ore and had revenues of $272,226,952.

Cleveland became headquarters for the iron ore industry in the 19th century when it served as a port for iron ore shipments from the upper penninsula of Michigan and later from the Mesabi range.

Now, there are about 100,000 steelworkers in Ohio for whom iron ore shipments are vital.

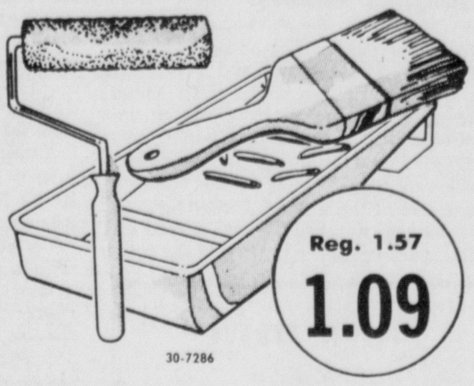

Robert R. Skinner, a financial analyst who writes a metals and mining industry newsletter for McDonald & Co., said Cleveland's iron ore houses continue to dominate the world iron ore scene, as they have since the industry began.

County gridders begin workouts

The Ohio High School Athletic Association has given its annual go ahead for prep grid teams to begin supervised workouts in preparation for the 1975 football season.

Miami Trace High School passed out equipment Tuesday evening so that the student athletes would be ready to go "first thing" this morning.

Panther coach Fred Zechman has 51 grid hopefulls out for Wednesday's early morning drills. The total includes 18 sophomores and ten lettermen from last year's South Central Ohio League co-champion squad.

Zechman and his staff opened practice at 7 a.m. this morning and his gridders will stay at the high school working out and going over plays until 4 p.m. this afternoon.

The Washington Blue Lions were also ready to go for the first allowed day of practice Wednesday morning.

Head Coach Maurice Pfeifer was scheduled to start workouts at 7:30 a.m. this morning. The early morning practice of the rigorus two-a-days is to run until 9:30 a.m., then the team returns at noon for another two-hour workout.

The real hitting in practice doesn't start until Monday as a required four-day acclimation period is required by the OHSAA.

Wednesday's and Thursday's practice for prep teams will be conducted without pads, then one day in pads is required before the hitting starts.

Pfeifer said his practice schedule would be changed in case of high temperatures. The alternate schedule will have the morning practice fun from 8-10 a.m. and the evening workout from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

Both Fayette County squads have been running through conditioning exercises since late July in hopes of having a well-conditioned team before the two-a-days began.

The two-a-day practices will continue until school starts September 2 with the Blue Lions and the Panthers hopefully ready for their respective season openers on the following weekend.

Springfield team wins Connie Mack tourney

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The host Springfield team won the East Central Regional Connie Mack baseball tournament Tuesday by defeating Cincinnati Midland 4-2 on a three-run fourth-inning homer by Dave Donohoe.

The team now advances to the Connie Mack World Series in Farmington, N.M., Aug. 15-20.

Springfield pitcher John Bault was presented the tournament Most Valuable Player award.

Reds finally outlast Cubs

CINCINNATI (AP)—Chicago Manager Jim Marshall shrugged, the Reds were bewildered, nobody was really happy.

Cincinnati spotted the Cubs four runs and had to come back twice before upending Chicago 12-8 in a free-swinging contest that saw eight pitchers and 34 base hits.

"The trouble," said Cubs Manager Jim Marshall after Chicago dropped the second of a two-game series, "is there isn't an out on that team (the Reds)."

"Everybody knocks their pitchers, but I like what I saw."

"Sure, we got a lot of hits tonight. Our club is coming along and we're building for the future."

Chicago's Jose Cardinal hammered in four runs and John Madlock, the National League's leading hitter, went four-for-five.

"I couldn't believe it," said a wide-eyed Tony Perez of Cincinnati. He had three runs batted in for the night including a two-run double in the sixth that ultimately won the game. "They have a four-run lead and we won the game.

"It seems like we hit everything everybody threw. It was noisy out there tonight."

Cincinnati outhit Chicago 18-16.

"Chicago is a good club," said Reds leading hitter Pete Rose, who knows about such things.

"It's nicer being ahead and have the pressure on the other guys to catch you," said Madlock, who hopes to be the Cubs' first batting champion since Billy Williams in 1972 and Phil Cavarreta in 1955.

"I don't keep track on everyone else this early. That's what you do in September, but you have to get your hits this month because you play fewer games in September," said Madlock.

Reds' starter Pat Darcy was bombed for four runs by the Cubs in the first inning and was chased with only one out.

Joe Morgan batted in a run for Cincinnati in the latter half of the inning then the Reds tied it in the third with a five-run uprising and took the lead at 8-6 on a Tom Dettore balk in the fourth.

Undaunted, Chicago's Jose Cardinal doubled home two more runs in the sixth and the Reds took the lead for good in the bottom of the sixth and scored their final run in the eighth.

"I'm just glad to get out of this town," said a tired Cubs pitcher Rick Reuschel, after finishing up the game. He started against Cincinnati Monday night.

Cincinnati maintained its 15½-game lead over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the Western Division of the National League.

Both the Reds and Cubs are idle today.

Dodgers 7, Phillies 6

Jimmy Wynn opened the Los Angeles 10th with a single off Gene Garber, who had allowed only one hit and struck out six since coming on in the sixth. Steve Garvey sacrificed and, after an intentional walk to Ron Cey, Yeager, who singled a run home in the Dodgers' three-run first, walloped his seventh home run of the season. Philadelphia's Jay Johnstone hit a two-run homer off Mike Marshall in the bottom of the 10th.

Cardinals 5, Astros 4

Ted Simmons hit a two-run homer, Lou Brock delivered a two-run single and rookie John Denny singled home what turned out to be the winning run while notching his seventh pitching triumph.

Mets 9, Padres 4

Tom Seaver became the NL's second 16-game winner and Ed Kranepool ignited a four-run rally in the third inning with a run-scoring double. Seaver lost his shutout bid in the seventh on Randy Hundley's two-run homer.

Giants 5, Expos 2

Bobby Murcer ripped a tiebreaking two-run double in the 11th inning after Gary Thomasson's double and a single by Derrel Thomas. Murcer was tagged out when he overran second base but Gary Matthews walked and scored on a double by Willie Montanez. The Giants tied the score with two out in the ninth on a single by Thomas, a walk to Murcer and a single by Matthews.

New mile mark set by Walker

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — John Walker runs in nobody's shadow anymore.

After two years of chasing Filbert Bayi, Walker put it all together in what he described as "a perfect race" and shattered one of sport's most revered records, running the mile in 3 minutes, 49.4 seconds at the Goteborg Games international track and field meet Tuesday night.

"I feel extremely happy — I still can't believe I've broken the record," said Walker, a 23-year-old New Zealander who burst onto the international track scene just two years ago.

"I didn't believe I had a chance. I've been thinking it over and over the last few days — how to run, how to beat it (the record). Now I feel I couldn't have run a more perfect race."

Running under ideal conditions, Walker took the lead on the third lap and sped away from the field to become the first man in history to break 3:50 for the mile. He shaved 1.6 seconds off the world record of 3:51.0, set by Bayi in Kingston, Jamaica May 17. The record came before a crowd estimated at 9,000 at Slottskogsvallen Stadium.

Walker, the only truly topflight miler in the field, finished nearly six seconds ahead of Ken Hall of Australia, who was clocked in 3:55.2. Graeme Crouch of Australia placed third in 3:56.4 and Gunnar Ekman of Sweden was fourth in 4:01.5. The temperature was 77 degrees when the race began, at 7:50 p.m. local time.

Sports Mart

The Community Education sponsored City Tennis Tournament finished up its final division match Monday as Greg Gilmore took a 6-4, 6-4 win over Stuart Foster for the championship in the Boys' 18-under division.

Gilmore, who will be a sophomore at Washington Senior High School, won all three of his matches without dropping a set while Foster, a junior at Miami Trace, lost only four games in four sets until the final match.

MIAMI TRACE volleyball coach Rita Krammes is asking all Trace high school girls interested in playing on this year's squad to report dressed and ready for workout at the school gym Monday at 10:30 a.m.

Coach Krammes is entering her first season as a Miami Trace mentor.

She hopes to have the Trace girls ready for the September 22 league opener.

South Central Ohio League play for girls begins its first season this fall with volleyball, track, basketball and softball scheduled.

FRED BRISKER, who coached the Greenfield McClain Tigers to their best grid season in seven years last season, will be keying towards the South Central Ohio League crown as prep football practices open in Ohio this week.

A field of 14 lettermen from last year's 6-4 squad are returning including four all-league choices.

Chuck Conley, a 6'2", 240-pounder, will anchor both the offensive and defensive lines while the league's leading passer, Kevin Kensinger, will return as the Tiger's signal caller.

Brisker lists size and depth as his major pre-season concerns with experience and speed as the team's assets.

The McClain mentor rates Circleville as the pre-season favorite followed by Washington and Miami Trace.

The Tigers will host the Blue Lions October 10 for Homecoming festivities and the Panthers will visit Greenfield October 31.

THE OHIO AMERICAN Legion baseball champions from Worthington feature Larry Korn in leftfield. He is the son of Dr. Dick Korn formerly of Washington C. H.

The elder Korn was quite an athlete in Court House lettering in basketball and baseball for the Blue Lions. He also won two Washington Country Club senior golf championships and one junior crown.

Not to be outdone by his father's past accomplishments young Larry lettered in both baseball and football at Worthington High School and he was awarded a full four-year baseball scholarship to the University of Kentucky this fall.

Young Korn will enroll as a pre-Medical student.

TWENTY-TWO FORMER Blue Lion gridders grace the Washington Senior High School all-decade team. The top players during the last ten grid campaigns are featured on the dream team.

The players were chosen by head coach Maurice Pfeifer and the rest of the Blue Lion staff earlier this summer.

Letters have been sent commending the former prep standouts on their selection.

The 22-man squad will be featured in the Record-Herald sports section later this month.

SEASON RESERVED tickets for the 1975 Miami Trace Panther football season will be placed on sale Aug. 19 and 21 and Aug. 26 and 28.

Ticket manager Glenn Marchal said Miami Trace football fans, who have held season tickets in past seasons, can purchase this year's tickets from 4 until 6 p.m. Aug. 19 and 21 at the high school office. Persons who have not held tickets in the past can purchase them from 4 until 6 p.m. Aug. 26 and 28.

The tickets are priced at $13 apiece. The Panther football team will play five home games this fall.

THE JEFF MERCHANTS Babe Ruth team will travel to Springfield's Municipal Stadium for tournament play at 6 p.m. Thursday.

The tournament is for 13-14 year-olds and the Merchants drew Northridge for their first game in the double-elimination baseball tourney.

Colonial wins Xenia meet

Colonial defeated Springfield Commercial Coating, Kingery Roofing from Washington C.H., Beaver Value from Xenia, Dayton W.P.A.B. and Kingery Roofing again in the finals.

Clyde Woodrow and Randy Merriman shared the "Most Valuable Player" award.

Merriman batted a fine .700 for the tourney, but teammate Keith Guthrie hit for a .761 average to lead the team.

Sid Woodrow, Jack Merriman, Steve Dawson and Mike Henry all hit well above .500 for the tourney.

Bengals trim 3

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP)— The Cincinnati Bengals have trimmed three rookies to get their roster down to 59 players.

The Bengals Tuesday asked waivers on Isaac Jackson, Matt Means and Ron Rosenberg.

Jackson, a running back, was a free agent from Kansas State. Means, a wide receiver, was a free agent from Central Michigan.

Nero vistits Scioto Downs Thursday

Nero comes to Scioto

COLUMBUS — "Superstar" Nero, already considered by many as the "greatest harness horse of all times", will make the first of two scheduled appearances this year at Scioto Downs Thursday night in the $12,500 Scarlet and Gray Cup three-year-old pace.

Nero arrived at Scioto Downs Sunday night fresh and frisky after his two-heat victory in the $100,000 Adios Pace at The Meadows near Pittsburgh.

With Joe O'Brien in the sulky, the fantastic son of Meadow Skipper avenged his only loss this year by Whata Baron. After taking the first heat in 1:58.3, Nero buried Whata Baron with a sensational mile in 1:57. 3 in the race-off.

Only four horses will challenge Nero in the Scarlet & Gray Cup Thursday night. Bruce Riegle will take Omaha Kid with a mark of 2:00.3; Dick Brandt his Lincoln's Leader, the swift son of Columbia George, owned by Barton Holl of Logan; Frank Todd, Sr., has the Sampson Direct colt, Millstone ready for action; and co-owner Howard Coburn has the Knight Dream colt, Knight Again. With a lifetime mark of 2:01.4, Knight Again was third to J.H. Baron the conquerer of Alert Bret earlier this year, clocked in 2:00.3.

The subject of national attention all year long, Nero has had millions of words describing his exploits during fourteen victories in fifteen starts.

Co-owner Jim Crane wanted to get in the horse business in a big way three years ago, and placed an ad in the Wall Street Journal seeking partners.

Rene Dervaes and Jack Massau both of Pennsylvania answered the ad, and a pool of $50,000 was put up to start their venture. When Crane only had to pay $20,000 for Nero, his partners complained, "why didn't you buy us a good one?"

During two years of racing, Nero has won 27 of 29 starts and banked over $337,000 in earnings. This year, the trio that owns Nero has already turned down $500,000 for just ten per cent ownership of the superstar. That figures out to an estimated new worth of $5 million.

It was at Scioto Downs last year, that Nero posted his first miracle mile. Jim Crane entered Nero in a preferred pace. Racing along in fourth position at the three quarter pole, Nero exploded out and came the final quarter in :29.1, hitting the wire in 1:59 1-5. It was the season record for juvenile pacers over a five-eighths of a mile track, and is still the track pacing record for two-year-olds.

Nero has only been defeated twice in his career. Last year at Lexington, Kentucky when he was forced into the rail by Alert Bret, and this year by Whata Baron after a three-week layoff.

Like any legendary figure in any sport, threre are thousands of stories circulating about the "Emperor". One story that had a near fatal ending happened last year when Nero was ready to go in the Fox Stake at Indianapolis. Someone slipped into his stall and gave him a near-fatal dose of drugs. Since that time, Nero is uner 24-hour guard within his glass covered stall.

Nero began the 1975 season with a flourish on May 9, when he qualified at Brandywine Raceway in 2:01.3, just jogging. He won the Cane at Yonkers Raceway in 1:58.4, the first leg of the Triple Crown of Pacing. He won the American National in Chicago in 1:58.1. He took the Gaines Memorial at Vernon Downs in straight heats of 1:56.4, back in 1:56.3, and last week added his thirteenth and fourteenth victories with the back-to-back wins in the Adios in 1:58.3 and 1:57.3.

The Role of the Para-Medic

I went to the emergency room of a hospital to be treated for a burn on my hand. It's bad enough to be treated by an intern, but they assigned someone who was not even a doctor to take care of me.

Mrs. D. L. T., Del.

Dear Mrs. T.:

Let me immediately remind you of the obvious fallacy in your letter when you say that it is "bad enough to be treated by an intern."

An intern in a hospital is a full-fledged doctor who has earned the degree of M.D. after years of hard work and medical training.

Interns are qualified to engage in private practice, but have chosen to continue advanced studies in a hospital for more thorough training.

All assignments given to them by their superiors can be carried out by them with accuracy and with good judgment. Special problems that arise are solved in consultation with staff members of greater experience.

The demands of modern medicine are so great that certain routine responsibilities that are time-consuming are now being assigned to very well-trained personnel known as "para-medical" assistants. These "para-medics" do not have the M.D. degree, but have undergone rigorous training with very special supervision.

Before they are permitted to treat patients their qualifications are well established. Of course, they, too, perform their duties under the jurisdiction of doctors. Whenever any medical situation arises that specifically demands the attention of a doctor, one is always available.

The value of para-medics has long been known on the battlefield. They have been responsible for emergency treatment that has saved thousands of lives.

The administering of routine injections, the dressing of wounds, the preparation for surgery, and the myriad time-consuming details that would normally take up the busy time of doctors and nurses are now safely and competently handled by the para-medical personnel.

Ongoing courses in medical education allow the para-medics to "specialize" in various fields of medicine. Not only emergency rooms are benefiting from the para-medics, but doctors, too, in their private practices are employing them in an effort to be relieved of specific details. In this way, the doctor can better utilize his time in helping his patients.

Para-medics are a valuable adjunct in modern medicine.

Dear Mr. Becker: This deal was played in the expert game at New York City's most prestigious bridge club. As you undoubtedly know, the bridge played there is extremely serious, very high-level, and even grim at times. No quarter is ever asked for or given.

South was a player who had been winning just about everything in sight both in national and regional tournaments. This of course gave him a feeling of absolute superiority, and because his partner was just a plain, ordinary, run-of-the-mill player (and even less than that in South's eyes) it was perhaps understandable that South went in for some fancy shenanigans, as follows, to wit:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
1 ♠ (!)	Pass	4 NT	Pass
6 ♣	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
6 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

West led the ten of spades, dummy's king losing to the ace, and back came the jack of spades. West took the queen and cashed the 9-8, so that South lost 300 points instead of gaining the 1,730 points in his side could have scored.

For once the schmo in the North seat was able to lecture his famous partner on the subject of crazy bids, namely, that spade monstrosity on Round 2. And, for once, South was silent. North ran out of steam after a while, the East-West pair scored a game, and that was the end of the incident until...

"Pardon me," said one of the kibitzers to South, and there was enough oil in his voice to light all the lamps in China, "but on that slam hand — is it too late now to review the bidding?"

South stared at him, glared at him, and then suddenly clapped a hand to his forehead, emitting a cry of anguish as he realized that West instead of East had made the opening lead! Cordially yours, John A. Nonymous.

By two unidentified assailants

Local man knocked unconscious

A Washington C. H. man was beaten over the head with an unknown object and knocked unconscious by two unidentified assailants late Tuesday.

Washington C. H. police officers reported Dennis Clay, 28, of 636 Willabar Drive, heard voices on his backporch at 11:14 p.m. Tuesday. Clay turned on an outside light and noticed a man wearing a dark ski mask standing near his motorcycle. Clay approached the unidentified man who pushed the motorcycle over and fled to the rear of Clay's residence. Clay pursued and was knocked unconscious by a second man hiding near the rear corner of the house.

Police Sgt. Luther Anderson transported Clay to Fayette Memorial Hospital where he was treated for facial injuries and released. His glasses were also broken by the blow.

Previous to last night's incident, Clay had heard a noise in his garage at 11:13 p.m. Sunday and had seen three men, two white and one black, wheeling his Honda motorcycle down McArthur Way. He pursued the men who dropped the bike and fled. Clay caught up with one of them and struck him with a baseball bat he was carrying, knocking him to the ground. He went after the others and lost them and then returned to the man he had felled who was also missing.

Clay later received an anonymous phone call after the first incident which stated he had injured a friend and they "would get even." City police are continuing their investigation of the assault and attempted theft.

Two stolen vehicles recovered by deputy

A stolen motorcycle and a stolen auto have been recovered by Fayette County Sheriff's Deputy Charles Wise, the sheriff's department reported today along with an incident of child neglect, a lost license plate and a larceny. Washington C.H. police reported a rash of property destruction in the 800 block of N. North Street and other incidents involving property destruction on Paint and Rawlings streets.

A 1974 Honda XL-100, stolen June 22 from Gatlinburg, Tenn., was recovered in the Fishback Road vicinity by Sheriff's Deputy Charles Wise and persons fishing in the area Aug. 3. Deputy Wise reported the gas tank damaged. Deputy Wise also recovered a 1969 model Plymouth stolen from Kettering, Aug. 8 in a wooded area half a mile from Pleasantview Road. The recovery was made at 5:23 p.m. Tuesday and heavy damage to the top and interior was reported. Deputy Wise is continuing his investigation of both vehicles.

Two Fayette County children, ages 10 and 12, were taken to the Fayette County Children's Home at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday after being neglected by their parents whose whereabouts are unknown. Sheriff's deputies did not report how long the children had been left alone.

A citizens band radio valued at $219 belonging to Harold W. Barnes Jr., Dry Ridge, Ky., was stolen from his semi-truck between 3 a.m. and 3:30 a.m. Wednesday while the truck was parked at Garner's Union 76 Truck Stop, I-71 and U.S. 35. Sheriff's deputies also reported Barnes antenna valued at $35 had been removed, along with a black case with chrome trim.

A Missouri license plate was found in Edith Haines' 3399 U.S. 35-W driveway at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday. Deputies announced the number as being 88-158. They are seeking the owner.

Three autos owned by persons residing in the 800 block of N. North Street were damaged by vandals around 1:30 p a.m. Wednesday. Washington C.H. police stated the two rear tires were slit on a 1969 model Ford belonging to Curtis Smith, parked at the rear of his 824 N. North St. residence; two tires on the driver's side of a 1973 model Plymouth belonging to Roscoe VanDyne were slit while the auto was parked under a carport at the rear of his 830 N. North Street residence and the two tires on the passenger side of a 1974 Pinto belonging to William McKenzie were slit while the auto was parked at his 818 N. North St. residence.

City police also reported the spare tire cover slit on a 1973 model Ford van parked at the Richard Kimmett residence, 526 Rawlings St., early Wednesday morning. Tomatoes were also squashed on the van.

A brick was hurled through the front window of the Donald E. Maddux residence, 212 E. Paint St., at 4:55 a.m. Wednesday. Police also reported the air released from a tire on Maddux's car.

Nathaniel Bowditch was an American mathematician (1773-1883) whose book on navigation enabled the American Merchant Marine to outsail all competitors.

Metzenbaum eyes race

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum has indicated that he is nearing a decision to make his third attempt at a seat in Congress.

"It presently appears that I will be a candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1976," Metzenbaum said Tuesday in discussing the possibility of his appearing on the ballot next year.

He cautioned that he has not formally announced his future intentions, but added "I'm satisfied that the support is there among political leaders, labor leaders and especially among the people in the streets. "If that continues to be the case, I'm prepared to serve."

In 1970, Metzenbaum defeated John Glenn in the Democratic primary, only to be beaten by Sen. Robert A. Taft Jr, R-Ohio, whose term is up in 1976.

Former Gov. John J. Gillian appointed him to the Senate in December 1973 to fill the unexpired term of William Saxbe, who resigned to become U.S. Attorney General, but he was defeated in the 1974 Democra tic primary by Glenn.

Mishap checked

A pickup truck belonging to Richard D. Smalley, 43, New Holland, backed into a car belonging to Fred D. Redman, 1330 Grace St., at 10:15 a.m. Tuesday in front of the First National Bank on Main Street.

Washington C. H. police reported no injury nor citations issued.

Cornbread burns

What was reported as a fire to Washington C. H. firemen at 2:33 p.m. Tuesday turned out to be a rather well-done piece of cornbread.

Firemen reported they received a call from Everett Milstead, 13 Colonial Court, that his residence, owned by Jess Gilmore, was filled with smoke. Milstead had put a piece of cornbread in a small pie tin and placed it in a toaster oven to heat and then left his home. Firemen investigated, discovered the charred piece of cornbread and reported no fire.

THE FUN SUMMER THAT GOT AWAY — Undaunted by the fact the opening of school is close at their heels, Todd English (foreground) and Jeff Mescher (background) are sinking their hooks into what's left of summertime and trying not to let it slip away. The boys were photographed Tuesday evening fishing in Paint Creek near the Dayton Avenue bridge. The evening's catch was mostly Rock Bass but the boys admitted to bringing in some fine carp the night before which they cleaned and are saving for a winter's evening meal before it's time to sit inside in front of the television set and get the homework done.

PUCO meets with Senate panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Fresh from a bout with consumers, the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio meets today with a special legislative committee investigating the regulation of utility rates.

The PUCO commissioners held a give-and-take discussion Tuesday with a half dozen consumer representatives and received an endorsement for the use of utility companies' original costs as the basis for setting rates.

Rates are currently calculated through a complex Reproduction Cost New (RCN) formula, applying current market prices, less depreciation, to a company's initial investment in land, facilities and equipment.

The formula results in inflationary rate increases, consumer confusion and potential windfall profits for companies, according to commissioners David Sweet and Sally Bloomfield.

Consumer advocates agreed that the RCN formula should be eliminated, but at the same time made it clear they were dissatisfied with PUCO's performance in regulating major gas, electric and telephone companies.

"We don't feel the PUCO has done a good job of regulating the utilities," Patrick Nelson of the Energy Consumers League of Springfield said.

The commission is also faced with an internal division which surfaced once again at the meeting.

Chairman C. Luther Heckman, while not defending the RCN formula, has refrained from joining Sweet and Bloomfield in calling for its repeal.

Heckman said rates should be based on the current true value of utility property, but added: "I don't think any of the rate bases answer all of the problems."

Sweet contended use of original cost figures would save consumers a minimum of $152 million in yearly rate payments.

The Joint Select Committee on Energy is expected to discuss rate bases and the fuel adjustment clause with the PUCO commissioners at today's meeting.

PUCO officials believe they were treated with undue harshness by the House-Senate committee in an interim report last month. The report called for tighter controls over fuel adjustments by which utilities pass on increased costs to consumers.

Hoffa witnesses may not help

DETROIT (AP) — A federal prosecutor says several witnesses probably will take the Fifth Amendment when he opens a grand jury probe into the disappearance of ex-Teamsters union boss Jimmy Hoffa.

U.S. Atty. Ralph Guy said federal authorities are still exploring all possibilities — including intentional flight — in the disappearance of Hoffa two weeks ago.

"There is no angle we can rule out," he said.

Guy had said he hoped to issue subpoenas as early as today. But Tuesday he said it would take a couple of weeks for his staff to review the results of hundreds of FBI interviews.

Hoffa, 62, was last seen July 30 waiting outside a restaurant in suburban Bloomfield Township. The FBI says it has failed to find any trace of him and does not know if he was kidnaped or killed.

James P. Hoffa, Hoffa's son, repeated on Tuesday his belief that an unnamed man witnessed the abduction of his father — "I've talked to the eyewitness. I've seen him and I believe him."

The FBI says the man's story did not hold up under questioning.

Guy declined to say who would be called to testify before the grand jury. He said some witnesses could be expected to decline to testify on the grounds of self-incrimination.

"It wouldn't surprise me if several people take the Fifth Amendment since some of them have already said publicly that they would," he said.

Federal prosecutors could counter by granting witnesses immunity from prosecution, then forcing them to testify under threat of contempt sentences. But they may be reluctant to grant immunity to some of the reputed organized crime figures likely to be called.

Guy said the grand jury would be used as a tool to learn about Hoffa's fate from uncooperative witnesses, but also could lead to indictments if the case is solved.

Sources said reputed Detroit Mafia kingpin Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone would be among those subpoenaed.

Hoffa reportedly had an appointment with Giacalone, former Teamster vice president Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano of Union City, N.J., and reputed Detroit mob figure Leonard Schultz at the restaurant the day he vanished. All three denied such a meeting was planned.

Also expected to be called before the grand jury is Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien, Hoffa's former body guard and foster son, who has been identified by sources as a focal point in the investigation.

LAW ENFORCEMENT officials are concerned with the failure by Ohio motorists to reach a complete stop prior to turning right on a traffic control signal during a red indication, according to Mrs. Fred Shoop, manager of the Fayette County Automobile Club. . .

"Too often drivers have a tendency to roll through the intersection without bringing their autos to a complete stop. This is an illegal act, making offenders subject to arrest," Mrs. Shoop said.

Generally, Ohioans have handled the new right turn on red law well, Mrs. Shoop believes. . . She said that there have been relatively few accidents across the state that can be directly attributed to driver irresponsibility concerning the new law. . .

As a word of caution, Mrs. Shoop listed four major conditions a motorist must observe after coming to a complete stop at an intersection. . . They are:

—First determine if turning on red is prohibited. . . Look for a sign bearing the words "No Turn on Red" near the traffic signal;

—If turning on red is permitted, look to the left to observe oncoming traffic. . . The oncoming traffic has the right of way;

—Look across the intersection and see if facing traffic may be subject to a left turn green arrow control. . . If so, it has the right of way and drivers must yield to it; and —Watch for pedestrians crossing the intersection in crosswalks. . .They, too, have the right of way. . .

Once these driver responsibilities are completed, it is safe for drivers to make a right turn on red, the AAA club manager said. . .

The AAA has prepared a brochure outlining various aspects of the new Ohio right turn on red law. . . If drivers have questions concerning Ohio's newest traffic law, they should stop in the AAA club office at 209 E. Market St. for a free copy. . .

THERE IS STILL time to reserve a time slot from 10 a.m. through 4 p.m. Thursday at Grace Methodist Church to give blood. . .

Betty Korn, Fayette County Red Cross executive secretary of the chapter, reports Fayette County during 1974 donated 863 pints of blood and used 911 pints. . .Outside of making up for the 48 pint deficit, the county must meet the 160-pint quota with each blood drive to ensure free blood for all Fayette Countians should they need it. . .According to Mrs. Korn's 1974 figures, we've been using it and can't expect other areas to continue pulling us through deficits. . .

Forty to 50 additional donors are needed Thursday to make the drive a success. . .Give 335-3101 a call and make your reservation now. . . Welcome Wagon will provide free babysitting and a free hot meal will be served after donating. . .It's easy, painless and most of all rewarding. . .Call now. . .

Computer security provided in renovation

Remodeling project completed by police

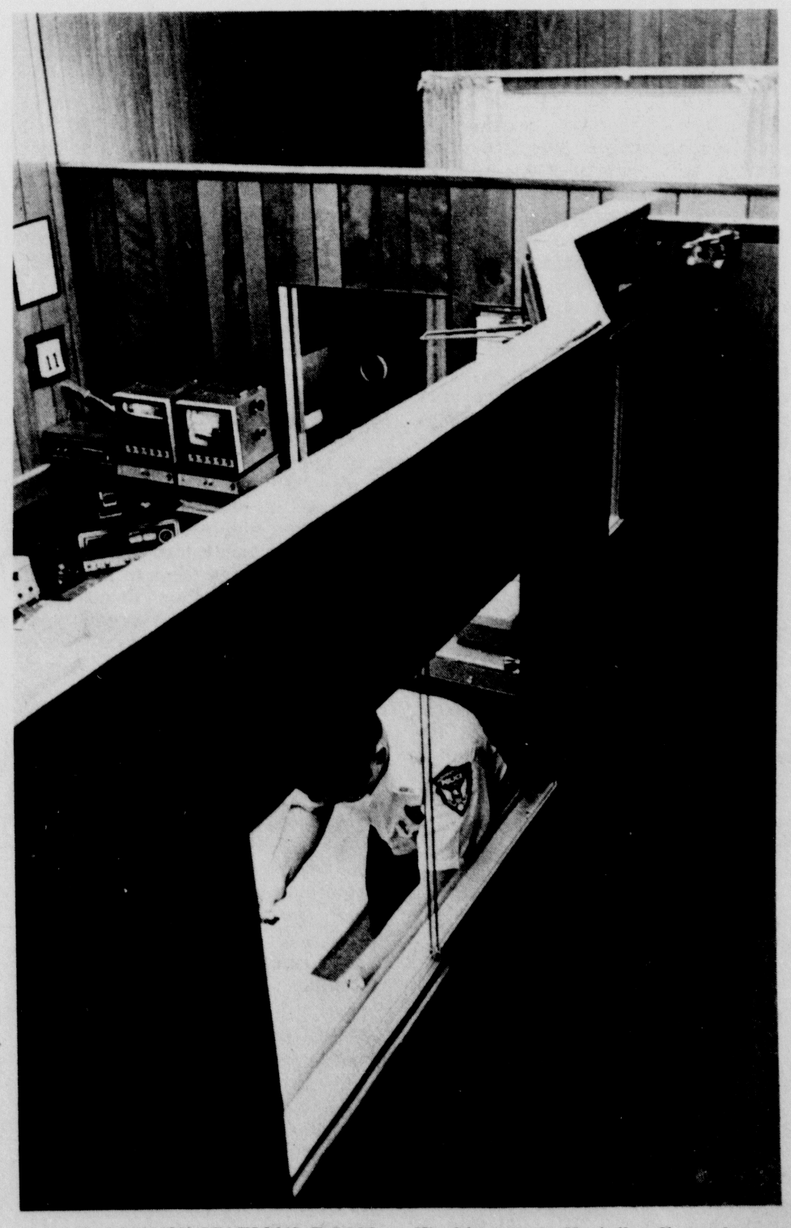

BY MARK THELLMANN

It hasn't been too long since the Washington C. H. Police Department was remodeled to accommodate its new, modern jail facilities and yet during the previous two weeks the front portion of police headquarters on N. Fayette Street went through still another renovation project.

Police Chief Rodman Scott explained the change in internal architecture was brought about for a variety of reasons but the most important one was because the Ohio Criminal Justice Information System (CJIS) has required all law enforcement departments to provide the necessary security for their computer information systems. The new construction has now sheltered the system, resembling an overgrown electric typewriter, in a room by itself. It can be seen through a glass window, but the public and other unauthorized persons are prohibited to be near it.

For those unfamiliar with this new satellite terminal called CJIS, it is necessary to go back to 1968 and trace the evolution of the law enforcement computer systems. This was the year the Ohio Highway Patrol implemented the Law Enforcement Automated Data System commonly known as LEADS. Then in 1972 the Ohio Attorney General's Bureau on Criminal Identification and Investigation (BCI) implemented the Automated Criminal Record System (ACRS). The original LEADS has been enhanced and upgraded to its current level of service, while ACRS has become the nucleus for the OBTS-CCH subsystem. The UCR and MASS subsystems are to be developed in late 1975. Back in 1967 the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) developed the National Crime Information Center (NCIC), which provides all 50 states with a computerized file of warrants and wanted persons, as well as stolen articles and property files. In 1971, Computerized Criminal History (CCH) was added to the NCIC capability.

Judge bars man's protest of truck

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Steve Strickland is in a pickle because a judge won't allow his truck on any Nevada road until he removes lemons and signs painted on the vehicle to protest defects.

Strickland says he needs the truck in his carpentry work, but won't remove the painted lemons or stenciled list of 46 alleged flaws until he gets justice.

"As Americans we are so complacent that we trade off a bad vehicle and give up trying to get it fixed. That doesn't help anyone because the manufacturers just keep turning out piles of junk," Strickland said in an interview Tuesday.

Strickland wants his 1973 International truck — his only mode of transportation — replaced with another make of truck, and he wants to overturn the Carson District Court judge's order that bars him from operating the vehicle anywhere in the state.

Judge Frank Gregory ruled last November that Strickland's protest constituted "almost an attempt at extortion" because he vowed to continue his one-man campaign until he got his way, even though the auto dealer's business would be damaged.

"Any consumer should have the right to tell the public of problems with a product, and to let Gregory's order go unchallenged would be unjust," said Strickland, 37, of nearby South Lake Tahoe, Calif.

Strickland has parked his $4,500 truck in front of Al Gasper's auto lot here, displayed it at recreational vehicle shows and ran newspaper advertisements that read, "Before you buy a new truck or pickup, come and see my factory ordered headache."

Drugging of South Viets blasted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Air Force base commander in Thailand was relieved of his position after 13 protesting Vietnamese refugees were drugged and put aboard the last plane for Guam.

Officials said Col. Harrold R. Austin exceeded his authority. Austin was reassigned from command of the key Utapao base to 15th Air Force headquarters at March Air Force Base, Calif.

There was no immediate information on how long after the May 1 drugging incident Austin was removed from his Utapao command by Gen. Louis L. Wilson Jr., Air Force chief in the Pacific.

The Air Force confirmed the drugging episode Tuesday, hours after Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., chairman of the House immigration subcommittee, demanded an explanation of what he called "a horrible thing for our country."

But the Air Force denied Eilberg's allegation that the refugees, who wanted to return home, were beaten. "No physical force was used," it said.

The official Air Force explanation strongly suggested the decision to drug the 13 refugees with sodium pentathol, a sedative, and thorazine, a tranquilizer, was made because of pressure from Thai officials to remove South Vietnamese from their country quickly.

"The Thai officials were adamant that they leave Thailand immediately, the Air Force said.

About 3,000 South Vietnamese flew to Thailand on Vietnamese planes as their country was being overrun by Communist forces.

The Air Force recalled that the United States sent C141 transport planes to carry the Vietnamese refugees from Thailand after the Thais asserted that the Vietnamese could not remain.

"On May 1, when South Vietnam had fallen and the last C141 was leaving for Guam, a group of 13 Vietnamese refused to go," the Air Force statement said.

"They said that when they boarded the aircraft in Vietnam, their Vienamese flight crews had told them that their destination was the Delta region of Vietnam.

"Near hysteria, they demanded to be returned to Vietnam and threatened suicide if they were not returned immediately."

As the Air Force told the story, a decision by U.S. and Thai officials on the scene to sedate the Vietnamese and take them to Guam was made after hours of fruitless efforts to persuade the 13 "that there were no means to take them back."

It said the drugs were administered by U.S. medical personnel at Utapao and that an Air Force nurse was aboard the flight.

"No ill effects were noted," the Air Force said.

An Air Force spokesman said the 13 are still on Guam awaiting repatriation, but an aide to Eilberg said one is in the United States.

About 2,000 of the more than 130,000 South Vietnamese who left their country in the dying days of the war have asked to go back.

Kidnappers demand $4.5 million ransom

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (AP) — Kidnapers of whisky heir Samuel Bronfman 2nd reportedly are demanding a $4.5 million ransom and have warned his family that he is buried with a 10-day supply of air and water.

Spokesmen for the 21-year-old Bronfman's family have refused to discuss the amount of ransom demanded or other details of a letter received in the mail Monday. But they said Tuesday they had complied with its instruction.

Sources close to the investigation were quoted as saying the ransom figure was $4.5 million, believed to be the highest in U.S. history.

The New York Daily News quoted sources close to the case as reporting that the letter said young Bronfman, missing since Saturday, was buried somewhere in Westchester County. His parents live in Westchester County, 35 miles north of New York City.

In another bizarre kidnaping, Barbara Jane Mackle was buried alive for days in a wooden coffin in 1968 in Georgia. She was released unhurt.

The Bronfman family spokesman confirmed that a "substantial" sum of money had been collected and that the family was awaiting the next move by the kidnapers. He said the family was negotiating with the kidnapers independently of the FBI and local police.

Edgar M. Bronfman, 46, head of the billion-dollar Seagram Co. Ltd., of Montreal, flew by helicopter from his baronial estate in this Westchester County community Monday to New York City, apparently to fulfill some of the kidnapers' demands. He returned about 7 a.m. Tuesday. A family spokesman early today refused to say whether the senior Bronfman was home or what he was doing.

Samuel Bronfman, oldest of the whisky magnate's five children, had dined with his father Friday night in the huge Tudorstyle mansion. He left about 11:30 p.m., saying he was going to a party.

Several hours later, he telephoned his father to say he had been abducted by three men while driving to his mother's home in Purchase, N.Y., about 20 miles away.

Samuel's car, a green 1973 BMW sedan, was found parked in his mother's garage, the ignition key in the lock.

Family friends discount the possibility of a hoax, saying Samuel was a smart and likeable person who would not participate in a hoax.

Friends also say the family has held up well, trying to remain calm, and waiting.

Stock prices turn weak

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned weak and sluggish today, unable to sustain Tuesday's uptrend.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 4.85 at 823.69, and losers opened up a 4-3 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

In the absence of any strong influences in the economic news, brokers said, it appeared the market was again dominated by concern over inflation and rising interest rates that has plagued it for the past month.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was unchanged at 86.49.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .33 to 46.15.

Army admits causing man's death

NEW YORK (AP) — The daughter of an unwitting victim of the Army's experiments with hallucinogenic drugs says she had been told that he died of an LSD injection administered as medication.

But, she said, Tuesday's announcement of the reason for her father's death was a shock. In a press release, the Army attributed the death of tennis professional Harold Blauer in 1953 not to his treatment as a state mental hospital patient but to the Army's experiment.

"I'm collapsed through the whole experience," said the widowed daughter, Elizabeth Barrett, 35, of Manhattan, who added that three Army officers gave her the news in person.

Blauer is the first known fatality from extensive Armysponsored tests with mind-affecting drugs, although the suicide of Dr. Frank Olson after the Central Intelligence Agency experimented on him with LSD in 1953 had been disclosed previously.

Two years before his death at the age of 42 on Jan. 8, 1953, he and his wife decided upon a marital separation, Mrs. Barrett said. Her mother went to Mexico and lived there with the younger daughter, who now wishes to avoid publicity. The elder girl, then 13, elected to live with her father.

She said that because of the separation, Blauer became depressed and a friend got him to admit himself to a hospital for treatment. He ended up in the New York State Psychiatric Institute, and the girl went to live with her grandmother.

The Army said that the institute had a 1951 contract that stipulated "studies, experimental investigations and tests to determine the clinical effect of psychochemical agents on the psychiatric behavior of human subjects."

It said that Blauer had experienced either minor or no effects from four previous injections. The Army reported that the fifth injection was fatal.

"The patient died about 2½ hours after receiving an injection of a mescaline derivative," the Army said.

Mrs. Barrett disputes the Army's account, saying her mother had said that her father had been given LSD and that he had had two earlier bad experiences with the drug the doctors were "prescribing."

The daughter said the final injection was given on the day before his scheduled release.

She said her mother had lodged what she believes is a malpractice suit against the state and another suit against her father's life insurance company, to collect double indemnity for accidental death. She said there was a financial settlement, but she didn't know the amount.

Robert Spoor, spokesman for the New York State Mental Hygiene Department, said Blauer died of an allergic reaction, and the Pentagon said his file contained an unsigned memorandum that gave a cardiovascular collapse as the cause. No death certificate has been found, according to the Pentagon.

The Army said Blauer had taken part with an unspecified number of other patients in a series of five tests in a 29-day period involving various mescaline derivatives furnished by the Army.

After his death, the experiment was terminated, the Army said.

Senate intelligence committee demands documents on Chile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate intelligence committee, in its most serious breach with the Ford administration, is subpoenaing tapes and documents bearing on covert activities in Chile during the Nixon administration.

But panel members say they still hope to obtain the materials without a legal battle.

The vote to issue a subpoena was taken Tuesday after the White House rejected the committee's requests for the tapes and documents bearing on covert efforts during the Nixon administration to prevent the 1970 election of President Salvador Allende of Chile.

At the same time, committee Chairman Frank Church, DIdaho, reported the panel has given up for the moment its attempts to persuade former President Richard M. Nixon to testify on his administration's policy concerning assassination of foreign leaders and covert activities by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Church said Nixon's testimony is not essential to the assassination phase of the committee's investigation, but may be sought later when he can be interrogated in a single session about all aspects of the probe.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told the panel Tuesday that assassination plots were never part of Nixon administration policy or practice.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the documents requested are "in a position where they cannot be released because of an injunction by (U.S. District) Judge (William B.) Bryant at the request of the former president."

Church said the White House based its decision on an order sequestering the documents except for "on-going government business." He added: "We think this committee is engaged in legitimate government business."

Access to the papers was refused by White House Counsel Philip W. Buchen. He and Arthur Sampson, head of the General Services Administration, were served the subpoenas because they have physical custody of the Nixon papers.

The subpoena calls for delivery of the papers by Aug. 25. One section calls for the production of all proposals or reports for a military coup in Chile, the bribery of Chilean politicians and the transfer of machine guns, gas masks and gas canisters.

The subpoena also seeks documents concerning "the use of propaganda including media personnel on the payroll of the Central Intelligence Agency and the use of private business interests."

New lottery game eyed

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A game to replace the Buckeye 300 with more prizes comes before the Ohio Lottery Commission when it meets Thursday with what's described as a full agenda.

A lottery spokesman said today the agenda wasn't complete and that details of the new game, the Buckeye 1,000, weren't set but that it was an answer to public demand for more chances to win in a widened prize range.

The Buckeye 300 offers a top prize of $300,000.

The commissioners were to meet their new executive director, Robert M. Chiaramonte, who was named to the post after Robert Malaga resigned following personnel disputes.

It was assumed those personnel matters also will come under discussion, including the week-long suspension of Publicity Director James Skelly that was to end Thursday.

Ohio faces winter crisis

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio energy chief Robert S. Ryan said Tuesday Ohio is faced with a potential employment crisis this winter due to severe curtailments of natural gas supplies.

Ryan, executive secretary of the Energy Emergency Commission, told a commission meeting that major gas utilities will put their 60 per curtailment plan into effect Nov. 1.

"Last winter, with relatively mild weather, Ohio lost 1.6 million man days," he said. "Current reports from the pipeline companies indicate that industrial curtailments this year will be nearly twice as severe as last winter."

A monitoring system has been set up, he said, to study Ohio gas consumption throughout the winter.

He said his office is working with the Federal Energy Administration to get additional oil supplies for Ohio. He said he hoped the efforts could avoid a critical unemployment situation.

Local government pay scales noted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Local government employes working in noneducational areas averaged more earnings each week in 1974 than those who worked in educational sections, the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services says.

The noneducational workers received $177.31 weekly while those who worked in the educational field received about $162.67.

The averages were compiled by the bureau from reports filed by local government subdivisions covered under Ohio unemployment compensation law.

Elected officials and unclassified employes, other than unclassified employes of hospitals, were not covered by the noneducational local government classification.

The educational category was based upon reports filed by local government school districts, excluding substitute teachers.

Highest pay per week for the noneducational classification was in Lucas County where 5,-089 employes averaged $228.30. In Cuyahoga County, the average weekly earnings was $200.85 for 32,001 workers.

Average employment for each month in 1974 in the classification was 125,456 in the 88 counties. Average employment in the educational local government employes category was 213,386 for a month last year.

The highest pay went to the 19,683 employes in Hamilton County who received $197.18 for an average week; the lowest in Defiance County where 748 workers averaged $116.73 each week of 1974.

The bureau also broke down the $335.14 million total payroll for educational state government employes covered under the compensation law for 1974 into the 88 counties.

The average employment by the month was 30,166 with average earnings $213.65.

The figures in the category were based upon reports filed by state educational institutions, excluding student employes of state colleges and universities.

The 1,470 employes at state educational institutions in Cuyahoga County received the highest average weekly pay at $251.16. At the other end of the scale were 37 employes in Montgomery County averaging $109.89 and 11 workers in Miami County who received about $113.82 a week.

In Franklin County with the highest concentration of educational state government employes at 10,407, the average weekly earnings were $208.79.

KSU case juror ousted by judge

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—A federal judge dismissed one of the jurors in the 1970 Kent State University shootings trial today for having discussed the case out of court.

U.S. District Court Judge Don Young told the remaining members of the panel that Douglas Watts of Mogadore had violated Young's instructions against forming or expressing opinions about the case.

Court sources said lawyers for the shooting victims complained that Watts characterized the plaintiffs as Commies. Sources said the attorneys learned of the matter through an anonymous telephone call.

Milk and cookie set given own set of high fashions

NEW YORK (AP) — Couture clothes are fast moving from martini sippers to milk and cookie crunchers. The wee folk now have their very own collection from Pierre Cardin.

Plump and bouncy tiny tots and not-so-plump older youngsters paraded around a bubbly pool in a fashionable East Side resturant Tuesday to show the French designer's first collection of children's wear.

The fashions remarkably did not end up in the water, despite a few slips of a few little toes.

Ranging from $8 for swimming suits to more than $70 for long party dresses, the collection combined Cardin's simple, clean lines with bursts of happy bright colors in knits, denims, suedes and easy-care fabrics.

"Fashion is for all ages," Cardin said. "More and more younger people, including children, understand and appreciate fashion as an expression of a way of life."

The boys and girls in Tuesday's show seemed to agree with the designer, as they flaunted a variety of sportswear, school wear, and party clothes in the most coquettish ways.

For toddlers, Cardin showed a one-piece white, red and blue knit jumpsuit with removable crotch for easy diaper change. A two-piece purple, green and blue knit ensemble was worn with bright purple and yellow booties, the Cardin signature logo appearing on the soles.

Toddlers' sizes range from 2T to 4T. Cardin's classic raincoat in the khaki color is for both sexes. So are many of his leisure suits, such as the white, raw muslin pants suit and the two-tone denim panel outfit. The leisure suits are priced from $28.

A French country schoolgirl dress and the classic navy blue pleated dress for girls highlighted the school wear. For boys, a cable coat sweater and the pocket treatment in a beige relax suit were shown.

Much imagination was used for the brightly colored "cutup" pants — panels of green, yellow, red and blue, cut on the diagonal at various parts of the leg. They were worn with T-shirts and polo shirts, which were priced from $10.

Long dresses in peachy pink and dusty green with silver undertones had lace at the hem and bodice and big streamers tied behind. The commentator said that they were the types of dresses "you can wear to mommy's wedding."

I would like to thank all my friends and neighbors who sent me cards and flowers while I was in the hospital and the nurses and nurse's aides on Central and the 300 wing. A very special thanks to Dr. Hung my doctor.

Hearst figure being protected

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Walter J. Scott, a key figure in the Patricia Hearst investigation, is in protective custody because he fears for his life, the FBI confirmed today.

"I would think he would remain in custody until his appearance" before a federal grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa., said Will McDonald, press spokesman for the Philadelphia office of the FBI.

Scott will remain in protective custody on a short-term emergency basis as long as he feels his life is in danger, said McDonald. He declined to say where Scott is being housed, explaining "it's for obvious reasons."

NOTE OF THANKS

Thanks to my friends for the gifts, cards, flowers and visits while I was a patient in Fayette Hospital. Also the care from the nursing staff, Dr. Shaw and Dr. Binzel. Special thanks to the ministers for their prayers.

In Boston Tuesday, O'Brien said he has consulted with attorney F. Lee Bailey and is now willing to take a lie detector test about his actions on the day Hoffa disappeared. But he said he wouldn't take the test until after the grand jury probe is over.

O'Brien's Detroit attorney, James Burdick, said he would probably advise his client against taking a lie detector test.

Burdick again declined to divulge information from O'Brien's 3½-hour interview with the FBI last week but said he expected to be able to do so soon. He said O'Brien was staying mum to avoid interfering with the FBI probe.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our friends, relatives and neighbors for the food, flowers and kindess shown during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father Darrell Rumer.

A special thanks to Dr. Heiny, the nurses of the 400 wing, Gerstner Kinzer Funeral Home and Rev. Russell.

It's hotter in Thermal

We offer this for whatever consolation there is in it: Wherever you are, these days when August is showing off what it can do in the way of summer heat, it's hotter in Thermal. Thermal, Calif., that is, a place 30 miles southeast of Palm Springs which sits 120 feet below sea level and calls itself the hottest town in the country.

With good reason. From June through September, the temperature goes past 100 every day. Of course there's some relief at night, when things cool down to 85 or so, but on the whole it's HOT!

Not surprisingly, this environment has produced a bit of philosophy that should serve well whenever it seems unduly warm. A reporter who recently did a piece about Thermal quoted one of its residents, Bill Arellano, to this effect: "Our weather has a healthy effect upon the body because it stimulates you to inactivity."

Think positive, then: if it seems uncomfortably warm some fine afternoon, reflect that the temperature is stimulating you (is that really the appropriate verb?) to healthful inactivity. Thank you, Bill Arellano of Thermal.

THESE DAYS . . . . By John Chamberlain

Ford should lend his printing press

Far be it from me to defend the way New York City has conducted its fiscal affairs. Anybody with half a brain could see the way things were bound to go when the handsome Mayor John Lindsay was bowing to the municipal unions in a vain endeavor to keep pace with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller as "labor's friend."

During all that time when the bridge tenders were chivvying Lindsay into submission by leaving the drawbridges open and the garbage collectors were holding the city for ransom by letting the refuse choke the sidewalks, the present mayor, Abe Beame, did nothing as comptroller to keep City Hall from borrowing on the future to write union contracts that were arithmetically doomed from the outset.

Having said the worst of the city's past conduct, however, I still think Mayor Beame is justified in his annoyance with President Ford for his crack, made in Belgrade, that New York politicos "don't know how to handle money; all they know how to do is spend it."

The fact is that, when it comes to financial profligacy, Washington has so far out-performed New York City that comparisons are ridiculous.

President Ford Would be in much greater peril than Mayor Beame if, with a $60 to $90 billion yearly deficit hanging over his head and a $475 billion Federal debt necessitating the sterile outlay of some $30 billion in interest, he could not fall back on the government printing presses to supply him with operating funds. Moreover, to supplement the money derived from its own engines of inflation, all quite legal, Washington can tax the devil not only out of city dwellers but of all those supposedly rich suburbanites who have the questionable advantage of living in what Professor Kenneth Galbraith likes to call "fiscal funkholes." (Query: Has Professor Galbraith looked at property taxes lately?)

Mayor Beame, faced with realities, is trying manfully to fit his city's outgo into the frame provided by the available income. He no longer has any options. But Jerry Ford and the U.S. Congress can go on debauching the dollar, if not forever, at least to points that have been tested in countries like Britain and Brazil without a total collapse of the social fabric. No wonder the New York City Hall's response to the Ford denigration was to say that people who live in White Houses shouldn't throw stones.

As a matter of fact, the Federal government is the "first cause" of the plight of most of our big cities. It is the relentless pursuit of inflation ever since the 1930s that has wrecked the dollar that Mayor Beame is forced to use. The New York City subway fare has gone from the nickel of Mayor Hylan's time to the current 35 cents (50 cents come September) because of Washington Keynesianism. The municipal unions have struck, illegally, for more and more in wages because Washington has inflated the cost of living without regard for the consequences.

Mayor Beame might point out to Jerry Ford that New York City sends more in taxes to Albany than it gets back, while Albany, in turn, sends Washington more than is returned. This does not excuse loose fiscal arrangements either in New York City or in Albany. But it does put things in proper perspective when it comes to the right to throw stones.

New York City has been accused of paying out too much in welfare. But who saddled the Harlem and Bedford-Stuyvesant slums with thousands who must depend on welfare payments to keep body and soul together? The northward migrations of poor blacks date back to the time when Henry Wallace, Franklin Roosevelt's Secretary of Agriculture, was presiding over all those payments that went to big farmers to take acres out of production. The big farmers took their government support money and put it into potent fertilizers, high-yield seeds, and the latest labor-saving farm machinery. It wasn't long before they were raising more on fewer acres without any help from their old field hands. The displaced laborers and tenants had to go somewhere, so they piled up in Harlem and Bedford-Stuyvesant.

Since the law says that residence requirements for relief are "discriminatory," New York City has to shell out for welfare on demand.

Mayor Beame is entirely justified in feeling miffed at Jerry Ford's disparaging remarks about New York City made in the capital of a Communist country. At the very least Jerry Ford should be commiserating with Beame, who, unlike Washington, would be counterfeiting if he were to use a money printing press to bail himself out of his troubles.

Ohio Perspective

No surprises found in labor research

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The largest research project ever funded by the U.S. Department of Labor — costing over $13 million so far — is proving things many people already assumed to be true.

The study verifies that young black women suffer more in the labor market from being female than from being black. High-ranking black women have said this in the past.

The project also indicates black teenage girls have higher unemployment rates than any other group in the work force.

And, it strengthens feminists' stand on discrimination. It substantiates arguments that the majority of women with the same experience as men still earn less doing the same job.

The four-pronged study, started in 1966 and expected to run into the 1980s, is being run from Ohio State University's Center for Human Resources.

Data is being gathered on work prospects and realizations of young women who were 14 to 24 when the project began, young men in the same age group, women who were 30 to 44, and men 45 to 59.

Dr. Andrew Kohen, the project director, said, "Once we fully understand how and why people do what they do, we can make recommendations to federal and local governments which set policies."

Inadequate information leads to mistakes, he said, pointing to a comprehensive child care bill passed in 1971 by Congress and vetoed by President Nixon.

"Proponents stressed the strong need, but no one had the hard facts that they were right," Kohen said. "Our data shows the need is not as great as was earlier thought, but a need does exist for low income families.

"It also shows, however, that national policies, aid to dependent children, etc., have contributed tremendously already to alleviate the problem."

In all, 20,000 people in the four groups are being surveyed annually all over the country.

Some findings:

—When a young black girl and a young white, both training through high school commercial courses, compete for the same clerical job, the white is more apt to get it.

'Lab' errand irks squeamish neighbor

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who I like, but his wife can be very obnoxious.

This wife asked me to take a urine sample to the hospital lab for her in the morning because she and her husband leave for work earlier than the lab opens up and I go right by the hospital on my way to work later.

I said no flat out.

The next morning, this woman's mother was there to pick up the little jar to deliver it to the hospital, which is only six blocks away.

IT'S URINE, NOT MINE

DEAR IT'S: I think you were being unduly squeamish. You probably would have taken a blood sample and would not have been shocked by the request-unless, of course, you don't like any part of your neighbor's wife.

DEAR ABBY: Joe, a guy I bowl with, told me that he just came back from Las Vegas where he had been the best man at three weddings. (I'll call the bridegroom "Paul.")

Joe said that Paul first married a girl who was visibly pregnant just to give her baby a name. Immediately after they were married, Paul divorced her.

Then Paul went back to the chapel and married Girl No. 2 for the same reason. As soon as they were married, Paul divorced her, too.

Paul said the divorces had been set up in advance.

Then they went back to the chapel and Paul married the girl he was really in love with. (Joe said the third one didn't look pregnant.)

How about blood tests and waiting periods? Personally, I think this so-called "BEST MAN" IS FULL OF BALONEY, BUT HE SWEARS THIS ACTUALLY HAPPENED.

Is this possible?

DOUBTING THOMAS

DEAR TOM: It's possible. Blood tests and waiting periods are not required in Nevada. I am informed that divorces are final when granted and the parties are free to marry immediately.

DEAR ABBY: The nursing problems of 1880 caught my eye because I was a graduate nurse in 1908.

In training we received $8 per month for four years. We worked 10 hours daily, six days a week, and did all the cleaning. Three months every year we worked in the TB ward.

Later, on private cases, we were allowed to charge only $25 a week. On contagious cases, we cooked all the patient's meals in the family kitchen, but many times, all I got to eat was one bowl of milk and bread.

On private cases we worked 20 hours a day and usually left the case after three weeks feeling exhausted and very hungry.

Today, nursing is a ball.

NORA J.

DEAR NORA: The low pay, long hours and drudgery of nursing in the early 1900s may make today's nursing look easy. But the academic and professional requirements for an R.N. these days are no "ball." And the competition, tensions and living costs that face the modern nurse don't make her work or her life a "ball" either.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box 69700, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Man loves Corvairs; has 20

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)— There is a self-made traffic jam around the gas station owned by Fred Fahrenholz. Like a automotive pied piper, he has 14 Corvairs constantly parked outside his station—and he owns them all.

That's not all. He's got six more of the compact cars outside of his home, but his wife Ellen now says that's enough for now.

"She says this is like an elephants' graveyard—only the Corvairs come here to die," laughed Fahrenholz.

Fahrenholz recalls his love affair began two years ago with the car which has not been in production since 1969.

"I didn't think too much of it until I needed a service car," he said. "I put the word out, and goodnight, this little lady from Farmsville answers it and I bought her Corvair.

"She said she just couldn't keep it running and sure enough every time we took it out, we'd have to tow the thing back in, but I remember the things that would go wrong and how we fixed them.

"And if you attend to those little things, you keep the car running ."

With his wife having declared a moratorium on any more Corvairs, Fahrenholz admits he's going to have to content himself with the cars he's got for awhile.

"It's a good, sturdy little car, dependable and easy to work on," he concluded.

WCH youth attending national JA meeting

Bryan Buck, 621 E. Temple St., will be competing this week for the top national purchasing manager award at the national Junior Achievement conference being held at Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.

Buck, who will be a junior at Washington Senior High School this fall, was a member of Majac II in the Washington C. H. Junior Achievement program last school year. The Majac II firm was counselled by Mac Tools, Inc., U.S. 35-S.

Junior Achievement is an international non-profit organization dedicated to the economic education of youth. Last year over 1,500 teenagers from high schools located throughout central Ohio participated in the Junior Achievement program.

The national Junior Achievement conference is the world's largest teenage business convention. This year's conference will be the largest ever held. Over 2,200 teenage executives will gather from 300 communities nationwide to discuss the trials, heartbreaks and triumphs they experienced while operating their own miniature companies in the Junior Achievement program.

Delegates to the conference are representatives of more than 170,000 teenagers who operated 7,000 Junior Achievement companies throughout the nation during the past year.

State jobs rise denied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson's charge that Republicans added employes to the state payroll since taking office in January was challenged Tuesday by Philip S. Hamilton, deputy administrative services director.

"The auditor apparently can't add," said Hamilton. He claimed the number of state employes declined from 56,781 to 55,686, a decrease of 1,095, since Gov. James A. Rhodes took office.

Ferguson said Monday that Republicans had hired 7,159 while laying off, or planning to lay off, 3,000. He asked the State Personnel Board of Review to take a look into the layoff procedures, saying it was being handled in a way to replace Democrats with Republicans.

"I commend the state auditor for his interest in state employment levels," Hamilton said.

Pension plan strike closes Mead plants

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — Nearly 2,000 workers were on strike Tuesday at two Mead Corp. plants here, objecting to possible cuts in their pensions.

Plant Manager Booker Bunch said workers left their jobs at midnight Monday. The company plans to revise the pension plan because of its cost, he said.

Other Mead operations, including the container plant in Washington C. H. have not been affected by the striking local.

Plant manager Don Jones said the Washington C. H. plant negotiates a separate contract with its employes and he has not heard of any potential at the facility.

"We have called back nearly all of the employes layed off earlier and are working two full shifts daily," Jones said.

Locals 988 and 731 of the United Paperworkers International Union had voted for the strike prior to the expiration of their old contract Aug. 1 but delayed it because of a 10-day notification clause in the old contract.

Joseph Tonelli, the union president, said the proposed change in the pension plan would cost a retired worker with 35 years service $200 a month. The plan is also the cause of a strike by Mead workers in Escanaba, Mich.

Mead said increased wages and operating costs have driven the cost of pensions upward in the last few years to the point a retired worker with social security and a working spouse would be making more off the job than on.

By GLADYS KIRK

Corn on the cob this winter — Capturing that corn-on-the-cob goodness of sweet corn is a challenge to anyone who freezes corn for use later. The secret is processing and freezing immediately (within a couple of hours) after picking.

Select only young, tender, freshly-picked corn of uniform maturity. The kernels should be full, rounded and milky. Immature or too-mature corn is not suitable for freezing. Test the maturity of the corn by puncturing the kernels with a thumbnail. If the milk is water, the corn is immature and will lack flavor; if it is thick like heavy cream, the ears are too mature or starchy.

Prepare for freezing by removing husk and silk from corn. Remove husk by cutting off the butt end of the cob, then peeling off the husk. The silk can be removed with a brush. Trim off any injured or defective areas. Wash and sort according to size. Scald and cool the ears.

Using boiling water, scald as follows: corn on the cob — six minutes for small ears; eight minutes for medium ears; 10 minutes for large ears. For cut corn — three minutes for small ears; five minutes for medium ears; seven minutes for large ears. (Count time immediately after putting corn in water).

Cool immediately in ice water or cold running water as long as it was scalded.

Stand an ear upright on a firm foundation and cut downward close to the cob (but not too close). Wash the cut corn to remove chaff, then drain. For creamed corn, slice off top half of grains and scrape milk from remainder of grain.

Package cut corn in moisture-vapor proof packages and seal. For corn-on-the-cob, package three to four ears per container; or better still, wrap each ear individually in aluminum foil and twist the ends tightly. The ears should be frozen separately when wrapped in foil, then packed together in a large container for ease of handling in storage. Label packages and freeze immediately.

A dozen ears of corn will make two to four 12-ounce packages, depending on the size of the ear and kernels.

Fresh-pack or quick-process pickles such as crosscut cucumber slices or strips and whole cucumber dills or sweet gherkins are brined for several hours or overnight. Then they are drained and combined with boiling hot vinegar, spices and other seasonings.

To insure acceptable quality and safety of the finished product, however, you must follow recommended procedures, says Miss Evelyn Gray, extension nutritionist at Ohio State University.

First, decide if you want crosscut sliced or whole pickles. Then select cucumbers accordingly. Wash cucumbers thoroughly with a brush, using several changes of cold water. Be sure to remove any traces of the blossom, as it may cause softening. Drain and place in brine solution overnight. Wash again (with several changes of cold water).

Use an up-to-date recipe to prepare your vinegar and spice solution. Vinegar used to be sold at seven per cent (70 grain), stronger than today's vinegars. Recipes planned for stronger vinegar would be too weak to be safe today, Miss Gray said.

Heat processing is recommended for all pickle products, she added. Pack pickles according to your recipe directions. Fill jars firmly and uniformly but avoid packing so tightly that the brine or syrup is prevented from filling around and over the product.

Be sure to leave head space at the top of the jar as specified by the recipe. Wipe the rim and threads of jar with a clean, hot cloth to remove particles of food, seed or spices. Even a small particle can prevent an airtight seal.

The two-piece metal cap (flat metal lid and metal screw band) is the most commonly used closure. Be sure the flat lid is placed on the jar with the sealing compound next to the glass. Screw the metal band down tight by hand to hold the sealing compound against the glass. This type lid still has enough "give" to let air escape during the processing. Do not tighten screw band further after processing.

Pickle products require heat treatment to destroy organisms that cause spoilage. Adequate heating is achieved by processing filled and capped jars in a boiling water bath. Immerse jars into actively boiling water in canner or deep kettle. Be sure water comes an inch or two above the jar tops. Add boiling water, if necessary, but do not pour it directly on the jars. Close container with close-fitting lid and bring water back to a boil as quickly as possible. Start to count processing time recommended for the type pickles you are processing: Bread and butter pickles, quarts — ten minutes, pints — five minutes; sweet gherkins, pints — five minutes; fresh packed dills (unfermented, whole), quarts — 20 minutes.

If liquid has boiled out of a jar during processing, do not open it to add more liquid, because spoilage organisms may enter. Leave jar sealed just as it is.

Cool jars, top up, on a wire rack. Place jars far enough apart to allow free circulation of air. Do not cover. Keep jars out of a draft until cool. After cooling for 12 to 24 hours, remove metal screw bands carefully and check jars for airtight seal.

The center of the lid on two-piece metal caps will have a slight dip, or will stay down when pressed, if jar is sealed. Also, you can try the spoon test. Tap a spoon on the lid. A clear ringing sound means a good seal. A dull note, however, does not always mean a poor seal. Check by turning jar partly over. If there is no leakage, jar may be stored.

For more information on making pickles, call our county extension office at 335-1150.

Grace Church chapel setting for wedding

The Grace United Methodist Church chapel was the setting for the Aug. 2 wedding of Miss Cindy Cottrill to Brooks E. McCoy. The Rev. T. Mark Dove performed the 2:30 p.m. double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cottrill of Route 1, New Holland, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McCoy of Route 1, Williamsport.

Two seven-branched candelabras entwined with greenery and pink, melon, mint green and yellow ribbons enhanced the church altar. Altar vases were filled with multi-colored mums, gladiolus, daisies, baby's breath and greenery. Family pews were also highlighted by pink, melon, mint green and yellow ribbons and greenery.

Mrs. Gene Hughes played the organ prelude while vocalists Misses Lynnette and Jeannette Anderson sang, "We've Only Just Begun," "Cherish," and "I Won't Last a Day Without You."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a formal-length gown of white organza detailed with French imported chantilly lace. The empire bodice featured a bib of lace, crystals and seed pearls encircled with crystal pleating. The bottom of the full sheer sleeves matched the bodice with ruffled cuffs and a high ruffled neckline encircled with pearls.

The A-lined skirt fell into a chapel-length train trimmed with a row of crystal pleating around the bottom and forming a second row of crystal pleating up the back of the train. Her elbow-length veil, bordered with matching lace, was held in place by an embroidered lace headpiece with seed pearls.

Miss Cottrill carried a cascade arrangement of white miniature carnations, white fugi mums, stephanotis and yellow sweetheart roses accented with baby's breath and ivy with white picot bridal ribbon.

Miss Cottrill selected Mrs. JoAnn Reisinger to serve as her matron of honor. Mrs. Reisinger was attired in a formal-length gown of yellow organza with a bodice featuring a deep V-yoke outlined with a wide band of sheer lace and ruffle of organza. Her full skirt was finished with the same lace and sheer ruffle with a high wedding ring collar and cuffs on the full sheer sleeves of the same delicate lace. She wore a yellow ribbon with yellow and green daisies in her hair.

Miss Brenda Southward and Patty Wilson were the bridesmaids and were dressed in gowns styled identically to the honor attendant's in mint and apricot. Each attendant carried a colorful collage of yellow, pink, green and melon flowers, laced in baby's breath with mixed colored streamers.

Serving as flower girl was three-year-old Beth Ann McCoy, who was dressed in a pale pink gown styled identically to the other attendants. She carried a basket of mixed flowers with streamers.

Richard Reisinger served as best man while Rick Cottrill and Denis Swartz seated the guests. Acting as ring bearer was Rex Reisinger.

The bride's mother chose to wear a sleeveless, floor-length gown of melon, ivory and aqua knit with accessories to match for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was composed of white sweetheart roses and miniature aqua carnations.

The bridegroom's mother was dressed in a floor-length gown of pink polyester trimmed in white with matching accessories. Her corsage featured bridal pink roses.

A reception for the new Mr. and Mrs. McCoy was held at the Lafayette Inn following the ceremony. The wedding table was centered with a colorful arrangement of mixed flowers with candles at each end. The three-tiered wedding cake was encircled with pink, green, yellow and melon flowers and greenery topped by a bouquet of live, colorful mixed flowers. Serving as hostesses were Mrs. Audrey Huston, aunt of the bride, and Kay Schaeffer, cousin of the bride.

For traveling, the bride chose to wear a short-sleeved knit dress with melon bodice and floral skirt and sleeves with matching accessories.

The new Mrs. McCoy is a graduate of Miami Trace High School and Ohio University and is now employed as an elementary teacher in the Westfall School District. Her husband, a graduate of Williamsport High School, is engaged in farming.

The couple are residing on Route 1, Williamsport.

Crusaders class informed of Liberty Bell history

The Christian Crusaders Class of the South Side Church of Christ held their annual picnic recently at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Whiteside.

Various business projects were discussed but tabled for a later meeting. However, members did decide to send letters to the three major broadcasting companies to protest the loose talk and drinking being shown on television, which they felt were unsuitable for viewing by children.

Dr. John G. Jordan gave the invocation while Howard Brooks brought the devotions on the topic of "Work and Leisure." He used the scripture "Remember the Sabbath to Keep it Holy" for his talk and closed with prayer.

Mrs. Jordan provided the entertainment on the bicentennial subject of "Bells." She retold the history of the Liberty Bell and explained that it was originally cast in England in 1752 for the Pennsylvania State House.

In transport the bell was damaged and its tone was ruined. The bell was then recast in Philadelphia in 1753 with the inscription, "Proclaim Liberty throughout the Land unto All the Inhabitants There of," she stated.

On July 8, 1776, the bell was run to summon the people of Philadelphia to the first public reading of the Declaration of Independence.

During the British occupation the bell was hidden beneath the floor of Zion Reform Church in Allentown, Pa., she added. It was broken while being tolled for the death of U.S. Chief Justice Marshall July 8, 1835.

Since 1854, it has rested in the old Pennsylvania state house on a 13-sided pedestal representing the 13 original colonies, she concluded.

A contest devised to make the most words out of bicentennial was held and Mrs. John Sparks and Dr. Jordan tied with 38 words each.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 6 in the church fellowship hall with Mrs. Guy Patton and Mrs. Laura Huff as co-hostesses. Miss Michele Davis will bring devotions and Mrs. Sparks will provide entertainment.

Reunion held recently

Over 75 family members attended the annual Tway-Whiteside reunion held Sunday in the Bloomingburg Town Hall, Bloomingburg.

Scharlotte Sexour gave the invocation prior to the dinner and a short business meeting was conducted by president, Cleo Whiteside, following the meal.

Scriptures were read by Donald Barnhart, vice president, and the minutes of last reunion were read by secretary, Wendell Whiteside.

Entertainment was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Whiteside with a vocal presentation of spiritual numbers and accompaniment by Mr. Whiteside on the guitar.

A period of silence was observed in memory of those deceased since the last reunion, Glenn W. Whiteside and Effie Whiteside.

After no new nominations were suggested, the president stated the same officers would remain for the next year.

Due to the death of Glenn Whiteside, the president requested Bill Graham to serve as arrangements chairman and be assisted by Cleo Whiteside and Roy Sexour.

Roscoe Whiteside reported for the cemetery committee. Nathaniel Tway and Rufus Hutson also served on that committee.

The president also appointed Reva Whiteside as chairman of collections for the next reunion.

Best loser named

Mrs. Dean Hawk was named the best loser of TOPS No. OH669 at the recent meeting of the club to take off pounds sensibly. KOPS star was Mrs. Emmett Campbell, and officer of the week was Mrs. Leo Merritt.

Dates chosen for the skating parties were Oct. 21, Nov. 18 and March 16 depending on availability.

All members were reminded there would be no meeting or weigh-in on Labor Day. An interesting discussion followed the reading of articles.

Research center toured by county officials

ELECTRON MICROSCOPE — An invaluable tool to plant pathologists is this electron microscope, one of two at the plant pathology facility. The high resolution instrument is capable of approaching a resolution of 1-254,000,000 of an inch and is vital in research of plant diseases.

CONTROLLED ENVIRONMENT CHAMBER — Fayette County 4-H Extension Agent Jack Sommers looks at one of the controlled environment studies of corn root rot presently underway at OARDC. Scientist are able to control the exact amount of light, water and heat the plants in each chamber receive and can then determine what conditions are most likely to increase the amount of root rot.

DISEASE RESEARCH — Dr. Y.N. Saif of the OARDC staff is monitoring the effects of relative humidity on the growth of a respiratory infection common in turkeys. This is one of many ongoing animal health projects which will eventually benefit Ohio farmers.

By ED SUMMERS

Members of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners and county engineer Charles P. Wagner were among several hundred state and county officials present Tuesday at Public Officials Day at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, near Wooster.

The day was part of OARDC's "Research Showcase—Open House '75" in observance of the 100th anniversary of the establishment of the first state agricultural experiment station in the nation near Storrs, Conn.

Following a steak dinner, Dr. Roy M. Kottman, director of OARDC, welcomed the visitors and commented on the purpose of the 300 experimental projects currently ongoing at the center. He pointed out that many of the recent advances in agricultural had come about research done at state experimental stations. "IF we can raise the average yield of soybeans in Ohio by five bushel per acre it means an additional $100 million income for Ohio farmers, Dr. Kottman said.

Guest speaker for the event was Dr. John A. Hannah, former president of Michigan State University' former head of the U.S. Agency for International Development and currently director of the United Nations World Food Council. Dr. Hannah outlined the present food situation in the world and gave the audience an insight into many of the programs now being formulated on an international level which will hopefully be able to combat the hunger problem in the developing nations. "Unless the nations of the world take drastic steps the food situation will get worse," he commented, "It is time we get on with the vital job of feeding the world's hungry people."

He also pointed out that 70 per cent of the world's cereal grains and oil seeds are produced in the U.S. and Canada; much of the production due largely to advances made over the years by research at agrticultural experiment stations.

All state county officials present were then presented with centenial medallions to commemoriate the anniversary.

OARDC was established in 1882 and moved to its present location in 1892. Originally the center covered 470 acres but has grown over the years to encompass approximately 2,000 acres in the Wooster area. OARDC is responsible for conducting basic and applied research in agriculture and home economics and related fields. The professions staff includes over 265 scientists and 160 technicians and research assistants.

Projects currently underway at the center range from food technology to solar energy.

Xenia paper returns to afternoons

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — The Daily Gazette will return to afternoon publication Aug. 18. The newspaper was forced to publish morning editions after a tornado devastated the town in April 1974 and school age newspaper carriers were unavailable in the afternoon.

The newspaper will make the change one week shy of a year of morning editions.

The newspaper reversed its publication schedule when its delivery carriers became unavailable. The carriers were primarily junior high school students who, as a result of the destruction of schools, were now in class between noon and 6 p.m.

The new carriers will be elementary and high school age. "This aspect has been most difficult because we had to replace many junior high young people who had been so loyal to us in the emergency and we will keep close tabs on them for the future as they pass into high school schedules and become available to us again," said Jack Jordan, editor and general manager.

"Literally thousands of people have been most patient with us in the last year.

"The communities outside the Xenia school district which are part of our readership accepted the publication time change with general graciousness. And the majority of readers was touched at one time or another by our trials created by the wholesale loss of carriers and erratic delivery times," Jordan said.

The newspaper will publish Monday through Saturday with a 2 p.m. press run.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The executive board of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools has allowed the University of Dayton to continue offering doctoral degrees, the university announced.

The school said the continuation of accreditation assures the future of doctoral programs in biology, engineering and law. The next evaluation of the program will come in three years.

In drug sale trial

Jurors return guilty verdict

Verdicts of guilty on three drug counts and not guilty on one other count were returned Tuesday afternoon by a Fayette County Common Pleas jury.

After more than two and one-half hours of deliberation, the panel of six men and six women found Robert T. Lutz, 19, of 523 E. Temple St., guilty of possession of marijuana, possession for sale, and sale of the drug. A verdict of not guilty was returned on a second count of sale.

Judge Evelyn W. Coffman requested a pre-sentence investigaiton because Lutz has no prior criminal record. Sentencing is expected to take place next week, and the defendant faces a prison term of 20 to 40 years on the sale of marijuana charge.

Thomas Vollberg, a narcotics agent from the Ohio attorney general's office in Columbus, testified that he had purchased marijuana in Lutz's presence on two separate occasions.

He said he visited the residence of Joe Seymour, 427 Peddicord Ave., on June 2, and purchased a bag of marijuana for $6. Although he and Seymour had arrived at an $8 figure, Vollberg said he later noted how small a quantity was in the bag and asked to make the purchase for $6.

He stated that Seymour sought Lutz's approval of the new price. Vollberg said that after the $6 figure had been approved, he gave the money to Lutz.

The jury found Lutz guilty of sale of marijuana in connection with this incident.

The agent also testified that he bought a $20 ounce of marijuana at the same residence on June 17. On this occasion, he said, discussions of the purchase were conducted with Seymour, who then asked Lutz to get the marijuana from another room.

He said Lutz returned with a white bag containing three plastic bags of marijuana, and he was told to take his pick. On this occasion, Vollberg said, he paid the $20 to Seymour. He added that following the purchase, someone rolled a "cigarette" from one of the two remaining bags and Lutz shared in smoking it.

The jurors felt that Lutz's involvement in this incident did not constitute sale of the drug. However, they did conclude that he possessed marijuana for use and for sale. Guilty verdicts were returned on these charges only.

Prior to their closing arguments, both assistant Fayette County prosecuting attorney John H. Roszmann, who presented the state's case, and defense counselor Andrew Dennison of Cincinnati, thanked the jurors for their attentiveness throughout the two-day trial. Judge Coffman did the same as she excused the jury shortly after 5 p.m.

Seated on the jury were George Owen, foreman, C. F. Gillenwater, Vivian Stevens, Eugene Gad, Louise Pope, John Ferguson, Mary Hollis, Larry Carmen, Joe Hidy, Catherine Miller, Eleanor Dowler and Florence Fichthorne. Alternate juror James Anderson was not called upon to participate in the deliberations.

Claim civilian fired first at KSU

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A civilian pulled a pistol from under his sport coat and fired into the air at Kent State University about three seconds before Ohio National Guardsmen shot 13 students there five years ago, a former student testified Tuesday.

Joy Bishop of Canton said the man, wearing a yellow or gold jacket and carrying a briefcase, walked to the corner of the dormitory from whose roof she was watching.

"He stood there briefly, pulled a gun and fired one shot into the air," she told the jury.

The guardsmen wheeled at the top of a campus slope and, two to five seconds after the pistol shot, opened fire, she said.

The shooting May 4, 1970 left four students dead, and the survivors and their families are suing 32 present or former guardsmen and state officials for $46 million in damages.

Lawyers for the victims promised to call Mrs. Bishop's roommate and one of her friends, both of whom shared her rooftop vantage point. The attorneys claimed neither saw what Mrs. Bishop described.

The witness told the panel of seven men and five women deciding the claims that she felt pressured the night before when she received a telephone call from plaintiffs' attorney David Engdahl. The lawyer told her he had found inconsistencies in her statements and that unless she cleared them up over the phone she would be embarrassed in court, she said.

Engdahl later denied any impropriety in the call and dismissed her story as irrelevant, stopping short of claiming she lied.

Mrs. Bishop, now a teacher of retarded children, said it was the first time she had told of the gunman in public. She said she gave her account to lawyers for eight former guardsmen indicted last year in the shootings and to Justice Department attorneys who obtained the indictments. The criminal charges were dismissed when a federal judge ruled the government had failed to prove its case.

Mrs. Bishop said the gunman was chased down the hill away from the side on which guardsmen were firing. The jury has seen a television news film of a man identified as Terrence B. Norman being chased down the hill to lines from which the guardsmen set out to disperse an antiwar rally.

A campus policeman took a .38-cal. pistol from Norman and witnesses have testified he announced it had not been fired. In a written statement, Norman also said he had not fired the weapon and pulled it on the hill only after students attacked him as he took their pictures.

Hoosier lawyer blasts utility

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A hotel representative charged Tuesday that Indiana's fuel adjustment clause is loosely drafted and encourages some utilities to use high-cost fuel to raise consumer rates.

Bob Thompson testified at a Public Service Commission hearing on a motion by the state public counselor to set aside all fuel adjustments.

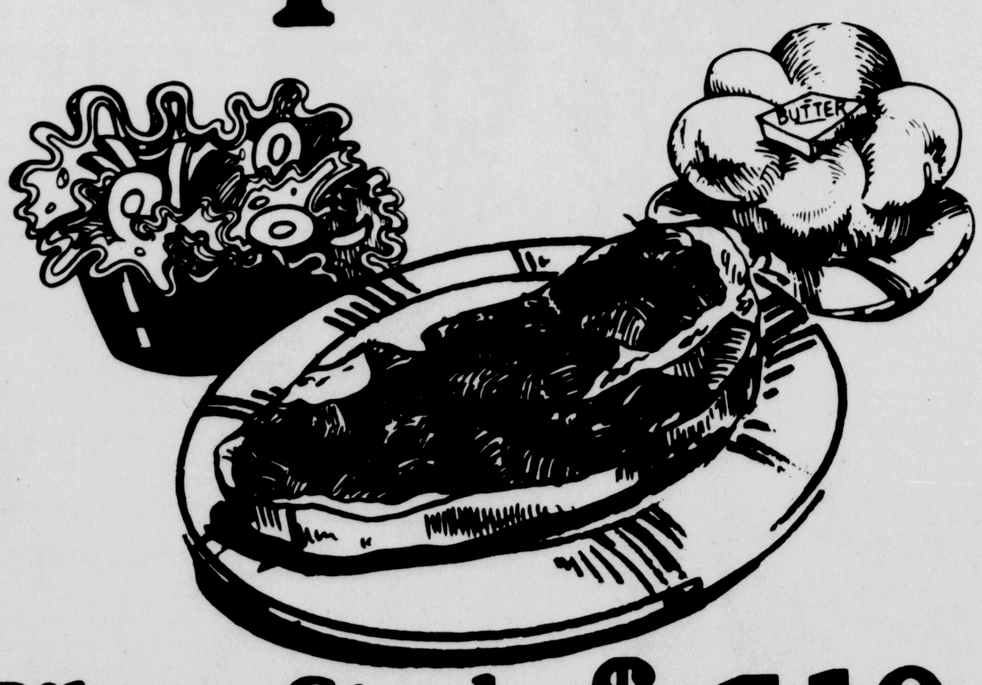

Thompson is an attorney representing Fort Wayne's Sheraton Hotel. He claimed Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. sells a 50-50 mix of purchased and generated power but applies a fuel adjustment reflecting increased cost of generating its own power to both types of power.

Letters from readers of The Record-Herald

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

On August 9, 1975 Honorable Stanley J. Aronoff, State Senator from the eighth district, wrote a letter to the general public in which he attempted to defend the action of our state legislature regarding the passage of the Malpractice bill. Following is a letter I wrote Senator Aronoff in reply which might be of interest to our citizens:

Sir: As a sequel to the opening paragraph of your letter dated August 9, 1975, permit me to make some observations.

A great many people in Fayette County do not appreciate the "help" state legislature gave us this last session.

There are several provisions of several bills to which we have serious objections. It makes little difference to us if the lawyer's contingency fee is limited to 33 1-3 per cent (as you made it) or 25 per cent. It simply means that he only hast to sue (under this system they have no difficulty finding a client) for $750,000 in order to realize a $250,000 fee, whereas, at 25 per cent he would have to sue for a cool million to make the same fee. Maybe we should consider ourselves lucky at that.

This, of course, gives the insurance companies a golden opportunity to also rip off the public. In fact they didn't even wait for the new legislation to pass. As of August 1, 1975, the liability insurance for our hospital increased from $2,300 to $46,000 per year for the identical same coverage.

You were quite consitutionally minded when you directed the Supreme Court (of Ohio) to set a contingency fee schedule. This is equivalent to sending the fox to guard the chicken coop. They're all lawyers too. By the time legislature and the supreme court both finished "helping" local government will be lucky to escape with our shorts let alone our shirts.

Also, slyly tucked away and not mentioned by you was the provision stating that the state waived the doctrine of soverign immunity. From where I stand, it seems this legislature was determined (and succeeded) to expose all public officials to ruinous lawsuits - even if you win. How do you expect to induce good people of substance to continue in public service under these conditions?

We have witnessed our country plunging headlong into socialized medicine. It now looks as if the insatiable lust for money on the part of a few could send the legal profession down the same path with other segments to follow.

I do hope, Senator, I am mistaken in my reasoning. I would rejoice for the least bit of evidence which would so indicate and would jump at the chance to change my thinking. End of letter.

Now, my friends, we must be very careful not to indict an entire profession or group on the basis of the conduct of a few. This applies to public officials, doctors, teachers, ministers or lawyers.

I will say, however, that is no mystery to me why only about one person in every four has any confidence in our legislative bodies.

J. Herbert Perrill
County Commissioner

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

I'm writing this letter in reference to an article printed in the Record-Herald titled "Barnes fight against vo-ed continues" on Aug. 4.

Vocational education should be supported rather than attacked. Realtor Dennis Barnes' two-year legal fight against vo-ed filed in Wyandot County seems to be an illogical approach.

He contends common schools provide learning for the mind while vo-ed schools teach a trade. Now chew that around and try to make some sense out of it. If that doesn't boggle your mind, read what . Webster says about "vocation" and "trade."

The first 14 years of school is generally spent learning what has already happened and to read and write. After that you zero in on a chosen field. The vo-ed concept permits zeroing in to start in 10 years rather than 15. What's wrong with that?

We can't all sit around on a flat rock in white sheets and sandals spewing forth philosophy. Somebody has to work. Why should we say a doctor, etc., doesn't work and that a person with a shovel or a wrench does? Malarkey. They're all working.

We should realize the importance of all endeavors and stop unfair and destructive distinction based on what we do for a living. The stigma started several centuries ago. It is time we matured and stopped the class distinction based on the color of shirt.

What is your real complaint, Mr. Barnes? Your stated reason doesn't hold water. Would it have something to do with federal funding of city versus county schools? Do you really believe that training of the mind doesn't take place in the learning process for a plumber or electrician?

Barnes claims that vo-ed schools violate the state constitution. A state statute provides for vocational schools. Law books define common schools, an obsolete term, as open to the public, as opposed to private schools. It is not unconstitutional to fund public schools with public funds.

Barnes will probably not win his court fight, but he can contribute further destructive criticism that impedes progress of an excellent educational program. We should upgrade the image of vo-ed, not knock it down.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

I would first like to make something clear. This letter is not for personal gain or self publicity, but rather for all the girls and women in Fayette County who have or will participate in sports.

In our rapidly changing society, the role of the female has been broadened widely, one example being sports. Society is beginning to realize that women need to be physically as well as mentally fit. I commend the Community Education program in the progress it has made in providing sports for women; but, as the Equal Rights Amendment states, men and women, by law, are to be equal in all aspects, including media coverage of athletic events. For the past five years I have sat back quietly, watching the women occasionally making the sports page — and then only a paragraph or two at the most. Granted, men are physically stronger than women, but mentally we are equal, thus making our participation in sports equally exciting.

Rarely, if ever, do I read on the sports page how women in this community have succeeded in college sports. It's always the male. Reporting on the high school level is at the very minimum also.

Very seldom does a tournament occur in this city in which anyone may participate. Therefore, coverage should be maximum, with equal reporting on all events. The reporter should cater to the public, not just a few interested people.

Since the Record Herald is the only daily newspaper in this community, it is the responsibility of this local informer to cover fully and equally, all events, especially local, whether pertaining to women, men, and-or both.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Due to numerous inquiries, Ohio Water Service Co. has set guide lines relative to the painting of fire hydants for our nation's bicentennial.

First of all, it must be emphasized that fire hydrants are installed for fire protection. Each water purveyor adopts a color code which fire and water department personnel can easily identify. In addition, these color codes are often used to identify specific characteristics of each hydrant.

Due to the importance of fire protection, I'm certain area residents can understand the dangers involved if all of our hydrants were painted in random colors.

We must, therefore, remind the general public that unauthorized painting of a fire hydrant is illegal and anyone who is apprehended for tampering with a hydrant will be prosecuted.

We will approve painting of designated hydrants by civic organizations for our bicentennial. However, we must have a written request for specific hydrants before granting written permission. In this manner, the fire department and Ohio Water Service personnel can be advised of locations. No approval to paint isolated hydrants will be granted because of the confusion and danger involved if all of our 354 hydrants were painted in a variety of colors.

We ask the cooperation of all area citizens so that life and property not be jeopardized.

We spend around $2,000 per year on our hydrant painting and maintenance program, so you can imagine the cost of getting back to the standard colors following the bicentennial.

Merrill G. Sloan, Vice Pres.
Ohio Water Service Co.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

Had it not been for the letters of criticism on the musical "Godspell" I would not have written. However, I feel compelled as did Peter and John in days gone by to say that I cannot help but speak of what I have seen and heard.

First of all I would like to say the evening watching Godspell was a time of enriching my faith as a Christian. The Kent Acting and Touring Co. did a tremendous performance.

Next, to disagree with the criticism of the performance as being "unorthodox" is failing to remember that Christ our Lord and teacher was crucified for being unorthodox in the manner in which He lived and taught.

In summary I want to say that the life and teachings of Jesus are presented in Godspell only made my Bible reading more enjoyable and my relationship to Christ more vivid. Even the clowns showed a dignified humility when this One who was so like them but yet was so unlike them. Just as it was evident in their lives, the applied teachings of Christ can still elevate humanity to plain of living in truth, love and honesty in this life and if we believe what He said in the life to come.

I have no title or degree to back up my words — only the reality of the living Christ in my heart.

Mrs. Rosanne Anderson
Rt. 1, Mount Sterling

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

I enjoy reading letters to the editor because they give different viewpoints. I have never taken the time to write one; however, I now feel I have to give my own viewpoint on a subject concerning our city.

I will have to say I feel the Ohio Water Service Co. was wrong in repainting Tricia's work of art on "Amos" the fire hydrant. Tricia painted this hydrant with a patriotic flair, which is important in this bicentennial year regardless of what you might think. Really, what makes the difference whether this hydrant is on Warren Avenue or in the downtown area?

If the Ohio Water Service Co. is worried about how the hydrants are going to look, why couldn't it be operated as Columbus does theirs. One applies to the city (in this case it could be the water company) to paint a hydrant and you are told which hydrant to paint and given a kit, which is a certain Revolutionary War hero.

Certainly it is far better for our youth to spend their time and energy in this fashion than to spend it tearing down cemetery markers and tombstones. If you will remember — the night Amos was repainted and the story was printed in the paper was also the night this same paper printed the story about the vandalism in Washington Cemetery. Maybe these same persons would have felt more satisfaction with a personal touch giving vent to their feelings in a little different fashion.

Why is it so wrong to try this? Columbus does it, Troy does it and quite a lot of major cities in the southern section of our country paint their hydrant in a patriotic theme and certainly this does help the appearance of these cities.

Neighborhood police action working out

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — Fortified neighborhood police protection is the method two northwest Ohio communities have used to combat increased crime and vandalism.

The president of the Findlay police auxiliary, Don Monday, says public response to foot patrols in residential neighborhoods has been gratifying since the program was implemented in late July.

Meanwhile, in the Wood County village of Haskins, residents have instituted their own neighborhood watches because of increased vandalism in the rural community north of Bowling Green.

The 33-man Findlay police auxiliary has been assisting local police with crowd control at sports events for several years, but the neighborhood patrols didn't have widespread backing until a recent series of fires and vandalism hit the city.

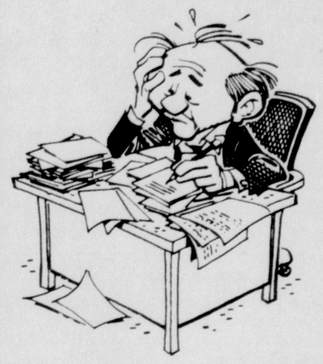

The patrols are done on a rotation basis, with each neighborhood receiving additional support one night a week. The location and patrol-hours are not revealed in advance.

The men wear uniforms, walk in pairs and are armed. They also have arrest powers, Monday explained.

The reaction has been generally positive, Monday said. Some residents have even come down from their front porches to thank the patrols, he added.

When Owens Lake bed, located near Death Valley National Monument, was full, the water contained so much borax and soda that neither fish nor mammal could live there.

BEGINNING STAGES OF REMODELING — This is what the Washington C. H. Police Department looked like last week when the latest remodeling job was getting underway. The remodeling, now completed, was necessary to provide security for the new computer information system known as CJIS. The computer in which the CJIS info line will be connected is pictured at the lower righthand corner of the photo. Waiting for the construction to be completed are Sgt. Charles Long (left), Ptl. Larry Mongold (middle) and Capt. Charles Foster (right).

What you actually have are different terminals leading in and out of the computer system, linked up to different areas and offering different forms of crime information. The Ohio CJIS will be centered around a large computerized state information system serving all criminal justice agencies and with LEADS serving as the message switcher, CJIS links all Ohio criminal justice agencies both to each other and to NCIC. In addition, this same computerized system links Ohio CJIS to other state criminal justice information systems.

Because the CJIS date will deal with such information about offenders as previous apprehensions, rehabilitation, social history, intelligence and other investigative date, only certified operators will be allowed to use the system to protect the individual's right of privacy as defined under thelaw. Only law enforcement agencies will use the system and only those persons within the agencies who meet the certain qualifications will operate it. Chief Scott stated a 40-hour training course for all operators will be necessary for the proper know-how and necessary certification.

CJIS also requires its terminal be placed in a secure location within the authorized agency and this was the reason behind the remodeling. Chief Scott said the majority of the construction was handled by Washington C. H. Police Specialist William Robinson, with jailer-dispatcher Benny Bayes and other officers assisting. Chief Scott also announced the $300 remodeling job won't cost taxpayers a cent since the police department footed the bill and Robinson and Bayes donated their time.

Other officers in the department confessed the remodeling was long overdue just to keep background noise away from the communications center. Air traffic is much clearer now.

When questioned why another new crime information terminal such as CJIS was established in the first place, Chief Scott replied, "The new Ohio Revised Code is based on the offenders previous record and whether or not he has been involved with the same offense before. Before CJIS, there was no way of knowing even if some people had a record because the information took so long in getting filed in the master system. Under CJIS, an operator will daily teletype dispositions of arrested persons into the master information bank."

Chief Scott concluded by saying, "CJIS should be all ready to go before the year ends and we've needed something like this for a long time."

According to monthly activity report

Police probe 934 July incidents

During the month the department arrested nine persons for assault, six persons on bench warrants, six persons for disorderly conduct, three for bad checks, three for intoxication and two for trespassing.

The 40 criminal arrests for July is an increase over the 36 arrests for the same period in 1974.

Reckless operation topped the list of traffic offenses during the month with 12 arrested offenders. Unsafe bumper height resulted in 11 arrests; driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs of abuse, eight; failure to maintain an assured clear distance ahead, six; and four persons were arrested during the month in the categories of driving while under license suspension, failure to yield right of way, leaving the scene of an acciddnt and failure to obey traffic devices.

The 73 arrests for traffic violations during July brings the total for 1975 to 443, Scott said. In 1974, 79 motorists were arrested during the month and the total stood at 540.

Property damage resulting from auto mishaps during the month was estimated by Chief Scott at $14,375, bringing the total so far in the year to $143,974. Damage for July, 1974 was $13,995.

Value of property reported stolen during the month totaled $5,446.77. Value of property recovered was $1,100.

Vandalism was responsible for a report $1,070 damage figure in July.

Akron native named DESC head

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Army Brig. Gen. Richard W. Swenson, a native of Akron, Ohio, presently serving in Europe, has been named commander of the Defense Electronics Supply Center.

The center buys, manages and supplies electronic parts for the armed forces and federal civil agencies. It is staffed with Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine officers.

Swenson will succeed retiring Brig. Gen. Max Etkin as commander.

Swenson, 52, was called to active duty in 1942 as a 19-year-old infantry second lieutenant while a student at Cornell University. He finished college after World War II and rejoined the Army.

Cheerleading tourney slated

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The eighth annual cheerleading tournament conducted by the University of Toledo's varsity cheerleaders will be held in two sessions Aug. 16 and 17 and Aug. 19 and 20.

It is expected to attract 600 high school and junior varsity cheerleading squads from Ohio and southeastern Michigan.

To conserve natural gas

DP&L urges homeowners to install insulation

The Dayton Power and Light Co. is urging homeowners throughout its service area to install insulation to save natural gas.

A fully-insulated home will use only half as much natural gas for heating as a non-insulated home. The gas that is saved by residential customers can then be used by industry.

Because of cutbacks in natural gas supplies to DP&L, the company anticipates a winter curtailment of 35 per cent beginning after the October meter reading for 16,000 commercial, industrial, and governmental customers during the 1975-76 heating season. Residential customers who install insulation and conserve natural gas can help relieve this curtailment. Further curtailments could mean the loss of jobs in industries using natural gas for processing and manufacturing.

Insulation can also help hold down heating bills. Installed over ceilings and in walls, insulation keeps heat in during the winter and keeps it out in the summer. The cost of installing insulation is usually recovered through lower heating bills in one to three years. Even greater savings are experienced in homes with air conditioning.

DP&L customers desiring information on insulation are being asked to get in touch with the company's consumer services department. A company representative will then offer information on levels of installation, contractors, available financing, and approximately savings.

New regulations creating hard times for businesses

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — These are difficult times in which to be doing business. The guidelines seem to have become fuzzed. Some of the old institutions seem unable to adapt to the new requirements.

New regulations are proposed or imposed almost daily, it seems, and while that means jobs for the lawyers it means uncertainty for those who run businesses. And uncertainty stops planning dead in its tracks.

Pension fund administrators are wary of making investments because of the personal legal liabilities written into the Employment Retirement Income Act of 1974. Wariness results in hesitancy rather than aggressiveness.

Nobody seems to have suggested it so far, but there is some chance that disgruntled stockholders in some of the big New York City banks might demand to know why money was lent to the city at less than prime rate.

Isn't the prime supposed to go only to the most credit-worthy customers? Why, therefore, they might ask, was subprime offered to a municipality whose credit standing is suspect?

A related observation is made by the Securities and Exchange Commission, the government watchdog over investment vehicles. It is considering action, never attempted before, against offending municipalities.

A.A. Sommer Jr., an SEC commissioner, told a meeting of the American Bar Association in Montreal last weekend that his group might act against cities that sell securities without disclosing their full financial condition.

Sommer's reference was made in regard to New York City having sold bonds while failing to disclose that it had huge "hidden" deficits, but his remarks clearly were intended to apply to other municipalities too.

The plight of the cities put the big institutions in a dilemma. They have a vested interest in keeping the cities from collapsing, but they have a responsibility to their investors too. And there are no guidelines to help.

In the board room of corporations there are insecurities too. Once these directors' meetings were almost social affairs, but now the individual directors must beware of suits should they not protect the stockholder's interests.

Down on Wall Street there are problems too, one of them being the cosmic transition to a great central marketplace, a change that has been evolving slowly and with considerable resistance.

Identities are being lost there. The government wants more cooperation among the various exchanges, which heretofore have traded their own private lists of stocks. Wouldn't it be better if there were national markets instead?

That's what they're supposed to be moving toward, but there are some problems along the way. The government also wants to break monopolistic pricing and pit brokers against each other in order to lower commissions.

This has resulted in the demise of some firms which simply could not compete.

Crosby fills vacancy

First National Bank selects new director

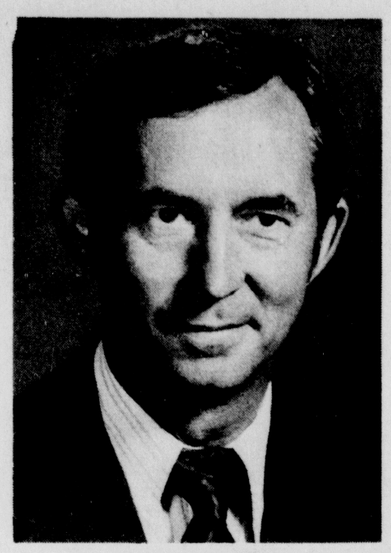

Paul Crosby, 8 Hali Drive, a Washington C.H. businessman and civic leader, has been appointed to the board of directors of the First National Bank of Washington C.H.

Announcement of Crosby's appointment was made today by Glenn R. Hemsworth, president of the First National Bank, following the regular monthly board of directors meeting.

The board action was taken to fill the vacancy created by the recent death of Lowell M. (Pete) Hayes, who had served as a director of the First National Bank for 28 years.

Crosby is a native of Paulding County, where he graduated from Payne High School. After serving two years with the U.S. Navy, he furthered his education at Ohio Northern University, Ada, where he received a bachelor of science degree in education. He spent five years in the teaching profession before becoming affiliated with the Downtown Drug Co. He presently served as treasurer of the company.

Crosby is active in community affairs and is a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Washington C.H., where he has held a number of leadership duties. He is a past president of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce, past president of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club and past president of the Washington C.H. Board of Education.

He is married to the former Sue Hayes, daughter of Mrs. Edith (Billie) Hayes and the late L.M. Hayes. The Crosbys have two children, Brad and Beth, both of whom are students at Ashland College.

Urge orientation for kindergarten

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Parents should start familiarizing their preschool children with what awaits them in September in order to avoid a tearful scene in front of the kindergarten door.

That's the recommendation of local teachers and educators who believe that a little preparation can alleviate a lot of problems and even give a child a healthy outlook toward education in later life.

Before school begins, parents should take their child to the school building to ease his sense of isolation caused by the size and unfamiliar surroundings of a building, according to Betsy Hall, an elementary school teacher.

"It also helps to point out some landmarks between home and school," Mrs. Hall said. "That gives a child a sense of where he is in relation to home.

Parents should also include in their comments some reference to the time period that the child will be spending in school.

"The time element bothers some children," Mrs. Hall continued. "They don't know how long they will be in school. So parents can say something like: 'This time next week, you'll be in kindergarten and when you get home, we'll eat lunch.'"

Michael Landwehr, coordinator of psychological services for the Cincinnati school system, said a parent can ease the transition by forecasting what is likely to happen at school.

"A kid may be uptight about his shoe coming untied. All a parent needs to do is explain that 'I'm certain that the teacher will tie it if you ask her.'"

A child who had his mother's attention any time he sought it often is unable to understand why a teacher does not give him the same response, according to Virginia Wiebe, also an elementary school teacher.

"Parents should talk with their child about such things as taking turns with other children," Mrs. Wiebe said. "They should explain that a teacher has a lot of other boys and girls in a classroom and can't always listen to what the child has to say."

Landwehr also suggested that parents ask their child about his worries as the first day of school approaches.

"They should talk with him about what he can handle," he said. "Does he want someone to wait in a car until he gets into the building? Or does he want someone to take him to the school door or even to the classroom."

Japanese face tax on uranium

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — Ten electric utilities in Japan, where the atomic bomb was first used, have been assessed taxes on nuclear fuel they have stored here, where the bomb was developed.

The 10 utilities have been assessed $9.2 million in personal property taxes on $320 million in nuclear power plant fuel. One of the utilities is in Horoshima, where the first atomic bomb was dropped in 1945 in World War II.

The 10 utilities are contesting the assessment, claiming that uranium—the basic raw material of nuclear energy—is not taxable.

'Service Above Self' motto exemplified

R-H reporter Rotary Club speaker

"Service Above Self" is not just an idle Rotary Club motto, it's a goal every Rotarian strives to achieve.

Members of the Washington C.H. Rotary Club learned of a classic example of "Service Above Self" during their regular weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Country Club.

Mark Thellmann, a reporter-photographer for the Record-Herald, related a recent experience with Rotarians in which he unselfishly lended a helping hand to a family of seven persons stranded in Washington C. H.

The 25-year-old Thellmann, a Record-Herald staffer for the past two years, housed and fed the family for two days and provided them with the necessary faith to continue on their way.

The family, en route to Maryland, were stranded in Washington C.H. without money, friends, food or transportation.

Before reaching Washington C.H., the family's car and all their possessions were stolen in Colorado and they decided to travel to Maryland to settle with relatives.

While housing the seven for a two-day period in his second-story apartment on S. Fayette Street, Thellmann published an article in the Coffee Break column of the newspaper asking for some assistance.

Thellmann said response he received from various members of the community was overwhelming.

Clean clothes, luggage and approximately $50 in cash were donated to the needy family. One Washington C.H. couple also agreed to provide the family with more comfortable sleeping accomodations on their rural farm.

Thellmann said the experience brought back many memories of the nine months he spent roaming around the country in his van following graduation in 1972 from the Ohio University schoool of journalism.

"The good you do always comes back to you," he said.

During the meeting, conducted by club president William E. Williams, three new members were accepted into the club.

The new members were Willis Geyer, sponsored by Fred Domenico, and Don Conley and Gale Helms, both sponsored by Howard Miller.

Williams announced that Rotary's district governor will make his official visit to the Washington C.H. club on Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Visiting Rotarians were Jerry Ardrey of London and Art Dick and Robert Montenaro, both of Mount Sterling. Guests were Dale Willis with David Ogan, Glenn Jedson with Jack Brennan and John Jenkins with Richard Whiteside.

4 receive vote cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The list of recipients of illegal campaign contributions from Ashland Oil, Inc., includes four Ohio politicians.

Documents filed by the company with the Securities and Exchange Commission showed the late U.S. Rep. Michael J. Kirwin of Youngstown received contributions totaling $60,000 in 1967, 1968 and 1969.

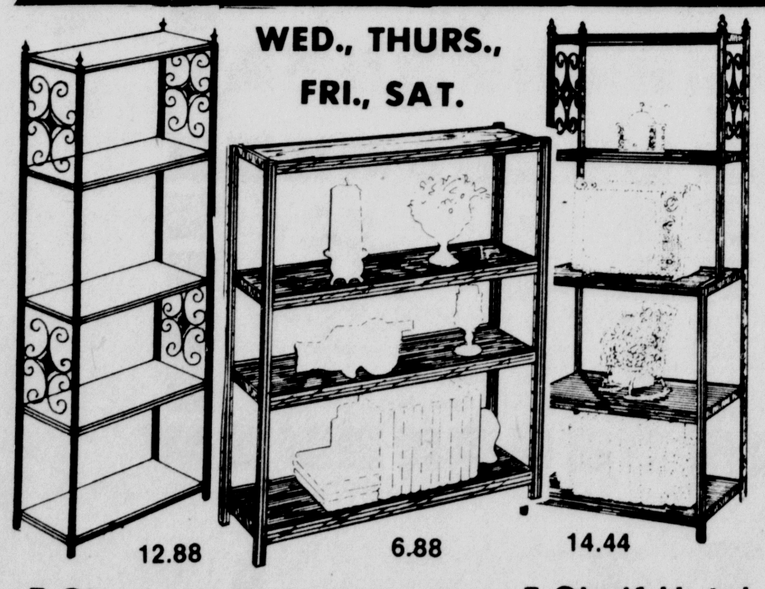

Kirwin died in 1970 at the age of 83.

The corporation listed a $3,000 contribution in 1967 to Gov. James A. Rhodes as a U.S. Senate candidate, although at that time he was just beginning his second four-year term as governor.

Contributions of $5,000 each were given to the two major 1970 gubernatorial candidates, Republican Roger Cloud and Democrat John J. Gilligan.

READY AND WAITING — Employes of the Sears Roebuck and Co. store in Washington C. H. are waiting for 6:30 p.m. to roll around. At that time, the new Sears facility will open to the public and host a grand opening celebration. Manager Ms. Shirley Fenter said the new store at the corner of Court and Hinde streets will be open until 9 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday this week only.

In location next to former site

Sears store opens tonight

Free prizes will highlight the grand opening of the new Sears Roebuck and Co. store at the corner of Court and Hinde streets Wednesday evening.

The new store is adjacent to Sears former location at 216 W. Court Street.

Ms. Shirley Fenter, store manager, said the retail outlet and catalog store will carry essentially the same items stocked in the past.

To celebrate the opening of the new facility, Sears will give away 10 table-top appliances Wednesday as door prizes. The drawing will take place at 8 p.m.

A grand prize drawing will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday. Those who register at the store before that time will be eligible to win a Sears Kenmore microwave oven. No purchse is necessary to be included in the drawings.

The regular store hours will be from 9:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. daily and until 8 p.m. on Friday. This week, however, the store will be open until 9 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Retail items stocked at the store include appliances, televisions, sewing machines, auto batteries and water heaters. A vast array of goods are available from the Sears catalog, and copies will be given away during the grand opening.

BOYLAN AND Cannon Electronics, Inc. purchsed an entire quarter block at the intersection of Court and Hinde streets, including the former Sears building. The property had been owned by the Washington Downtown Business Association whose lease with Sears expired May 31.

The electronics firm recently expanded its operations by opening an outlet in Columbus and had decided to relocate in the Sears building. Sears had sought another site in Washington C.H. and after lengthy negotiations agreed to lease the building to be built by Boylan and Cannon on the adjacent lot. Future plans call for an office building to be constructed on the former Carey Phillips residence which the electronics firm also purchased.

The parking area next to the new store can accommodate 24 automobiles. It will serve both Sears and the Boylan and Connon stores.

Remodeling of the former Sears store is expected to begin shortly, and should be completed in early October.

More blacks said needed as doctors

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The number of black doctors in the United States has not increased in five years, partly because young blacks are being driven away from medicine by economic pressures and prejudices, the National Medical Association says.

"It seems as though there are more dying than graduating medical school," said Dr. Edwin Shirley, a member of the Public Health Trust Board at Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Jasper Williams, president-elect of the NMA, a black doctors' organization, said the United States needs at least three times the 6,000 black practitioners it has now.

Dr. Alfred Fisher, executive director of the NMA, said the current black doctor-patient ratio in the United States is 1 to 5,000. The current white doctor-patient ratio is 1 to 750, Fisher said.

"I take a look around the hotel," said Williams, referring to the site of the NMA's 80th annual convention here. "Most of the doctors are old — they've been around a long time."

Even if a black has the ability to become a doctor, the average cost of $7,500 for medical school often is prohibitive, Williams said.

"It takes more time to pay back educational debts if you're poor to begin with," Williams said.

Indiana State Fair to open Thursday

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The 1975 Indiana State Fair opens Thurday with a balloon race among the first day's highlights.

Sixteen balloons are entered, and pilots include world record holder Bob Sparks and Canadian national champion Larry Horack.

In Ohio's lottery

Over $10 million paid to winners

COLUMBUS — State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson's office has paid, to date, $10,455,700 to 3,860 major Ohio lottery prize winners and the state has appropriated another $21,375,000 for 138 winners of $30,000 or more, who receive their winnings in annual installments of $15,000.

Ferguson added that as of July 3, about 38,400 lottery prizes, including nine $15,000 prizes, valued at some $970,000 have gone unclaimed.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Okay, it's back to square one for British TV personality David Frost on which U.S. broadcasters will buy the film interviews he'll be doing with former president Nixon.

There was a published report this week that ABC News, which rejected a proposal to buy TV rights to Nixon's memoirs and interview him, now was believed negotiating with Frost for U.S. rights to his project.

Balderdash, said ABC News chief Bill Sheehan late Monday night. "We're not making a deal with Frost and we're not trying to," he said, adding he'd told Frost of ABC's policy of "not paying for news."

But for a while it looked like something was cooking when an ABC corporate spokesman, noting that Sheehan was on vacation and momentarily out of contact, said ABC couldn't confirm or deny the report.

He said Sheehan — who was taking an all-day examination for an instrument flying rating — was the only one in the entire American Broadcasting Company who could comment on the published report.

It seems a strange way to run a network, but Sheehan eventually was contacted, denied the report, and that was that.

So where does this leave Frost in American broadcasting?

Well, two TV outlets — public TV's National Public Affairs Center for Television and Television News, Inc., a commercial TV news service — say they may negotiate for Frost's interviews of Nixon.

CBS, stung by "checkbook journalism" charges after paying ex-Nixon aide H.R. Haldeman for interviews, rejected an offer made before the Frost deal to buy TV rights to Nixon's memoirs and interview him.

It cited a policy against buying "hard news" exclusives. But it might deal with Frost if, among other things, the hard news softens.

It works this way: Frost's interviews won't be released until after the November elections in 1976. But CBS could deal for the films if Nixon opens himself to thorough questioning by newsmen before the films air.

Under those conditions, CBS News chief Richard S. Salant says he might negotiate if Nixon earlier has "said practically everything he has to say on Watergate under questioning — which he's never done, not ever before a congressional committee.

"But if by the time of broadcast that's behind him and he's done it (talked with newsmen), then I suppose there's been a sufficient lapse of time and disclosure of facts to include it as legitimate among memoirs."

By that he meant he could negotiate for the films as presidential memoirs. But he says it also "depends on what they're talking about. And I want to know who's doing it and under what ground rules."

Before the Frost deal, NBC News was negotiating with Nixon's literary agent. It said it wasn't trying to buy a "hard news" exclusive — which its policies bar — but rather to get Nixon to elaborate on the memoirs he now is writing.

The talks ended when the agent invited others to negotiate.

Regarding any potential deal now with Frost, an NBC spokesman this week said. "We have had no direct conversations with him and none are planned."

The Declaration of Independence was signed by 56 persons.

Construction boom sparked by iron ore demand

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Increased demand for iron ore has spurred a construction boom in the Great Lakes shipping fleet and has enhanced Cleveland's role as an iron ore capital.

Shipping experts say that in the next seven years, more than one-half million tons of capacity will be added to the U.S. lake fleet with construction of eleven 1,000-foot ships that can unload themselves.

This tonnage on order may be only the tip of the iceberg.

The American Iron and Steel Institute forecasts that shipments of taconite (iron ore pellets), from the Lake Superior Mesabi and Marquette ranges will increase by 31 million tons a year by 1980.

Most of the ship construction is being done by Bay Shipbuilding Corp. of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and American Ship Building Co. of Lorain, a Cleveland suburb.

U.S. companies now have two 1,000-foot lake vessels in use, the largest that can pass through the 1,200-foot Poe lock at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. They are engaged mainly in upper lakes iron ore trade.

Bay Shipbuilding has orders for 1,000-footers to be handed over to Bethlehem Steel Corp. (March 1978 and February 1980), U. S. Steel Corp. (October 1978) and American Steamship Co. (May 1979).

American Ship is working on two 1,000-footers for Pickands Mather and Co. of Cleveland for 1977 and another for Hanna Mining Co. for 1978.

The larger ships are being built because use of small, straight-bulk ships no longer is economical because of operating costs that come with the increase in trade, shipping officials say.

Cleveland stands as the pulse center to the veins of iron that lead to the mouth of the Cuyahoga River.

The lakefront city is the headquarters for four major mining companies: Hanna, Pickands, Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. and Oglebay Norton Co.

Hanna is the fifth largest iron ore firm in the world in terms of shipments. The company has operations in the United States, Canada and Brazil. The company was founded in 1885 by Marcus A. Hanna, later a U.S. senator and president-maker. Last year the firm shipped 30.6 million gross tons of iron ore and had revenues of $272,226,952.

Cleveland became headquarters for the iron ore industry in the 19th century when it served as a port for iron ore shipments from the upper penninsula of Michigan and later from the Mesabi range.

Now, there are about 100,000 steelworkers in Ohio for whom iron ore shipments are vital.

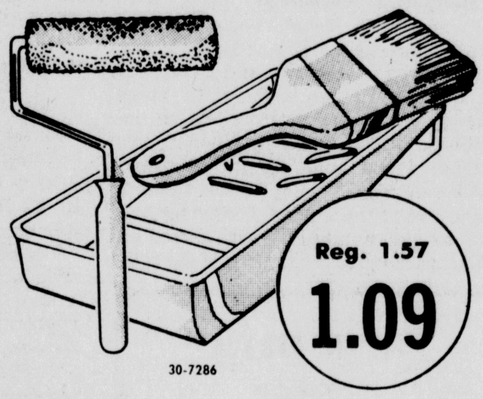

Robert R. Skinner, a financial analyst who writes a metals and mining industry newsletter for McDonald & Co., said Cleveland's iron ore houses continue to dominate the world iron ore scene, as they have since the industry began.

CHECK OUT TIME — Miami Trace gridder Sam Grooms checks out his football uniform at the high school Tuesday evening. The Panthers and most every other state prep team handed out equipment in preparation for Wednesday morning's workout.

County gridders begin workouts

The Ohio High School Athletic Association has given its annual go ahead for prep grid teams to begin supervised workouts in preparation for the 1975 football season.

Miami Trace High School passed out equipment Tuesday evening so that the student athletes would be ready to go "first thing" this morning.

Panther coach Fred Zechman has 51 grid hopefulls out for Wednesday's early morning drills. The total includes 18 sophomores and ten lettermen from last year's South Central Ohio League co-champion squad.

Zechman and his staff opened practice at 7 a.m. this morning and his gridders will stay at the high school working out and going over plays until 4 p.m. this afternoon.

The Washington Blue Lions were also ready to go for the first allowed day of practice Wednesday morning.

Head Coach Maurice Pfeifer was scheduled to start workouts at 7:30 a.m. this morning. The early morning practice of the rigorus two-a-days is to run until 9:30 a.m., then the team returns at noon for another two-hour workout.

The real hitting in practice doesn't start until Monday as a required four-day acclimation period is required by the OHSAA.

Wednesday's and Thursday's practice for prep teams will be conducted without pads, then one day in pads is required before the hitting starts.

Pfeifer said his practice schedule would be changed in case of high temperatures. The alternate schedule will have the morning practice fun from 8-10 a.m. and the evening workout from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

Both Fayette County squads have been running through conditioning exercises since late July in hopes of having a well-conditioned team before the two-a-days began.

The two-a-day practices will continue until school starts September 2 with the Blue Lions and the Panthers hopefully ready for their respective season openers on the following weekend.

Springfield team wins Connie Mack tourney

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The host Springfield team won the East Central Regional Connie Mack baseball tournament Tuesday by defeating Cincinnati Midland 4-2 on a three-run fourth-inning homer by Dave Donohoe.

The team now advances to the Connie Mack World Series in Farmington, N.M., Aug. 15-20.

Springfield pitcher John Bault was presented the tournament Most Valuable Player award.

Reds finally outlast Cubs

CINCINNATI (AP)—Chicago Manager Jim Marshall shrugged, the Reds were bewildered, nobody was really happy.

Cincinnati spotted the Cubs four runs and had to come back twice before upending Chicago 12-8 in a free-swinging contest that saw eight pitchers and 34 base hits.

"The trouble," said Cubs Manager Jim Marshall after Chicago dropped the second of a two-game series, "is there isn't an out on that team (the Reds)."

"Everybody knocks their pitchers, but I like what I saw."

"Sure, we got a lot of hits tonight. Our club is coming along and we're building for the future."

Chicago's Jose Cardinal hammered in four runs and John Madlock, the National League's leading hitter, went four-for-five.

"I couldn't believe it," said a wide-eyed Tony Perez of Cincinnati. He had three runs batted in for the night including a two-run double in the sixth that ultimately won the game. "They have a four-run lead and we won the game.

"It seems like we hit everything everybody threw. It was noisy out there tonight."

Cincinnati outhit Chicago 18-16.

"Chicago is a good club," said Reds leading hitter Pete Rose, who knows about such things.

"It's nicer being ahead and have the pressure on the other guys to catch you," said Madlock, who hopes to be the Cubs' first batting champion since Billy Williams in 1972 and Phil Cavarreta in 1955.

"I don't keep track on everyone else this early. That's what you do in September, but you have to get your hits this month because you play fewer games in September," said Madlock.

Reds' starter Pat Darcy was bombed for four runs by the Cubs in the first inning and was chased with only one out.

Joe Morgan batted in a run for Cincinnati in the latter half of the inning then the Reds tied it in the third with a five-run uprising and took the lead at 8-6 on a Tom Dettore balk in the fourth.

Undaunted, Chicago's Jose Cardinal doubled home two more runs in the sixth and the Reds took the lead for good in the bottom of the sixth and scored their final run in the eighth.

"I'm just glad to get out of this town," said a tired Cubs pitcher Rick Reuschel, after finishing up the game. He started against Cincinnati Monday night.

Cincinnati maintained its 15½-game lead over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the Western Division of the National League.

Both the Reds and Cubs are idle today.

Dodgers 7, Phillies 6

Jimmy Wynn opened the Los Angeles 10th with a single off Gene Garber, who had allowed only one hit and struck out six since coming on in the sixth. Steve Garvey sacrificed and, after an intentional walk to Ron Cey, Yeager, who singled a run home in the Dodgers' three-run first, walloped his seventh home run of the season. Philadelphia's Jay Johnstone hit a two-run homer off Mike Marshall in the bottom of the 10th.

New mile mark set by Walker

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — John Walker runs in nobody's shadow anymore.

After two years of chasing Filbert Bayi, Walker put it all together in what he described as "a perfect race" and shattered one of sport's most revered records, running the mile in 3 minutes, 49.4 seconds at the Goteborg Games international track and field meet Tuesday night.

"I feel extremely happy — I still can't believe I've broken the record," said Walker, a 23-year-old New Zealander who burst onto the international track scene just two years ago.

"I didn't believe I had a chance. I've been thinking it over and over the last few days — how to run, how to beat it (the record). Now I feel I couldn't have run a more perfect race."

Running under ideal conditions, Walker took the lead on the third lap and sped away from the field to become the first man in history to break 3:50 for the mile. He shaved 1.6 seconds off the world record of 3:51.0, set by Bayi in Kingston, Jamaica May 17. The record came before a crowd estimated at 9,000 at Slottskogsvallen Stadium.

Walker, the only truly topflight miler in the field, finished nearly six seconds ahead of Ken Hall of Australia, who was clocked in 3:55.2. Graeme Crouch of Australia placed third in 3:56.4 and Gunnar Ekman of Sweden was fourth in 4:01.5. The temperature was 77 degrees when the race began, at 7:50 p.m. local time.

Cardinals 5, Astros 4

Ted Simmons hit a two-run homer, Lou Brock delivered a two-run single and rookie John Denny singled home what turned out to be the winning run while notching his seventh pitching triumph.

Mets 9, Padres 4

Tom Seaver became the NL's second 16-game winner and Ed Kranepool ignited a four-run rally in the third inning with a run-scoring double. Seaver lost his shutout bid in the seventh on Randy Hundley's two-run homer.

Giants 5, Expos 2

Bobby Murcer ripped a tiebreaking two-run double in the 11th inning after Gary Thomasson's double and a single by Derrel Thomas. Murcer was tagged out when he overran second base but Gary Matthews walked and scored on a double by Willie Montanez. The Giants tied the score with two out in the ninth on a single by Thomas, a walk to Murcer and a single by Matthews.

Sports Mart

The Community Education sponsored City Tennis Tournament finished up its final division match Monday as Greg Gilmore took a 6-4, 6-4 win over Stuart Foster for the championship in the Boys' 18-under division.

Gilmore, who will be a sophomore at Washington Senior High School, won all three of his matches without dropping a set while Foster, a junior at Miami Trace, lost only four games in four sets until the final match.

MIAMI TRACE volleyball coach Rita Krammes is asking all Trace high school girls interested in playing on this year's squad to report dressed and ready for workout at the school gym Monday at 10:30 a.m.

Coach Krammes is entering her first season as a Miami Trace mentor.

She hopes to have the Trace girls ready for the September 22 league opener.

South Central Ohio League play for girls begins its first season this fall with volleyball, track, basketball and softball scheduled.

FRED BRISKER, who coached the Greenfield McClain Tigers to their best grid season in seven years last season, will be keying towards the South Central Ohio League crown as prep football practices open in Ohio this week.

A field of 14 lettermen from last year's 6-4 squad are returning including four all-league choices.

Chuck Conley, a 6'2", 240-pounder, will anchor both the offensive and defensive lines while the league's leading passer, Kevin Kensinger, will return as the Tiger's signal caller.

Brisker lists size and depth as his major pre-season concerns with experience and speed as the team's assets.

The McClain mentor rates Circleville as the pre-season favorite followed by Washington and Miami Trace.

The Tigers will host the Blue Lions October 10 for Homecoming festivities and the Panthers will visit Greenfield October 31.

THE OHIO AMERICAN Legion baseball champions from Worthington feature Larry Korn in leftfield. He is the son of Dr. Dick Korn formerly of Washington C. H.

The elder Korn was quite an athlete in Court House lettering in basketball and baseball for the Blue Lions. He also won two Washington Country Club senior golf championships and one junior crown.

Not to be outdone by his father's past accomplishments young Larry lettered in both baseball and football at Worthington High School and he was awarded a full four-year baseball scholarship to the University of Kentucky this fall.

Young Korn will enroll as a pre-Medical student.

TWENTY-TWO FORMER Blue Lion gridders grace the Washington Senior High School all-decade team. The top players during the last ten grid campaigns are featured on the dream team.

The players were chosen by head coach Maurice Pfeifer and the rest of the Blue Lion staff earlier this summer.

Letters have been sent commending the former prep standouts on their selection.

The 22-man squad will be featured in the Record-Herald sports section later this month.

SEASON RESERVED tickets for the 1975 Miami Trace Panther football season will be placed on sale Aug. 19 and 21 and Aug. 26 and 28.

Ticket manager Glenn Marchal said Miami Trace football fans, who have held season tickets in past seasons, can purchase this year's tickets from 4 until 6 p.m. Aug. 19 and 21 at the high school office. Persons who have not held tickets in the past can purchase them from 4 until 6 p.m. Aug. 26 and 28.

The tickets are priced at $13 apiece. The Panther football team will play five home games this fall.

THE JEFF MERCHANTS Babe Ruth team will travel to Springfield's Municipal Stadium for tournament play at 6 p.m. Thursday.

The tournament is for 13-14 year-olds and the Merchants drew Northridge for their first game in the double-elimination baseball tourney.

Colonial wins Xenia meet

Colonial defeated Springfield Commercial Coating, Kingery Roofing from Washington C.H., Beaver Value from Xenia, Dayton W.P.A.B. and Kingery Roofing again in the finals.

Clyde Woodrow and Randy Merriman shared the "Most Valuable Player" award.

Merriman batted a fine .700 for the tourney, but teammate Keith Guthrie hit for a .761 average to lead the team.

Sid Woodrow, Jack Merriman, Steve Dawson and Mike Henry all hit well above .500 for the tourney.

Bengals trim 3

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP)— The Cincinnati Bengals have trimmed three rookies to get their roster down to 59 players.

The Bengals Tuesday asked waivers on Isaac Jackson, Matt Means and Ron Rosenberg.

Jackson, a running back, was a free agent from Kansas State. Means, a wide receiver, was a free agent from Central Michigan.

Nero vistits Scioto Downs Thursday

Nero comes to Scioto

COLUMBUS — "Superstar" Nero, already considered by many as the "greatest harness horse of all times", will make the first of two scheduled appearances this year at Scioto Downs Thursday night in the $12,500 Scarlet and Gray Cup three-year-old pace.

Nero arrived at Scioto Downs Sunday night fresh and frisky after his two-heat victory in the $100,000 Adios Pace at The Meadows near Pittsburgh.

With Joe O'Brien in the sulky, the fantastic son of Meadow Skipper avenged his only loss this year by Whata Baron. After taking the first heat in 1:58.3, Nero buried Whata Baron with a sensational mile in 1:57. 3 in the race-off.

Only four horses will challenge Nero in the Scarlet & Gray Cup Thursday night. Bruce Riegle will take Omaha Kid with a mark of 2:00.3; Dick Brandt his Lincoln's Leader, the swift son of Columbia George, owned by Barton Holl of Logan; Frank Todd, Sr., has the Sampson Direct colt, Millstone ready for action; and co-owner Howard Coburn has the Knight Dream colt, Knight Again. With a lifetime mark of 2:01.4, Knight Again was third to J.H. Baron the conquerer of Alert Bret earlier this year, clocked in 2:00.3.

The subject of national attention all year long, Nero has had millions of words describing his exploits during fourteen victories in fifteen starts.

Co-owner Jim Crane wanted to get in the horse business in a big way three years ago, and placed an ad in the Wall Street Journal seeking partners.

Rene Dervaes and Jack Massau both of Pennsylvania answered the ad, and a pool of $50,000 was put up to start their venture. When Crane only had to pay $20,000 for Nero, his partners complained, "why didn't you buy us a good one?"

During two years of racing, Nero has won 27 of 29 starts and banked over $337,000 in earnings. This year, the trio that owns Nero has already turned down $500,000 for just ten per cent ownership of the superstar. That figures out to an estimated new worth of $5 million.

It was at Scioto Downs last year, that Nero posted his first miracle mile. Jim Crane entered Nero in a preferred pace. Racing along in fourth position at the three quarter pole, Nero exploded out and came the final quarter in :29.1, hitting the wire in 1:59 1-5. It was the season record for juvenile pacers over a five-eighths of a mile track, and is still the track pacing record for two-year-olds.

Nero has only been defeated twice in his career. Last year at Lexington, Kentucky when he was forced into the rail by Alert Bret, and this year by Whata Baron after a three-week layoff.

Like any legendary figure in any sport, threre are thousands of stories circulating about the "Emperor". One story that had a near fatal ending happened last year when Nero was ready to go in the Fox Stake at Indianapolis. Someone slipped into his stall and gave him a near-fatal dose of drugs. Since that time, Nero is uner 24-hour guard within his glass covered stall.

Nero began the 1975 season with a flourish on May 9, when he qualified at Brandywine Raceway in 2:01.3, just jogging. He won the Cane at Yonkers Raceway in 1:58.4, the first leg of the Triple Crown of Pacing. He won the American National in Chicago in 1:58.1. He took the Gaines Memorial at Vernon Downs in straight heats of 1:56.4, back in 1:56.3, and last week added his thirteenth and fourteenth victories with the back-to-back wins in the Adios in 1:58.3 and 1:57.3.

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The Role of the Para-Medic

I went to the emergency room of a hospital to be treated for a burn on my hand. It's bad enough to be treated by an intern, but they assigned someone who was not even a doctor to take care of me.

Mrs. D. L. T., Del.

Dear Mrs. T.:

Let me immediately remind you of the obvious fallacy in your letter when you say that it is "bad enough to be treated by an intern."

An intern in a hospital is a full-fledged doctor who has earned the degree of M.D. after years of hard work and medical training.

Interns are qualified to engage in private practice, but have chosen to continue advanced studies in a hospital for more thorough training.

All assignments given to them by their superiors can be carried out by them with accuracy and with good judgment. Special problems that arise are solved in consultation with staff members of greater experience.

The demands of modern medicine are so great that certain routine responsibilities that are time-consuming are now being assigned to very well-trained personnel known as "para-medical" assistants. These "para-medics" do not have the M.D. degree, but have undergone rigorous training with very special supervision.

Before they are permitted to treat patients their qualifications are well established. Of course, they, too, perform their duties under the jurisdiction of doctors. Whenever any medical situation arises that specifically demands the attention of a doctor, one is always available.

The value of para-medics has long been known on the battlefield. They have been responsible for emergency treatment that has saved thousands of lives.

The administering of routine injections, the dressing of wounds, the preparation for surgery, and the myriad time-consuming details that would normally take up the busy time of doctors and nurses are now safely and competently handled by the para-medical personnel.

Ongoing courses in medical education allow the para-medics to "specialize" in various fields of medicine. Not only emergency rooms are benefiting from the para-medics, but doctors, too, in their private practices are employing them in an effort to be relieved of specific details. In this way, the doctor can better utilize his time in helping his patients.

Para-medics are a valuable adjunct in modern medicine.

Dear Mr. Becker: This deal was played in the expert game at New York City's most prestigious bridge club. As you undoubtedly know, the bridge played there is extremely serious, very high-level, and even grim at times. No quarter is ever asked for or given.

South was a player who had been winning just about everything in sight both in national and regional tournaments. This of course gave him a feeling of absolute superiority, and because his partner was just a plain, ordinary, run-of-the-mill player (and even less than that in South's eyes) it was perhaps understandable that South went in for some fancy shenanigans, as follows, to wit:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
1 ♠ (!)	Pass	4 NT	Pass
6 ♣	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
6 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

West led the ten of spades, dummy's king losing to the ace, and back came the jack of spades. West took the queen and cashed the 9-8, so that South lost 300 points instead of gaining the 1,730 points in his side could have scored.

For once the schmo in the North seat was able to lecture his famous partner on the subject of crazy bids, namely, that spade monstrosity on Round 2. And, for once, South was silent. North ran out of steam after a while, the East-West pair scored a game, and that was the end of the incident until...

"Pardon me," said one of the kibitzers to South, and there was enough oil in his voice to light all the lamps in China, "but on that slam hand — is it too late now to review the bidding?"

South stared at him, glared at him, and then suddenly clapped a hand to his forehead, emitting a cry of anguish as he realized that West instead of East had made the opening lead! Cordially yours, John A. Nonymous.

By two unidentified assailants

Local man knocked unconscious

A Washington C. H. man was beaten over the head with an unknown object and knocked unconscious by two unidentified assailants late Tuesday.

Washington C. H. police officers reported Dennis Clay, 28, of 636 Willabar Drive, heard voices on his backporch at 11:14 p.m. Tuesday. Clay turned on an outside light and noticed a man wearing a dark ski mask standing near his motorcycle. Clay approached the unidentified man who pushed the motorcycle over and fled to the rear of Clay's residence. Clay pursued and was knocked unconscious by a second man hiding near the rear corner of the house.

Police Sgt. Luther Anderson transported Clay to Fayette Memorial Hospital where he was treated for facial injuries and released. His glasses were also broken by the blow.

Previous to last night's incident, Clay had heard a noise in his garage at 11:13 p.m. Sunday and had seen three men, two white and one black, wheeling his Honda motorcycle down McArthur Way. He pursued the men who dropped the bike and fled. Clay caught up with one of them and struck him with a baseball bat he was carrying, knocking him to the ground. He went after the others and lost them and then returned to the man he had felled who was also missing.

Clay later received an anonymous phone call after the first incident which stated he had injured a friend and they "would get even." City police are continuing their investigation of the assault and attempted theft.

Two stolen vehicles recovered by deputy

A stolen motorcycle and a stolen auto have been recovered by Fayette County Sheriff's Deputy Charles Wise, the sheriff's department reported today along with an incident of child neglect, a lost license plate and a larceny. Washington C.H. police reported a rash of property destruction in the 800 block of N. North Street and other incidents involving property destruction on Paint and Rawlings streets.

A 1974 Honda XL-100, stolen June 22 from Gatlinburg, Tenn., was recovered in the Fishback Road vicinity by Sheriff's Deputy Charles Wise and persons fishing in the area Aug. 3. Deputy Wise reported the gas tank damaged. Deputy Wise also recovered a 1969 model Plymouth stolen from Kettering, Aug. 8 in a wooded area half a mile from Pleasantview Road. The recovery was made at 5:23 p.m. Tuesday and heavy damage to the top and interior was reported. Deputy Wise is continuing his investigation of both vehicles.

Two Fayette County children, ages 10 and 12, were taken to the Fayette County Children's Home at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday after being neglected by their parents whose whereabouts are unknown. Sheriff's deputies did not report how long the children had been left alone.

A citizens band radio valued at $219 belonging to Harold W. Barnes Jr., Dry Ridge, Ky., was stolen from his semi-truck between 3 a.m. and 3:30 a.m. Wednesday while the truck was parked at Garner's Union 76 Truck Stop, I-71 and U.S. 35. Sheriff's deputies also reported Barnes antenna valued at $35 had been removed, along with a black case with chrome trim.

A Missouri license plate was found in Edith Haines' 3399 U.S. 35-W driveway at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday. Deputies announced the number as being 88-158. They are seeking the owner.

Three autos owned by persons residing in the 800 block of N. North Street were damaged by vandals around 1:30 p a.m. Wednesday. Washington C.H. police stated the two rear tires were slit on a 1969 model Ford belonging to Curtis Smith, parked at the rear of his 824 N. North St. residence; two tires on the driver's side of a 1973 model Plymouth belonging to Roscoe VanDyne were slit while the auto was parked under a carport at the rear of his 830 N. North Street residence and the two tires on the passenger side of a 1974 Pinto belonging to William McKenzie were slit while the auto was parked at his 818 N. North St. residence.

City police also reported the spare tire cover slit on a 1973 model Ford van parked at the Richard Kimmett residence, 526 Rawlings St., early Wednesday morning. Tomatoes were also squashed on the van.

A brick was hurled through the front window of the Donald E. Maddux residence, 212 E. Paint St., at 4:55 a.m. Wednesday. Police also reported the air released from a tire on Maddux's car.

Metzenbaum eyes race

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum has indicated that he is nearing a decision to make his third attempt at a seat in Congress.

"It presently appears that I will be a candidate for the U.S. Senate in 1976," Metzenbaum said Tuesday in discussing the possibility of his appearing on the ballot next year.

He cautioned that he has not formally announced his future intentions, but added "I'm satisfied that the support is there among political leaders, labor leaders and especially among the people in the streets. "If that continues to be the case, I'm prepared to serve."

In 1970, Metzenbaum defeated John Glenn in the Democratic primary, only to be beaten by Sen. Robert A. Taft Jr, R-Ohio, whose term is up in 1976.

Former Gov. John J. Gillian appointed him to the Senate in December 1973 to fill the unexpired term of William Saxbe, who resigned to become U.S. Attorney General, but he was defeated in the 1974 Democra tic primary by Glenn.

Mishap checked

A pickup truck belonging to Richard D. Smalley, 43, New Holland, backed into a car belonging to Fred D. Redman, 1330 Grace St., at 10:15 a.m. Tuesday in front of the First National Bank on Main Street.

Washington C. H. police reported no injury nor citations issued.

Cornbread burns

What was reported as a fire to Washington C. H. firemen at 2:33 p.m. Tuesday turned out to be a rather well-done piece of cornbread.

Firemen reported they received a call from Everett Milstead, 13 Colonial Court, that his residence, owned by Jess Gilmore, was filled with smoke. Milstead had put a piece of cornbread in a small pie tin and placed it in a toaster oven to heat and then left his home. Firemen investigated, discovered the charred piece of cornbread and reported no fire.
